Too Much Strength Training

Q. My workout partner has us doing total body strength training every session. We work out five days a week for about an hour, each splitting the time between cardiovascular exercise and strength training. Since we began this program I have seen some results, but I have not stopped being sore. Is this normal, or should we change our workouts?

A. Designing a workout that will show results while keeping you safe in the long run can be challenging. The first point to remember is that "more is not always better." The desire to see results can motivate us to try to do as much exercise as possible in hopes that we can reach our goals more quickly. Remaining sore after each workout is a sign that your workout needs more recovery time and modification.

It is great that you and your workout partner have made the time to exercise five days a week. I would encourage you to continue to make that time available; however, I would suggest using it in a different manner.

Your body needs time to recover so that it will be ready for the following day's workout. Staying sore day after day could limit your body's ability to work as effectively and efficiently as it could during the next workout — and actually keep you from reaching your goals over time.

Try completing your strength-training workout three days a week, along with cardiovascular exercise for 30 minutes within that hour. Be sure to design your strength-training workouts appropriately, so the weight is not too heavy. Remember that you should be able to lift the weight you choose with proper technique. Having to lose your technique would suggest the weight is too heavy.

On the other two days of the week that you work out, I would recommend using cardiovascular and flexibility training. Try cross-training, where you use more than one form of cardiovascular training, such as walking/jogging, cycling, rollerblading, etc. Also consider interval training, which involves alternating between easier to harder intensities throughout your cardiovascular workout. Use caution not to raise your heart rate so high that you do not see a considerable amount of recovery one minute after the exercise is complete.

Alternating your strength and cardiovascular workout days should help your body recover from soreness and help you continue to see results.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Create A Home Fitness Plan That Works

(NU) — According to The President's Council on Physical Fitness, adults need at least 30 minutes of physical activity five or more days a week. However, only 30 percent get the recommended amount.

Work, family and never-ending to-do lists can make finding time to hit the gym an understandable challenge. If the gym isn't for you, or if your schedule makes getting there a challenge, try working out at home. Cardiovascular, strength and flexibility training are the key components of any successful workout regimen, and with a few simple items, you can build an effective home exercise program that incorporates each.

Cardio: Cardiovascular workouts fuel weight loss, strengthen the heart, reduce stress and increase energy.

For a low-impact cardiovascular workout, try the Spinner Sport (www.spinning.com), an in-home bike that can help you burn as many as 500 calories in 40 minutes. The Spinning program makes riding a stationary bike more fun and effective than mindless pedaling by incorporating changes in resistance and alternating between seated and standing positions. Bikes include DVDs that offer motivation and instruction.

Strength: Resistance training strengthens and tones the muscles and can increase metabolism. Flexible tubing (www.power-systems.com) is a portable, relatively inexpensive option for strength training that can be used in place of weights and is available in various degrees of resistance to serve all fitness levels.

Flexibility: Proper stretching builds flexibility while reducing muscle tension, expanding range of motion, increasing circulation and lowering the risk of injury.

Stretching should be performed at the end of a workout when the muscles are warm. Stretching on a yoga mat (www.huggermugger.com) can help improve balance, coordination and comfort. A yoga strap can make touching your toes a little easier and allows for a deeper stretch.

The most effective workout is one you can stick with, so develop a plan you can commit to. Talk to your doctor before beginning any exercise routine. For more workout tips and tools that will help you plan your personal fitness regimen and more, visit www.spinning.com.

Have Your Coffee and Drink It, Too

(NU) — For most people, it's simply a part of their morning routine. For others, it's a social commodity, but regardless of its use, coffee is a major staple in the American diet. In fact, approximately 130 million Americans drink an average of two to three cups of coffee a day.

Many health professionals agree it's not necessarily a bad thing, especially if you go for the decaffeinated variety. Antioxidants, for example, abound in coffee, which can reduce inflammation and prevent chronic diseases. However, what about the pesky short-term effects of coffee, such as stomach pain and heartburn?

Coffee drinkers, especially those prone to stomach pain and heartburn, can feel the burn after their daily coffee intake. The cause-coffee's acid levels. That's right, most coffees contain acid, which can damage the lining of your stomach and result in unpleasant side effects such as acid reflux. Giving up coffee is out of the question for most people, so antacids have become a popular ally.

More than 60 million Americans experience heartburn at least once a month, and many rely on the neutralizing effects of antacids on a regular basis; however, this can be a concern in the long-term.

Antacids affect the balance of acid in your stomach by reducing it. However, natural acids found in your stomach are necessary in the prevention of illness. These acids kill bacteria as they try to enter the body through the digestive track. Long-term use of these products may negatively affect this balance.

So, what should those coffee drinkers who take a side of antacid with their coffee do? Acid-free coffee may be your best solution. Coffee companies such as Tyler's Coffee provide both caffeinated and decaffeinated blends of acid-free coffee. These acid-free blends are roasted through a computer-based process, which eliminates the acid.

And aside from a settled stomach, acid-free coffee promotes dental health. "The worst thing anyone can do is sip beverages with a high acid level," said Dr. Richard Zieher. "A coffee beverage that is free of acid, sugar or non-dairy creamer could decrease a person's risk of developing cavities."

Now coffee drinkers can have their coffee and drink it, too.

November is Diabetes Month

The diabetes epidemic has no bounds - even here in Massachusetts. Children, co-workers, caregivers, minorities, and the elderly are some of the many faces of diabetes in our community.

Could you be one of these faces?

Nearly 21 million children and adults in the United States have diabetes and another 54 million Americans have pre-diabetes, which puts them at serious risk for developing type 2 diabetes. It is a leading cause of heart disease, stroke, kidney disease, blindness, and lower limb amputation. Unfortunately, many people are unaware they have diabetes or are at risk for developing the disease. The burden of diabetes in Massachusetts is extensive; nearly 320,000 children and adults in Massachusetts are living with diabetes and waiting for a cure.

What can the people of Massachusetts do to help stop diabetes in its tracks?

As we are preparing for American Diabetes Month® in November, it is an ideal opportunity to get involved with your local American Diabetes Association. Participate in an event or educational program. Volunteer. Be a Diabetes Advocate and write your local government representative urging them to support diabetes-related legislation.

I welcome readers to learn more about diabetes at the American Diabetes Association's website, HYPERLINK "http://www.diabetes.org" or to take the diabetes risk test online at HYPERLINK "http://www.diabetes.org/risk-test".

For those who do not have access to the internet, information and the risk test can be obtained by calling 1-800-DIABETES. Information from both of these sources are available in English and Spanish.

The future of our community is at risk. What are you going to do to help the many faces of diabetes?

MEDICINE-INDUCED DRY MOUTH

The medication you're currently taking may have such unwanted side effects as dry mouth, soft-tissue changes, gum-tissue overgrowth, and taste changes. In fact, the Academy of General Dentistry reports that up to 400 medications can contribute to dry mouth. A list of these prescription and over-the-counter drugs includes antihistamines, decongestants, painkillers, muscle relaxants, tranquilizers, diuretics, and antidepressants, as well as drugs that treat high blood pressure, Parkinson's disease, and incontinence. Aside from being uncomfortable, dry mouth can lead to irritation, inflammation, and infection of the soft tissues of the mouth. Anti-seizure medications, immunosuppressant drugs, and channel calcium blockers may also cause "gingival overgrowth" (enlarged gum tissue). To avert these potentially serious problems, consult with the dentist about a treatment strategy.

Could the medications you're taking cause you to have dry mouth? Our highly skilled professional team delivers the best possible dental care to you through state-of-the-art technology with a personal, caring touch. Comprehensive oral health built on a preventive approach is what we're about, and giving you a healthy beautiful smile is what we're aiming for you. For all your dental concerns, we invite you to come see us. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where you'll find our office to be as pleasant as it is professional each and every time you visit. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Cardiovascular agents, central nervous system stimulants, and smoking cessation products can sometimes leave a bitter or metallic taste in the mouth or an inability to taste at all.

Presidents Snap Losing Streak, Sail Past Nauset

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy Presidents took little time setting the tone in their game against Nauset High School last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Looking to snap a four game losing streak, Quincy called a trick play on their first play from scrimmage, a halfback toss from junior Mark Gillybody to junior Zack Manning that resulted in a 22 yard gain that helped get the momentum moving in the right direction.

Senior running back Diego Arredondo (18 carries, 111 yards, four touchdowns) capped off the opening scoring drive with a one-yard touchdown run and Quincy was off and running. Arredondo's successful PAT gave Quincy the early 7-0 lead.

The 35-21 win upped Quincy's overall record to 2-5 overall, and 2-4 in the Atlantic Coast League.

After the opening scoring drive, Nauset went four and out on the ensuing possession, and when Quincy got the ball back, Arredondo and sophomore quarterback Lance Peterson took over.

On first and 10 from their own 25-yard line, Arredondo went for 12, 10 and eight yards on the next three carries before Max Devoe ran for four yards to set up a first and ten from the Nauset 44-yard line. Facing a second down and 10, Peterson faked the handoff, rolled left and found a wide-open Anthony Raddatz streaking down the sidelines for a 40-yard touchdown. Arredondo's PAT was good and Quincy had a 14-0 lead with 7:29 left in the second quarter.

Nauset's next drive started at its own 24-yard line, but after taking the ball down to the Quincy 33-yard line, a holding penalty brought the ball back to the Quincy 42. After two straight dropped passes, a sack on fourth down gave the ball back to the Presidents. And then it was Arredondo time once again.

On third and 18, Arredondo caught a swing pass from Peterson and broke through for a 52-yard gain down to the two-yard line. On first and goal, Arredondo scored his second rushing TD of the game to give the Presidents a 20-0 second quarter lead.

Nauset had a chance to cut into the 20-0 deficit near the end of the half, but with 21 seconds remaining and the ball in Quincy territory, Manning recovered a botched snap to quell the threat. At the break, Quincy held a commanding 20-0 lead.

Quincy took the second half kickoff back to its 31-yard line and went back to the well known as Arredondo. Arredondo ran for 22 yards on the first play of the second half to set up a first and ten from the Nauset 48, but two illegal procedure penalties pushed Quincy back to their own 41.

On second and 14 from their own 48, Peterson used play action to freeze the defensive backfield and found John Gray wide-open for a 50 yard gain. With 8:40 left in the third, Arredondo scored for the third time from two yards out to up the score to 28-7.

The visitors would make things interesting during the last 15 minutes of play. Nauset scored on a QB sneak to run the score to 28-7 with 1:52 left in the third and then executed a perfect onside kick that was recovered at the Quincy 42-yard line. Seven plays later they scored on a 14-yard touchdown run to cut the lead to 28-14.

But Quincy and Arredondo would shut the door on any thoughts of a Nauset comeback with a 10-play scoring drive with the exclamation point being Arredondo's fourth touchdown of the game, an eleven yard run.

Nauset scored late on a 49-yard TD pass to put the score at 35-21, and recovered the onside kick by time ran out and Quincy earned their second win of the season.

"Diego played great and I thought Lance did very well for a sophomore," head coach Bob Noble said. "We went to the no-huddle (early) to disrupt their timing and it worked. Although we did everything we could to give it away in the second half."

Quincy will play on the road this Friday at Plymouth South. Kick off is scheduled for 7 p.m.

North Quincy Point Shy Of Tournament Berth

GIRLS' SOCCER

By the time this paper is released to the newsstands, the North Quincy Red Raiders girls' soccer team will know if they will be playing in their 11th straight post season or if they will be getting ready for the winter sports season.

With a 7-7-4 overall record, the Red Raiders have 18 points (they need 19) and are one point away from clinching that elusive tournament spot.

North took care of business last Saturday against Quincy High School on a wet and rainy night at Veterans Memorial Stadium 6-0. That set up a win or go home regular season finale against Dennis-Yarmouth High School which was played on Tuesday. If the Raiders win or tie against the Dolphins, they will more than likely be playing in a preliminary round game this weekend. And if not, their season is over.

Just fifteen minutes later, junior midfielder Lindsay Reilly scored her third goal of the season to run the score to 2-0. And with a little under twenty seconds remaining in the opening half, senior captain Emily Milone's corner kick deflected off a Quincy player and into the back of the net for the 3-0 lead at the break. The goal was Milone's thirteenth of the season.

"We came out and played a real good game," head coach Paul Bregoli said. "The weather conditions were horrible and wet, but the team scored early and it allowed me to get my entire roster into the game. Luckily, the new turf at the stadium does not puddle so we were wet but the playing field was not affected."

The Raiders came storming out of the locker room to start the second half and quickly added to their lead on a beautiful header from sophomore forward Cara Murtagh. The goal was Murtagh's first of the year and it gave North a 4-0 lead. O'Connell picked up her second stellar assist of the game on the goal.

"Murtagh's goal was a thing of beauty," Bregoli added, "but it was the cross field pass from O'Connell that set it all up. It was a play that we had been working on in practice this past week and it paid off against Quincy."

With just over two minutes remaining in the contest, Bregoli put his senior class back onto the field and they responded with two goals in the closing minutes of play. Milone scored her fourteenth of the year off a pass from Reilly to make it 5-0 and Mary Kate Stille capped off the scoring with her eighth goal of the year as time wound down.

"I put my seniors back out there and what do you know, they came through with the final two goals," said Bregoli. "It was a good way to end the game."

Playing well for North were seniors Ellen Quinn, Roxanne Lydon, Lauryn MacIsaac and Simone Leary. Quincy junior Julie Leone stood out for the Presidents.

The Red Raiders had two players named, as Atlantic Coast League all-stars by the league's other coaches. Emily Milone and Mary Kate Stille were selected to play in the all-star game, which was held last Sunday. Senior defender Simone Leary earned an honorable mention selection.

North Quincy Captures Third Straight League Title

Last Wednesday in an epic showdown that decided the Atlantic Coast League regular season champion, the North Quincy Red Raiders defeated the Quincy Presidents three games to none (26-24, 25-23, 25-22) to capture their third straight girls' volleyball league title.

North Quincy, who beat Quincy in their first go-around this fall, finished the year with an undefeated league record marking the third consecutive year that the team has gone undefeated in league play. For the year, the Raiders had a 17-2 overall record and a sterling 12-0 record in ACL play.

All three games were highly competitive, and in all three games, the final outcome was not decided until the very end. In Game 1, the teams were tied a 24-all until senior Virginia Wong delivered a big kill to break the stalemate and earn North the win.

Games 2 and 3 both saw the two teams tied late into the game. North Quincy senior captain Becca Stanton delivered a kill in the second game to snap a 23-all tie, and Stanton did the same thing in

GIRLS' VOLLEYBALL

Game 3 to break a 22-all tie and lift the Red Raiders to the 3-0 match win.

"I'm was surprised that it was over in three because they (Quincy) played so well," North Quincy coach Kerry Ginty said. "We knew it was going to be a good match and a battle."

With their team down two games to nil, Quincy seniors Liz Bock and Meagan Tobin combined for four straight kills in the third game to turn a 12-11 deficit into a 15-13 lead, but Stanton drove a kill over the net later in the game to tie the score at 17-all and senior Rebecca Goreham connected for another kill to give the Raiders the 19-18 lead. And North Quincy was on their way to another league title.

"It was just back and forth and it could have gone either way," Quincy coach Jacqui Niosi said. "Any point could have been different and the outcome could have been different. They played tough defense, played scrappy defense and I think that gave them the extra points."

Playing well for the Red Raiders were Kathleen Lynch, Julie Lynch, Jess Ainsley and Rushri Wijesundera and it was the team's depth and experience that carried them to another ACL title.

"We are deep and we're well rounded," said Ginty. "Everybody has a couple of things they excel in."

Both North and Quincy are gearing up for a post season run, and when the pairings come out later this week, both of the city schools should be high seeds.

The North Quincy boys' soccer team defeated Quincy High School 2-1 last Saturday night in the driving rain at Veterans Memorial Stadium. With the win, North's second this fall over its cross-city rival; the Red Raiders ran their record to 5-10-2 with one game remaining on their schedule.

North Quincy Edges Quincy, 2-1

John Cicciariello scored the goals. Junior forward Shane Regan assisted on both of the goals.

"We have had a good year," head coach Rich Hanlon said. "Earlier in the year we had so many of our starters go down with injuries and that killed us. But, even though that was a key factor this year, we still are going to finish this season with the most wins in the past five years. So, as far as that goes it was a successful season and hopefully it will lead to a promising year next fall."

Playing well against Quincy were seniors Sean Clifford and Kwasi Osei and

The Red Raiders had four players named to the Atlantic Coast League all-star team. They are Shane Regan (also named to the EMass all-star team), Sean Clifford, Ryan Keaney and Dan Richards.

BOYS' SOCCER

Red Raiders' Record Even After Loss To Marshfield

North Quincy hung close with Marshfield High School—the eighth ranked team in eastern Massachusetts—through three quarters last Saturday afternoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium, but in the end fell in defeat 26-7.

The loss drops the Red Raiders record to 4-4 overall, and 3-3 in the Atlantic Coast League. With the win, Marshfield ran its overall record to a perfect 8-0, and 7-0 in the ACL.

The Rams battered the Red Raider defense and controlled the clock throughout all four quarters by using four different running backs. Marshfield's four touchdown scores were scored by each of their four running backs.

The game started with a 55 yard opening kick off return by the Rams that brought the ball all the way down to the North Quincy 35-yard line. Six plays later, Bob MacNeil scored from one yard out to give Marshfield a 6-0 lead. Phil Whittiker's point after attempt was good and just five minutes into the contest the score was 7-0.

The Red Raiders quickly shook off the Rams opening drive and score with a stellar scoring drive of their own. On second down from their own 37-yard line, senior running back Jon Cahill scampered for 26 yards and into Ram territory. Three plays later on third down and nine, senior quarterback Dennis Martin lofted a jump ball pass into the endzone. Sophomore wide receiver Paul Reamer, doing his best Randy Moss impression, ripped the ball away from the Marshfield defender in one-on-one coverage, juggled the ball and ultimately came down with it to give North Quincy six points. Senior kicker Zac Deegan's point after attempt was successful and at the end of the first quarter, the score was 7-7.

Marshfield took the ensuing possession and chewed up the clock in the second quarter with a 16-play scoring drive. Of the 16 plays that the Ram coaching staff called, 13 were running plays. With the Rams subbing in all four of their backs on the drive, the Red Raider defense played on their heels looking to eliminate the deep threat and keep the running game contained. But on the final run of the drive, Marshfield's Luke Poirier scored from one yard out. The PAT was good and at the half, the Rams led 14-7.

As the second half began, the Red Raiders had the chance to take the ball and even up the score against one of the better teams in the area. But the drive stalled out and North was forced to give the ball back to Marshfield. Using their power running attack on the ensuing possession, the Rams controlled the third quarter clock, but North's defense held its ground and forced a punt.

In what may have been the biggest play of the game, Marshfield punted the ball deep into North Quincy territory where it was downed at the one-yard line. The Rams took advantage of the great field position by forcing the Red Raiders to punt the ball from out of the back of the endzone. After receiving the punt at the NQ 21-yard line, Marshfield ran the ball four times and scored their third touchdown of the game when Brad Poirier scored from five yards out.

The PAT was no good, but the damage was done. At the end of three quarters of play, Marshfield held a 20-6 advantage.

The North Quincy offense got something going on their first possession of the fourth quarter, moving the ball close to midfield, but Marshfield forced a turnover to get the football back.

Marshfield running back Dennis McCarthy carried the ball three times on next drive, and put the game out of reach with a 25-yard touchdown run with 6:56 to play. Another missed PAT after the touchdown resulted in the final score of 26-7.

North Quincy is scheduled to play Whitman-Hanson High School on the road Friday night at 7 p.m. On the season, the Red Raiders have a 2-3 record at home and a 2-1 record playing as the visiting team.

NORTH QUINCY'S JON CAHILL runs for 35 yards during the first quarter last Saturday afternoon against Marshfield High School. The Raiders played Marshfield close for three-quarters, but in the end dropped a 26-7 decision.

FALL CAR CARE

Be Responsive With Regular Tire Maintenance

(NU)—If you're like most drivers, you consider yourself to be a responsible vehicle owner. Whether it's obeying traffic laws, buckling up, renewing your driver's license on time or taking your vehicle in for routine service at the manufacturer's recommended mileage intervals, you've got it covered, right?

Well, many drivers, including responsible ones, often overlook tire maintenance—a crucial component of car care. Your vehicle's tires are more than just another car part. These highly engineered constructions of rubber and steel are the only things that stand between your car and the road, making them important to your safety.

The wet weather that marks the fall and winter seasons makes tire maintenance even more essential. And if safety isn't enough to get you thinking about your wheels, properly inflated tires can improve your gas mileage and save you money at the pump.

Firestone Complete Auto Care offers these tire-maintenance tips to keep you safely rolling.

Air up: While you're waiting for your vehicle's gas tank to fill up, take those extra few minutes to grab your tire gauge and check the pressure of your tires. It is important to note that tire pressures can only be accurately checked when your vehicle has been driving less than one mile or has been stationary for at least three hours. By checking either the owner's manual or the sticker on the doorjamb or glove box, you'll find the tire inflation number that's best for your vehicle.

Tread check: Examine the tread on your tires once a month—your tread should be at least 2/32 inch. Give it the penny test by inserting a penny into the tread with the Lincoln's head down. If you can see the top of Lincoln's head, the tread is worn, and the tire needs to be replaced.

Rotate regularly: If you're checking your tire pressure and tread regularly, you're on the right track. However, there's still another component of responsible tire maintenance that you should be aware of.

Your tires should be rotated on a regular basis according to the vehicle manufacturer's scheduled maintenance recommendations to ensure they wear evenly, last longer and provide a safer ride.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good time to speak out on a difficult situation. You're known for your honesty, so people will listen and, perhaps, begin to make long-needed changes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's sharp business sense alerts you to question the positions of those trying to push the Bull into a deal. Demand to see proof of what they profess.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your quick thinking helps you get out of a troubling situation that was suddenly thrust upon you. Later on, you can expect to learn more about why it happened.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel you've dotted all your i's and crossed all your t's regarding that upcoming deal. But there might be some facts you've ignored. Check again.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Time for the Lion to be more physically active. It will help shake off any lingering Leonine lethargy and restore your energy levels, so you'll be prepared for what lies ahead.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Helping those in need at this time is laudable. But don't ignore your own needs, especially where it concerns your health. A medical checkup is a wise move.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good news:

Your outspoken views about a controversial on-the-job situation could find unexpectedly strong support from a most unlikely workplace faction.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to draw on your reservoir of spiritual strength to help someone special through a difficult time. Your loving attitude makes all the difference.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your proven leadership qualities make you the perfect person to take on an important workplace task.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although some compromise might need to be reached regarding your stand on an important issue, you'll still be able to get the most crucial points across.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A chance to make a career change carries both positive and uncertain possibilities. Best advice: Check it out thoroughly and don't be rushed into a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're still a staunch supporter of one side of an important issue. But be prepared to deal with new information that could cause you to question your current stand.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're perceptive and quick to act when you sense that someone needs help. You are an always-dependable friend.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Election Day is almost here. As in every pre-election period, claims and counter-claims have been heard... Half truths and exaggerations... Allegations, accusations and denials...

Our Constitution of the United States permits this. More importantly, it permits all of us to believe or disbelieve what we want. And still more important yet, it permits us the privilege and power to vote as we wish. There is no such thing as a controlled vote in our country. No one, absolutely no one but yourself can control your vote. Controlled votes are not permissible or possible. You are alone in the Ballot Box.

On Election Day you accept or reject the pleas and pressures. You have a freedom of choice. No one can impair your freedom to vote as you wish. Go to the polls. VOTE. On one was ever elected, no issue was ever decided by STAY-AT-HOME PEOPLE!...

For more information, call Lorraine Squatrito at 617-773-2798.

'Faith And Life' Lecture At Sacred Heart

The Catholic parishes of Quincy will sponsor the second annual "Faith And Life" lecture Sunday, Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in Sacred Heart Parish's lower church, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The event provides an opportunity adult faith formation for Catholics and those interested in Catholic theological thought.

The November topic is "Living Our Faith Between the Sundays," delivered by Dr. Ernest Collamati, chairperson of the Religious Studies Department at Regis College, Weston. Does Sunday morning have any connection to Monday? ... or to the rest of the week? At a time when the pace of life challenges us and contenders for our time and interests abound, what difference does weekly Eucharist make, if any?

The Nov. 4th evening is an opportunity to explore the possibilities of the good life rooted in community.

Prior to his appointment at Regis, Dr. Collamati was chairperson of the Department of Philosophy and Religion at St. Mary of the Woods College, Indiana. After receiving his B.A. in humanities at Providence College, he went on to graduate study in theology at the University of Notre Dame, where he received his master's and doctoral degrees.

The lecture is free and open to the public. Coffee, pastries and a time for fellowship will precede the lecture.

Catholic parishes of Quincy are: Holy Trinity Parish, St. John the Baptist Parish, Sacred Heart Parish, St. Joseph Parish, St. Ann Parish and St. Mary Parish.

Quincy Point Congregational Church

Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., will celebrate Sunday service at 10 a.m.

The Rev. Ann G. Suzedell's sermon is entitled "Going Home to Heaven."

Sherri Pitts will serve as deacon of the day.

Following the service all are welcome to fellowship hall for coffee and light refreshments.

On Wednesday, Nov. 7 at noon there will be a "Ladies Luncheon." Quincy Point Congregational Church Women will host the luncheon in unison with Bethany Church women.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church

The Rev. John Castricum will conduct the All Saints Sunday worship service at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., at 9:30 a.m.

Members of the Diaconate assisting in the sacrament of communion will be Mary and Waymon Giggey, Janice Hughes and Martin Gordon.

Pastor Castricum will deliver the sermon "Holy Fools" based on scripture Luke 6:20-31. Fellowship coffee hour will follow the service.

"Opening the Bible" bible study group continues to meet Thursday evenings at 7 in the Gordon Room.

The church will host the Holiday Shoppers Fair Saturday, Nov. 3 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Fellowship Hall.

There will be crafts, baked goods, jams and jellies, gift items, raffles and more.

Special craft activities for children will be on the stage. The snack bar will be open for breakfast and lunch.

Bethany Congregational Church

Bethany Congregational Church, celebrating its 175th anniversary, 18 Spear St., Quincy Center, will have a Sunday worship and Communion Service and church school, at 10 a.m.

"All Saints Day" will be held during the service for all departed members and friends of Bethany who passed away in the last year.

The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "The Wells of Salvation."

Childcare is available for infants and toddlers. Following the worship service there will be fellowship time in the Allen Parlor. Light refreshments will be served.

Quincy Community United Methodist Annual Beale Street Faire Nov. 10

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual Beale Street Faire Saturday, Nov. 10 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The fair will feature an array of handmade crafts, a plant table, a knit goods table including hand-knitted baby sweaters, afghans and mittens, as well as a white elephant table, a Thanksgiving and Christmas table with lots of holiday decorations, silent auctions, and a goodie table with an assortment of homemade baked goods.

There will also be an entertainment table featuring books, puzzles, tapes, toys and videos.

New this year will be a special area for kids upstairs, called Santa's workshop where kids will be able to make a craft while their parents shop. There will also be a cookie factory with an assortment of different kinds of cookies.

A homemade lunch will be available with burgers, hot dogs and meatball subs, chili and soup.

The fair highlight is an afternoon tea around 2 p.m. with pastries.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Quincy Community United Methodist

The Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor, will conduct the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Adult Bible Study Class begins at 9 a.m. and Sunday School for the children starts at 9:30 a.m.

Lector will be Wayne McCulley. Ushers are Doreen Dennehy and Gary Smith. Coffee hour hosts are Ginny Hawes, Jeanne Coullard and Dottie Hall. All are welcome. The church is handicap accessible.

A Mayor Who Will Lead

Tom Koch is talking about Quincy's future, while his opponent engages in personal attacks and blames others for his record.
With your help, we can bring real leadership to City Hall.

Tom's Plan For Quincy

Taxes

Every time you open your tax bill you see that taxes are going up. Yet Mayor Phelan brags about his $17 million surplus. It's $17 million of your money; meanwhile services are declining. That means the mayor is taxing you too much, yet he spins and misleads on this issue. Tom will provide honest leadership on this and every issue.

*Tom will change how City Hall does business:
Creating an efficient, cost-effective and responsive city government.*

School Building Projects

The new Quincy High School will cost taxpayers $46 million more, and there is no state funding guarantee for a new Central Middle School or Sterling Middle School because of Mayor Phelan's failure to lead.

Tom will provide the hard-line oversight of the high school project and manage future school projects to ensure the largest financial mistake in Quincy history is not repeated.

Tom and Christine and Abigail, Cornelius and Tom, Jr.

Crime

Quincy has a drug problem and it's driving our crime rate up. The city can no longer afford to hide behind a phony two-year-old study that even the FBI rejects. Simple statistics show that crime is up and the number of drug overdoses is 60 percent higher than the state average. Tom knows that drugs and crime are serious challenges.

Tom will double the size of our police department's drug unit and take the fight to the dealers. Tom's plan will make Quincy a truly safe city.

School Safety

Our city schools have repeatedly failed basic fire safety inspections. Yet the mayor is just pointing fingers at others, trying to dodge the problem.

Tom will order school personnel to meet and immediately bring every school into compliance.

Overdevelopment

Tom has seen what you have seen — development is changing the face of our residential neighborhoods. Look no further than the two huge condos on Beale Street and Clay Street.

Tom will lead on this issue by requiring that developers build only one- or two-family homes in our neighborhoods.

Traffic

We all sit in the same traffic every day, and we all know how much worse it has become. But after two years without a traffic engineer and six years with no leadership on this issue, it's time for a plan.

Tom will develop the first border-to-border traffic and parking plan for Quincy and use the technology we've already paid for to control and time traffic signals.

On November 6, Vote for Leadership

Koch Coasts To Upset Victory

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN (left) offers congratulations to Mayor-Elect Thomas Koch Tuesday night after Koch defeated the three-term incumbent. Phelan offered a smooth transition to Koch who will officially become the city's 33rd mayor in January.

Former Park Commissioner Tom Koch won the mayor's office Tuesday with a stunning upset victory over three-term incumbent William Phelan.

Koch, 44, defeated Phelan by a surprising 2,051 votes in what most thought would be one of the closest elections in recent years.

Koch took 54.1 percent of the vote with 12,672 to Phelan's 10,621 to become Quincy's 33rd mayor.

Phelan, with his wife, Tracey, graciously went to Koch's celebration party at the Granite Links Golf Club to congratulate Koch and offer to make the transition a smooth one.

Koch's victory to many was like a movie they had seen before but with a different ending.

That was the 2001 election when Phelan upset six-term Mayor James Sheets by 17 votes in the closest mayoral race in the city's history.

Tuesday's election was not seen as coming anywhere near that close but not as wide a margin as it turned out.

Voter turnout Tuesday was 44.05 percent.

Councillors at-large Joseph Finn, John Keenan and Michael McFarland were re-elected. Finn topped the field with 13,082 votes, followed by Keenan, 12,417 and McFarland 11,073.

For Dedication To Veterans, Community

Larry Norton Honored As Jewish War Veterans 'Citizen Of The Year'

Lawrence "Larry" Norton, "a veterans veteran" and advocate was honored Sunday by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans as their "Citizen Of The Year."

Norton, a Marine Corps, Purple Heart and veteran of the Vietnam War received the award for his dedication to veterans' causes and community service at a breakfast at Morrisette Legion Post.

The presentation was made by Past Commander Harvey Solomon, program co-chairman, on behalf of Commander Dr. Bertrand Shaffer, co-chairman Irving Isaacson and members of JWV Post.

Three mayors-William Phelan and former Mayors James Sheets and Frank McCauley-state and other city officials, veterans leaders, family and friends attended.

Norton is president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans of Quincy and past commander

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN presented a city citation to Larry Norton.

Morrisette Legion Post and the Quincy Veterans Council and District 6, Norfolk County American Legion.

He is also a member of the Military Order Purple Heart, William R. Caddy Marine Detachment and the DAV.

"Larry and Ruth (his wife) do such wonderful things not just for the veterans but for the city as a whole," said Phelan, who presented him with a city citation.

"Our city is really blessed to have folks like the Nortons

Senator Michael Morrissey said: "Larry is a little bit blessed as he is always helping veterans' groups first. That is really important as we are creating more veterans, we really need people like Larry so people understand what their commitment has been to our country."

State Rep. Bruce Ayers noting that Norton was a "great choice" for the award, said: "Here is a guy who doesn't want any credit. He likes to work behind the scenes. A veterans veteran. Someone who fought for his country in Vietnam and came back home to fight for veterans rights and to work with the legislature for veterans and family benefits and to help the POWs."

They presented him with a commendation and a state watch with the seal of it on behalf of the Quincy Beacon Hill delegation.

City Council President Doug Gutro said: "Larry

does much more than simply advocate for veterans causes. He does a lot of charitable work behind the scenes for those far less fortunate. He does so without seeking recognition.

"He is not only a role model for veterans, he is a role model for young people throughout the city and across the country."

Gutro presented Norton with a City Council citation with council colleagues gathered beside him.

John Keenan, chairman of the City Council Veterans Committee, praised Norton and his family for teaching patriotism in the city.

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly thanked Norton and his wife, Ruth, for "doing so much" in bringing about the Germantown Neighborhood Center and The Pantry that helps the needy.

Lorraine Ahearn, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, said, "I don't think I can think of anybody more deserving of this award. Larry has certainly earned it."

Norton's son, Michael, thanked those attending to "honor my father-to honor somebody that means the world to me."

David Raftery presented a citation to Norton on behalf of Norfolk County District Atty. William Keating.

Thomas Bolinda, a decorated Marine Corps veteran of the Vietnam War, retired Quincy police lieutenant and long-time friend praised him for his years of work for Vietnam War and other veterans-doing it quietly without fanfare.

"This is the type of man Larry is. Not doing it for glory, but doing it because it's the right thing to do."

Norton, said the JWV award was "a great honor" and stressed:

"We need to give back to our community. The youth of our city is the future. They are going to be voters. It is the young people coming out of high school, going to college. We want them to stay in the city."

"We want the brightest and the best. This city deserves that. This is a fantastic city."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Nov. 6, 1860, Abraham Lincoln is elected the 16th president of the United States over a deeply divided Democratic Party, becoming the first Republican to win the presidency.

• On Nov. 7, 1895, physicist William Conrad Röntgen becomes the first person to observe X-rays in the lab. It was initially believed that X-rays were harmless to skin, until an assistant who had worked extensively with X-rays and radiation died of skin cancer.

• On Nov. 11, 1918, at the 11th hour on the 11th day of the 11th month, World War I ends. The "War to End All Wars" left 9 million soldiers dead and 21 million wounded. At least 5 million civilians died from disease, starvation or exposure.

• On Nov. 10, 1925, actor Richard Burton is born. Richard Jenkins, the 12th of 13 children of a South Wales coal miner. He received a strong musical education from a singing teacher named Philip Burton and won a scholarship to Oxford. In gratitude, he later adopted his former teacher's last name as his stage name.

• On Nov. 7, 1940, only four months after its completion, the Tacoma Narrows Bridge, also known as "Galloping Gertie" for its tendency to undulate in the wind, suffers a spectacular collapse. Due to the vertical dipping and weaving, tourists had treated the bridge as a roller-coaster ride.

• On Nov. 9, 1961, record-store manager Brian Epstein goes to a Liverpool nightclub called the Cavern to hear the Beatles. Two months later, he became their manager and helped them land their first record deal.

• On Nov. 5, 1994, George Foreman, age 45, becomes boxing's oldest heavyweight champion when he defeats 26-year-old Michael Moorer in the 10th round of their WBA fight in Las Vegas. Foreman dedicated his upset win to "all my buddies in the nursing homes and all the guys in jail."

We Don't Endorse

Whenever we have a close mayor's race like the one this year, people ask us, "Is The Sun going to endorse one of the candidates?"

And the answer each time—except once—has been "no."

Frankly, we just don't believe in endorsing. We don't think residents of Quincy need us telling them who to vote for.

They certainly are tuned in and well qualified to make their own choice.

We respect their judgement and intelligence.

The Sun is now in its 40th year and we did make an exception once to our no-endorsement policy.

That was in 1977 in the heated mayoral campaign between incumbent Joseph LaRaia and challenger

TOBIN

Arthur Tobin, president of the City Council.

LaRaia came into office in 1975, upsetting Mayor Walter Hannon by 480 votes in that famed recount. That was a hard-hitting campaign.

The LaRaia-Tobin match was a slugfest.

LaRaia's two years as mayor were stormy. The city wasn't moving ahead but seemed to be standing still, frozen in controversy and division and feuding.

We believed a change was needed and endorsed Tobin. Most voters agreed with us. Tobin was elected by a 5,000-vote margin.

LaRaia was no quitter, though.

He came back to serve in the city council and ran twice again for mayor. He came within just 460 votes of unseating incumbent Frank McCauley in 1987.

That, no doubt, had something to do with McCauley deciding that four terms were enough and he did not seek a fifth.

He says a mayor can stay too long.

He was quoted recently as musing, "The key is to get out before they throw you out."

McCauley returned to the City Council and topped the field in 2003, was elected council president, and stepped into retirement.

His career spanned 32 years and he is the only person ever to be elected mayor, ward councillor, councillor at-large and school committee member.

LaRaia, incidentally served 20 years in the city council, second in length only to John Quinn's 24.

And as mayor he left a big legacy: a new City Hall.

A number of mayors before him talked about the need for a new City Hall but he did something about it. And deserves the credit.

That 1977 endorsement has been our only one, as The Sun begins its 40th year.

This year, incumbent William Phelan and challenger Tom Koch both had ample opportunity to present their case to the voters of Quincy.

There were three debates at North Quincy and Quincy High Schools, at the Quincy Access TV studio, all carried over Quincy Access TV, sponsored by The Patriot Ledger and in which The Sun participated.

There were candidates' nights throughout the city, campaign and pre-election news stories, news releases, coffee hours. And the candidates themselves knocking on doors, meeting with residents and discussing with them issues.

The Sun also invited the two candidates to state their case in their own words last week in the final issue before the election.

Quincy residents are most interested in what is going on in the community and especially at City Hall.

We are sure they were focused on this year's campaign and knew the issues.

They did not need us to tell them how to vote Tuesday.

If other newspapers want to endorse a candidate, that's their business and right. So, too, labor unions.

But we feel voters really don't need us telling them how or who to vote for. It's their decision. Not ours.

Instead of telling them how to vote we would do better to tell them to be sure to get out and vote—their choice.

In a close election, every vote really does count. The people spoke on Tuesday.

Gutro Honors 10 ENC Students For Environmental Work

Ward 5 City Councillor Doug Gutro honored 10 Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) students for their environmental work during a ceremony Tuesday at the Linda Whitting Lounge on the ENC campus.

For their project, the students, three ENC instructors, and several Quincy residents cut back an invasive reed, the phragmite, that is threatening local marsh habitats.

Phragmites, a wild reed, chokes off native plants, harbor mosquitoes, and block drainage. The reed thrives in areas where the salt water content in endangered marshes is too low.

Gutro cited the students' efforts to reduce the phragmite overgrowth which is endangering the college's Dickens Marsh. Dickens Marsh is part of Black's Creek Salt Marsh.

During the project, the group members spent four to six hours cutting and bundling the reed in Dickens Marsh. The volunteers were able to eliminate 10 to 20% of the reed which is not only an environmental menace and eyesore, but also a fire hazard.

"By recognizing student contributions through community service projects like this one, we can inspire volunteerism, build a stronger bond with ENC, and let students know that their contributions to our city make a difference," said Gutro.

"In my experience, ENC students, faculty and staff welcome the opportunity to give back to our city and have made a difference each time."

Gutro outlined a number of environmental projects in which the college's volunteers played important roles and he praised their dedication.

"I've worked with ENC faculty and staff on marsh and beach cleanups, water quality analysis at local ponds and other important projects that contribute to the quality of life in our city," said Gutro.

ENC Ecology Professor Jonathan Twining who joined the team hacking down the reeds said, "The residents and ENC will continue to work together to try and address the phragmites issue."

Seek Medical Gear To Loan

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS EARLY 1920'S real photo postcard is a view of what is known today as Post Island Road looking west towards Adams Shore. This was originally known as Shelton Road. Post Island and Adams Shore were the first part of the 500-acre Mt. Wollaston Farm to be subdivided and sold by Fanny Crownshield Adams, the widow of John Quincy Adams II who had died in 1894. The original Post Island subdivision had 34 lots with 10 of them on the waterfront extending down to low tide.

As shown here, seawalls and piers could be built without any of the restrictions in place today. In the distance on the right are cottages in Adams Shore. That subdivision was laid out by the Adams Shore Land Company with 267 lots for cottages and a large parcel for the Shelton Inn. Today, most of the cottages built there have been converted into year-round homes. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

DOVE Awarded $20,000 Grant

DOVE, Inc., the domestic violence agency and shelter based in Norfolk County, has been awarded a $20,000 grant from the Mary Kay Charitable Foundation this month, which is also National Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

DOVE is just one of 150 shelters throughout the country receiving a $20,000 grant from Mary Kay.

"I am thrilled to accept this grant from the Mary Kay Charitable Foundation on behalf of DOVE," said Executive Director Stephanie Flaherty. "This grant will help us continue our work to protect, educate, and care for victims and survivors of domestic violence."

According to Ryan

Rogers, Mary Kay Charitable Foundation board member and grandson of Mary Kay Ash, "We are hopeful that these grants will succeed in heightening the awareness of the insidious problem of domestic violence against women, as well as providing much-needed financial aid to local shelters on a grassroots level."

The Mary Kay Charitable Foundation was created in 1996 to fund research of cancers affecting women, and in 2000, expanded its mission to include the prevention of violence against women. Since then, more than $11 million has been awarded to women's shelters across the country.

Responds To Letter On Chinese Flag

The letters from Mistrs Hoadley and Strout concerning the Chinese flag controversy were as ignorant as they were provocative.

There is no Communist Flag. There are, however, flags of communist nations (where is the outrage at the Cuban flag?).

The United States recognizes the communist government of the China represented by this flag. This flag recently flew over Government Center in Boston to celebrate the October 1st anniversary.

If these veterans of foreign wars knew their American history as well as the rules for membership in their organization they would recognize and appreciate the sacrifices of veterans of the Boxer Rebellion, the conflict between China and Japan (before and during World War II) and the eventual withdrawal of the American mission (under General George C. Marshall). See the movies The Sand Pebbles with Steve McQueen and Flying Tigers with John Wayne.

As for being provocative: "If they" promises of further action are threats and bullying.

I agree the situation could benefit from leadership from our elected officials. I also think the community needs to take responsibility for the situation and build a future from all this history.

Fred Korematsu is dead. Wollaston does not need to become our Manzanar.

As a Cold War veteran, I am proud of my country and my service to defend democracy (even if the VFW doesn't want me as a member).

Multi-Million Dollar Government Center Planned

By FRANK McCAULEY

A self-supporting multi-million dollar Government Center and a 2,000 seat municipal auditorium are planned for Quincy.

Mayor-Senator James R. McIntyre disclosed last night he will file legislation this month to create a Quincy Government Center Commission to set the plans in motion.

His proposal would utilize the air rights over the MBTA rapid transit tracks in Quincy Center for the construction of a six to 12-story office building.

It would give Quincy a long needed new City Hall to replace the 124-year old one by using the first three floors for municipal offices and a City Council chamber.

An attached three-story building would house the 2,000 seating capacity auditorium, meeting and function rooms.

CHANGE IN REPORT CARDS TO START

Beginning with the report cards to be issued this week to pupils in the Secondary Schools of Quincy, there will be a change in the letters used for indicating marks.

The mark of "L" for "Low Poor but Passing" is to be replaced by a "D" and the mark for "Failure," formerly a "D," will now be a "F."

The change will mean that Quincy's marking systems will now be consistent with those of neighboring communities.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Scottish Dances, Music At Historical Society

Scottish dances, piping and drumming will highlight a special musical program sponsored by St. Andrew's Society of Massachusetts beginning 2 p.m. Sunday at the Quincy Historical Society at Adams Academy.

The event, the Scholarship Recipient Showcase, is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Each of the performers has been awarded a 2007 Dr. Robert D. McCurdy Memorial Scholarships through the Society for studies in the Celtic performing arts.

The showcase will feature Scottish dance by Sasha Miller and Cecilia and Felicity Pastrone, the piping of John Pastrone and the drumming of Philip Pastrone.

The event is sponsored in part by Walkers Shortbread Cookies. The society's goal is to preserve, promote and perpetuate the Scottish arts in Massachusetts. Membership is open to those interested in promoting the society's goals.

Quincy Art Association Novemberfest Saturday At Sacred Heart School

The Quincy Art Association will host a Novemberfest Saturday, Nov. 10 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Sacred Heart School Auditorium, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The event, to benefit programs at the Quincy Art Association, will feature an evening of authentic German fare and beverage.

Entertainment will be provided by King Ludwig's

Bavarian Band, famous throughout New England.

This family event will also include dancing, raffles, a bake sale, plenty of audience participation and of course great food and drink. There will be an additional charge for food and drink.

Dan Flynn will be the master of ceremonies for the evening.

For advance ticket sales call the Quincy Art Association, or visit Abigail's Crossing at 1360 Hancock St., Quincy or the Creating Pottery Place at 699 Adams St., Quincy.

Advanced tickets are $5 for adults and $2.50 for children, from 7 - 16 years of age. Children under 6 free.

Tickets will also be sold at the door: $6.00 for adults and $3.50 for children from 7 - 16 years of age. Children under 6 free.

QHS Drama Club To Present Neil Simon's 'Fools' Friday, Saturday

The Quincy High School Drama Club will present Neil Simon's comedy "Fools" Friday and Saturday, Nov. 9 and 10 at 8 p.m. in the Lloyd A. Hill Center for the Performing Arts at Quincy High School, 52 Coddington St., Quincy.

Tickets are $10 for students and seniors and $12 for adults. All seating is general admission.

Tickets can be reserved by calling Quincy High School at 617-984-8754.

In this production of "Fools," when young Leon Tolchinsky (Zach Dwyer) walks into the 1890s Russian village of Kulyenchikov to answer a help-wanted advertisement, he is taken aback. Because of an ancient curse, everyone in the village is an idiot. Tolchinsky then learns that he will have to break the curse, or become an idiot, too.

Dr. Zubritsky (Michael Mottola) and his wife, Lenya (Taylor Dennehey) will sent for Tolchinsky so he can educate their daughter, Sophia (Kayla Pendleton). At first Tolchinsky balks, but then realizes saving Sophia can save the whole village including himself.

In the comic fable, Tolchinsky learns he must get a Zubritsky to marry a Yousekevitch. The problem is, there is no love in the village, says Slovic (Sarah Dougenik) the butcher, because a fool cannot know the meaning of love. If QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL students Zach Dwyer, Taylor Dennehey and Kayla Pendleton in a scene from Neil Simon's "Fools." Shows run Friday and Saturday, Nov. 9 and 10 at 8 p.m. in the Lloyd A. Hill Center for the Performing Arts at QHS, 52 Coddington St., Quincy.

Tolchinsky doesn't succeed in his mission within 24 hours, he, too, will become a fool, trapped in Kulyenchikov forever.

Paul Conroy, serving as the new Quincy High School Drama Club advisor, is directing.

Other cast members include Amy Walsh as Snetsky, the shepherd; Michelle Rizza

as the magistrate; Tara McCarthy as Mishkin, the mail carrier; Jackie Dougenik as Yenchina, a fish-monger who sells flowers; Trisha Barungi; Brian Doyle, Dan Hennessey, Erin Hockey, Bonnie Madeiros, Sam Wiltshire, Danielle Woods as village idiots, and Anthony Acito as Count Gregor Yousekevitch.

Six Local Artists Historical Society Topic

Six major contemporary artists who were born or raised in Quincy or have significant ties to Quincy will be the focus of the November program of the Quincy Historical Society.

The meeting will begin at 7:30p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 15 at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Speaker Kathleen Bitetti, president of the Artists Foundation will discuss the works of the six artists and how their connection to Quincy played a role in their art.

Bitetti will focus particularly on how each artist's works were socially or politically relevant. She will focus on their common connection to Quincy.

Edward Fitzgerald, executive director of the Historical Society, will provide an historical context and discuss the history of earlier artists in Quincy.

Bitetti will examine the life and work of May Stevens, Wendy Jacob, Anne Spileos Scott, Michael Dowling, Eugene Richards, and her own work as an artist with Quincy connections.

All are welcome to attend. There is no charge for admission.

Strawberry Jell-O Salad

They said there's always room for Jell-O. And they'll be a lot of room in today's recipe for the light dessert.

I got the recipe from a friend Nancy Jacobs after tasting this tasty treat.

STRAWBERRY JELL-O SALAD

3 packages Jell-O (raspberry can also be used)

1 large can crushed pineapple

2 containers of frozen strawberries in syrup

8 ounces sour cream

Mix three cups of boiling water with three packages of Jell-O.

Add the strawberries and pineapple to the mixture.

Place half of the mixture in a large glass baking dish and refrigerate until it sets. (set aside the other half)

When this is set, spread the sour cream over the Jell-O and then add the other half of the Jell-O mixture over the sour cream and then refrigerate again until set.

Not only was it delicious, it looks so pretty with the sour cream shimmering through the Jell-O.

Mayor's Breakfast Honors Four, Raises Over $14,000 For Boy Scouts

The Mayor's Annual Breakfast honored four community leaders and raised more than $14,000 to benefit scouting in Quincy and the Boston Minutemen Council of Boy Scouts.

Recipients of Good Scout Awards at the recent breakfast, held at Granite Links Golf Club were:

Karl, Douglas and Steven Briggs of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Quincy and Peter Forman, president and CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

The four were recognized for their community service.

made the presentation to the Briggs family.

Karl Briggs, former president and CEO is now Chairman Emeritus of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

Douglas Briggs is president and CEO. Steven Briggs is senior vice president of claims. All three have been active supporters of the South Shore YMCA.

Steven's son, Colin, an Eagle Scout, Troop and Pack 66, was one of the speakers, recalling his experience in scouting.

Scouts participating in the opening flag presentation were from Troop 6, Houghs Neck Congregational Church; Pack and Troop 42, St. John's Church, and Pack 21, St. Ann's Church.

Attending with them were their leaders, Ray Theberge, Marilyn Belovarac and Renee Smith.

Matt Thornton, Scout Executive, Boston Minuteman Council and Ray Theberge, chairman Blue Hill District, presented scouting updates.

Past recipients of the Good Scout Award are:

Cub Scouts participating at the breakfast were:

Paul Trubiano, Christopher Buzzell, Raymond Parker, Brian Leach, Owen Doherty, Andrew Cristina, Paul Donahue, Eric Hellmuth and Lucien Theberge.

OBITUARIES

Marjorie M. Mitchell, 93 Homemaker

A funeral Mass for Marjorie M. (Dewey) Mitchell, 93, of Quincy, a homemaker, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 11 a.m. in Saint John the Baptist Church, 44 School St., Quincy.

Mrs. Mitchell died Monday at the Cedar Hill Health Care Center in Randolph after a brief illness.

Born and raised in Quincy, she was educated in Quincy schools and graduated from Quincy High School.

She had lived in Quincy most of her life. She previously lived in Dorchester.

Mrs. Mitchell was a long-time member of St. John the Baptist Parish in Quincy.

Wife of the late John J. Mitchell, she is survived by a son, John J. Mitchell of Marshfield; a daughter, Marjorie M. Gray of Salem, N.H.; and four grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

MARJORIE MITCHELL

Burial will be in Mount Calvary Cemetery, Boston.

Visiting hours are today (Thursday) from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. at the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association, 330 Congress St., 5th floor, Boston, MA 02210.

Henry S. Svizzero Owned Telecom TV

A funeral service for Henry S. Svizzero of Quincy, owner of Telecom TV in Quincy Point, will be held Friday at 10:30 a.m. in the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy Center.

Mr. Svizzero died Monday at home.

Born and raised in Quincy, he was a lifelong Quincy resident. He attended Quincy schools and graduated from the Quincy Trade School and Dumont Lab.

He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II.

As the owner of Beacon TV in Brookline, and later Telecom TV in Quincy Point, Mr. Svizzero was known to close his shop on Wednesdays to pursue his real avocation: fishing from his boat.

He enjoyed eating, bowling, photography and taking movies and slides of family events.

He also completed a two-room addition to his home.

He is survived by his wife, Ursula (DeRosa) Svizzero; a son, Stephen M. Svizzero of Quincy; two daughters, Jean Marie Svizzero of Brookline and Nancy A. Gemmel of Abington; a sister, Lucy Salvatore of Quincy; two brothers, John Svizzero of Duxbury and Dino Svizzero of Florida; five grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

HENRY S. SVIZZERO

Burial with military honors will be in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Visiting hours are today (Thursday) from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. at the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home.

A PET BLESSING for Maggie, held by her owner, Janet Thomas, is offered by Rev. David Hefling of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church during the recent St. Francis Day Pet Blessing ceremony at the Wollaston church.

Atty. Maria DeLuzio On Women's Council

Quincy Atty. Maria DeLuzio has been appointed to the Advisory Council of the Women's Leadership Institute at Bentley College, Waltham.

DeLuzio is a partner in the litigation and employment practices unit of the law firm, Hiatt & Hoke LLP, 1250 Hancock St., Suite 504S, Quincy. DeLuzio is, also, the mother of two girls, ages four and two.

The Advisory Council promotes the advancement of women through research, educational programs and events servicing the needs of women at all stages of their professional development.

"It is a privilege to serve on a committee with so many highly accomplished and successful women from the Greater Boston business community," said DeLuzio.

"I am delighted to be asked to help an organization whose goal is to help women advance in their careers and reach the upper levels of business and the professions."

The law firm's co-founder Matthew Hiatt said, "Ms. DeLuzio is a natural for such a position. Not only does she possess an extraordinary degree of experience, but she has a very strong sense of personal obligation to support other women as they strive to reach their goals in their chosen professions."

MORE FOR YOU HERE AT HOME

LIDO CONSULTING GROUP, INC.: YOUR RESULTS-DRIVEN PARTNER

Only you know where you want to take your business, but sometimes you need a little help to make it happen. The partners at LIDO know that your business is more than just a name on a door. It's a reflection of you, your vision, and all of your hard work. Whether your business is just starting out or has been around for a long time, LIDO can help you with all of your marketing, public relations, and customer relationship needs.

Have you ever asked, "Is there a way to bring more customers through the door, encourage them to buy, and get them to come back -- again and again? And is there a way I can do all of this without spending a lot of money?" The LIDO answer is "Yes".

WHY LIDO?

LIDO was started by Quincy residents, Lisa Morrissey and Donna Mavromates, two marketing professionals who have nearly 30 years of combined marketing, public relations, business ownership and consumer relations experience. They started LIDO because they believe that all businesses -- regardless of their size or marketing budget -- deserve to have access to the resources they need to help their business grow, all at an affordable rate. The partners at LIDO know firsthand what it's like to start and run a business and to operate effectively on a limited budget, and they bring that personalized experience and expertise to you and your business.

LIDO will get to know your business almost as well as you do, develop solutions, and get results. They partner with businesses of all sizes and types. Small or large, retail or service - LIDO focuses on increasing your sales and customer loyalty. They work with you to implement and expand your marketing efforts, or help you design and execute a results-oriented plan that fits within your budget.

LIDO's OFFERINGS:

LIDO can help you market your business, launch a new service or product; look at your business with a fresh perspective; find and develop hidden opportunities for growth; bring customers through the door; improve customer loyalty; and enhance your business' public image. They provide full service print, web and email marketing; marketing plan creation and execution; advertising services; direct mail; and public relations services.

LIDO is located at 79 Parkway in Quincy Center. Please visit them at www.lidocg.com or call (781) 974-8965 for more information about how LIDO can help your business grow!

MDA Lock-up Fundraiser Nov. 14

Quincy community leaders and executives will be "arrested" for having big hearts and ordered to serve time in a mock jailhouse Wednesday, Nov. 14, during the "MDA Lock-up," a one-day fundraiser for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The "warrants" for the arrests will describe the "big hearts" of the suspects who will have to serve time at the Fours Restaurant where a complimentary bread and water buffet will be served.

Volunteers hope to raise over $10,000 through the local lock-up event. All funds will be earmarked specifically for those in the Boston South area who are affected by a neuromuscular disease.

The goal of MDA, a non-profit agency, is to defeat neuromuscular diseases through worldwide research, comprehensive services and education.

The group operates some 230 clinics worldwide, including five area clinics, local support groups and a summer camp. The local office is at 275 Turnpike St., Suite 201, Canton.

Warrants have already been prepared involving Quincy's Human Resource Director Roberta Kety, Quincy Public Library Director Ann McLaughlin and William Harding of Bethany Congregational Church.

Interested persons may seek warrants for persons with "big hearts" or may contribute bail money for jailed offenders.

For more information, call 1-781-575-1881.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Complying With Regulations

You know it doesn't take long for something to occur prompting an article from me. Once something is brought to my attention through a conversation or news report, there's the urge to use it to convey some aspect of fire prevention to the public.

Reading excerpts from that tragic West Roxbury fire; two aspects of that incident caught my attention. The fire took place in a restaurant. We inspect many of the bars, restaurants and nightclubs with the city, attempting to convey the importance of adhering to code and maintaining a safe premise 365 days a year.

There are many things we look at during an inspection while there us much that we emphasize as well. For instance, we convey to owners and managers that it is imperative that they have some evacuation plan in place in the event they witness smoke or fire within their establishment. We emphasize the importance of evacuating patrons immediately, and without delay.

This incident in West Roxbury demonstrates that importance. The patrons were evacuated, while the tragedy appeared to occur soon after when the fire apparatus arrived. That would have taken mere minutes. The loss was great enough as it was, how much greater if there had been hesitation in evacuation of patrons as well.

Also emphasized, is the importance of scheduled hood and ductwork cleaning in kitchens. Apparently there was an issue with these in that West Roxbury restaurant. During our inspection, the owners sign a document acknowledging that they are aware of the code pertaining to hoods and ductwork cleaning, the need for an evacuation plan and any other code pertaining to their establishment. It is all specified in black and white to keep the owners informed and encourage that year round compliance.

The State code defers to the NFPA Standard 96. In that, hoods, ductwork, etc., must be cleaned to bare metal at frequent intervals and inspected every six months. For years now, establishments have received flyers pertaining to this and all other code. It is emphasized as well during each yearly inspection. If that emphasis wasn't enough, this tragic fire in West Roxbury should be.

Once again I take this opportunity to impress upon the owners of these establishments that we are here to answer any questions that they may have regarding the requirements of code for their establishments. For years we've taken every opportunity to detail the specific requirements in writing for their reference. This recent fire is another example of why we have been so vigilant in doing so.

Thank you!

FOOT NOTES

by Joel Chariton, D.P.M.

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

ORTHOTICS AND GOOD SHOES CAN HELP DIABETIC FEET

People with diabetes have to be very careful with their feet. They need frequent visits to the podiatrist, careful foot maintenance, and the right shoes and orthotics, which are shoe inserts. An orthotic made of a material called plastazote is the best bet for the diabetic foot. The material molds to the foot and can therefore accommodate hot spots in the foot. Appropriate footwear is also vitally important to the diabetic foot. Shoes should have a wide toe box, and they should also have insoles that can be removed so that orthotics (such as the plastazote ones mentioned) can be used. A rocker sole on the shoe is also helpful, as is a firm heel counter.

November is National Diabetes Month, conceived to communicate the seriousness of the disease and the importance of proper diabetes control. We've seen the results of untreated and self-treated diabetic foot problems, and we cannot advise strongly enough for diabetics to seek professional care. Whether you are dealing with diabetes-related problems or feet that just hurt, we hope you'll call us for an appointment at 781-986-3668, QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals. We can also help you diabetic shoes and orthotics.

P.S.: If you can't find a shoe with all the features you need, try plugging "diabetic shoe" into an Internet search engine, and you will find several online stores that sell shoes designed specifically for the diabetic foot.

May Be Most Expensive Race Ever

Phelan Spends $289,613, Koch $174,366

By TOM HENSHAW

The race between mayoral candidates William Phelan and Thomas Koch that ended Tuesday may go down as the most expensive in Quincy's 118-year history as a city.

As of the Oct. 19 closing date, Phelan, seeking reelection to a fourth term in the corner office, reported a beginning balance of $189,435.23, receipts of $101,584 and expenditures of $289,613.63, leaving a balance of $101,405.60.

In the same puntillate report, Koch, who began his campaign with a January announcement, reported a zero starting balance, receipts of $219,526 and expenditures of $174,366.88, leaving a balance of $48,159.12 for the last week of campaigning.

A final financial report is due 30 days after the election.

Among the top contributors for Phelan were Simon Fireman and developers Tom Flatley, Jay Cashman, Peter and William O'Connell and Mark Dickinson giving to the $500 limit each.

Chris Gabrieli, who ran for governor of the state in 2006, and his wife, Hilary, gave $1,000 to the Phelan campaign as did Peter and Linda Racicot and Timothy and Susan Fallon of Fallon Ambulance.

Former State Attorney General Frank Bellotti donated $250 to Phelan in addition to his well-publicized letter calling him "the best mayor Quincy ever had."

another $500 and Theresa Bellotti-Palmieri gave $450.

The upper echelons of city employees are listed in Phelan's report — Planning Director Dennis Harrington $250, Thomas & Kathleen Largey $1,000, Library Director Ann McLaughlin $125, City Solicitor Monica Conyngham $500, Police Chief Robert Crowley $250, DPW Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell $300.

Veterans Services Director Henry Bradley $125, Asian Liaison John Chen $375, Chief Assessor Marion Fantuccio $250, Building Inspector Jay and Gloria Duca $375, School Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro $250 and Health Commissioner Andrew Schee $250.

Some familiar names out of the past appeared on Phelan's list, too, like former QHA Director John Comer $225, Mayor Joseph LaRaia $125, City Solicitor Thomas Williams, President of the Chamber of Commerce Ron Zoolack $125 and Mayor Walter and Patricia Hannon $500.

Koch's list of contributors is every bit as impressive, starting with the city employees' unions. The Firefighters, Police Patrolmen, Public Employees and Public Safety Unions all sent in the maximum $500. Bruce Tait, president of the Patrolmen's Union, added $100.

The large Koch family was an ATM machine for their candidate with $500 each coming from Barry, Christine, Thomas, Marylou, Matthew, Doris, Joseph, Simone, Linda, and the family of Richard J. Koch Jr., police chief of Brewster, $1,500.

The Carpenter's Unions and Councils PAC chipped in $2,000 to the Koch cause, the hardware man Robert and Cheryl Curry added $1,000, Funeral Directors Edward Keohane and Michelle Lydon $500 each, and the Committees to Elect John Gillis and Joseph Newton $100.

The family of Walter White, fired by Phelan as building inspector, now the building commissioner of Brookline, contributed $1,000 to Koch's campaign; Emily Lebo, director of technical education, gave $250 and Ernest Arienti of the firefighters $125.

Theresa Bellotti-Palmieri and Henry Bradley covered their bets by giving $100 each to the Koch coffers as well as contributing to Phelan's campaign.

Contributors from out of the past who gave to Koch included former Purchasing Agent Robert Denvir $300, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath $500, Mayoral Aide Bernice Mader $150, Planning Director Richie and Kathleen Meade $500, and Mayoral Aide Rhonda Merrill.

A voice from the real distant past on the Koch team was former School Committee woman Ruth Scanlan, now living in Randleman, N. C., who gave $100.

Phelan Raises $201,584

Ng Council At-Large Top Raiser, Spender

Strangely, the one candidate of the five who were running for the three at-large seats on the City Council who has raised the most money is the one with the least political experience.

Victor Ng noted in his report due eight days before the election that he had raised $29,309.39, mostly in $100 donations from fellow Asians, and spent a total of $15,976.10.

A second first time candidate for the at-large seat, Jennifer Logue, daughter of former Mayor Francis McCauley, reported receiving $10,840.68 and spending $5,337.05.

The three incumbent candidates, Michael McFarland, John Keenan and Joseph Finn, all had the luxury of starting their 1007 campaigns with money left over from previous bids.

McFarland started with a balance of $21,387.36, raised $19,225.63 and spent $9,580.98.

Finn had $6,996.99 in his campaign treasury to start, raised $9,835 and spent $6,471.

Keenan had $16,756.83 at his disposal when he announced for reelection, raised only $16.77 and spent $7,334.65.

The biggest contributors to Ng's campaign were the Ng Family Benevolent Association of Boston's Chinatown, $1,000, Deborah Lam of Marblehead, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Locals 103 and 2222 $500 apiece.

Tops among the Logue contributors were her father and mother. Frank and Sandra, who gave $500 each.

Finn's best contributors were two labor organizations, the Massachusetts Laborers District Council and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 103, each of whom gave $500.

Most of McFarland's contributions came in chunks of $100, most notably from former Attorney General Frank Bellotti, City Solicitor Monica Conyngham, former QHA Director John Comer, Congressman Bill Delahunt, School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro and ex-Mayor Walter Hannon.

The only race for the City Council on the ward level was that between incumbent Brian McNamee and Jimmy Liang in Ward 6 and that turned out to be a fund raising free-for-all.

McNamee, who was seeking a second term on the Council, started with a balance of $5,251.34, raised $22,816 and spent $24,109.74.

Liang, who had previously run twice for a-large seats, had $107.39 in his campaign treasury when the period started, raised $26,696 and spent 26,419.33.

Biggest contributors to McNamee war chest was the auto dealer Daniel Quirk, who donated $750, Carol Stenmon $500, restaurateurs Cecilia and Kwong Yu of Milton $600 and Uncle Sam Rounseville $200.

Liang's report listed his biggest contributors as Edward Smith, John Liang, Paul and Geraldine Daly, Richard Manginelli and the Coyne Family, as well as loans from Xin Xia Liang $6,000 and Tony Liang $2,000.

Unopposed for reelection were ward councillors Leo Kelly in Ward 1, Daniel Raymondi in Ward 2, Kevin Coughlin in Ward 3, Jay Davis in Ward 4 and Doug Gutro in Ward 5. All filed financial reports just the same.

Kelly reported a balance of $17,651.41 going in, $5050 in receipts and $7,476.67 in expenditures.

Raymondi $178,223.44 balance, $5,096.48 raised, $2,717.62 spent.

Coughlin $10,131.82 balance, $5,864 raised, $5,273.30 spent.

Davis $9,644.59 balance, $5,933 raised, $7,294.43 spent.

Gutro $24,891.16 balance, $16,157.45 raised, $9,846.91 spent.

McCarthy Top Spender For School Committee

David McCarthy, seeking his second term, was the big fundraiser and spender among the five candidates for three seats on the School Committee in Tuesday's election.

In his financial report due eight days before the election, McCarthy reported a balance of $4,825.91 on Jan. 1 and receipts of $9,500 and expenditures of $8,393.48 since then.

Elaine Dwyer started with a kitty of only $10.11 but raised $3,740 and spent $1869.73.

The other three candidates, Nicholas Puleo, JoAnn Bragg and Eileen

Mullen, all opened their campaigns with nothing in their reserves.

Puleo, the rookie politician, raised $6,337.52 and spent $4,585.04; Bragg, seeking a return to the committee after a two-year absence, raised $9,498 and spent $3,915; incumbent Mullen raised $5,688 and spent $3,506.89.

McCarthy's donors included Mike Gilcoine and IBEW Local 103 for $500 each, Kevin Leary for $250 and the rest for sums of $100 and $50.

Bellotti Speaks On Safety Programs At Beechwood Breakfast

Over 50 persons recently attended Sheriff Michael Bellotti's safety demonstration at the first session of the "Season of Safety" program at Beechwood Community Center, East Squantum St., North Quincy.

Bellotti, Norfolk County's highest-ranking public safety official, launched Beechwood's Current Events Breakfast series with his session on safety.

Executive Director Sharon Beals said October is designated as "Safety Season" at the Beechwood Center.

Bellotti described Project

LifeSaver and all of his department's Community Service Outreach Programs and explained how each program aids the community.

Both Bellotti and his safety administrator Bill (Doc) Knight, demonstrated the detector tool used in the county's Project LifeSaver program and offered tips on home and road security.

Knight explained how the detector tool, which resembles a television roof antenna, is used to locate lost persons.

In addition, Beechwood's seniors learned about special programs targeting their situation. For example, the sheriff's department developed a Safe Driver Program which offers older drivers refresher-driving classes in conjunction with AARP.

The sheriff's team also outlined the "Are You O.K.?" program which recommends a phone call a day, every day, for each senior.

The county also initiated the Triad, a three-way link between cities and towns, their police departments, and the sheriff's office.

According to Beals, additional safety programs in October will include visits from staffs of the fire department, the National Fire Prevention Association, Fallon ambulance and the Quincy Police Department.

Escaped Quincy Court Prisoner Still Sought

The 37-year old prisoner who pulled a real-life Houdini disappearing act from Quincy Court House Monday was still at large late Tuesday, according to David Weber, spokesman for the Norfolk County Sheriff's office.

Weber said the escaped prisoner, Sean Ciulla, was wearing leg irons and arm chains when he escaped from court custody late Monday afternoon. He theorizes that Ciulla was able, possibly with an accomplice, to obtain bolt-cutters or a ride in car.

"It gets dark earlier now," Weber said, suggesting that Ciulla hid in the darkness around 5:20 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. when the transport van left Quincy for Norfolk County Jail in Dedham.

"He remains escaped. We have not brought him into custody," Weber said Tuesday, noting that all local jurisdictions had been notified and police are checking addresses and contacts for the county.

"He's a non-violent offender," Weber said of Ciulla's past record. The suspect had been arraigned on misdemeanor charges, one for a third offense of shoplifting and, the second, for giving police officers a false name.

However, Weber also, described the escapee as a substance abuser who could be suffering withdrawal symptoms.

"He's a criminal," said Weber. "He was arrested in Braintree over the weekend." The arrest was his third offense for shoplifting.

Prisoners are routinely transferred from court custody to the custody of the various jurisdictions. They are transported by van to Norfolk County Jail in Dedham.

Weber acknowledged that Ciulla's escape went undetected until the transport van returned to the jail. The count was one prisoner short.

"We're not finished with our investigation," Weber said.

Asked whether there is a head count of prisoners when the van leaves Quincy District Court, Weber said, "That's all part of the investigation."

Webersaid he did not have Ciulla's mug shot available. The suspect is a white male, 5 feet, 7 inches, weighing approximately 118 pounds. He has brown hair and blue eyes and was last seen wearing a Red Sox cap.

Persons who have seen Ciulla or know of his whereabouts are asked to call 911.

REAL ESTATE

Some Tips To Become An Informed Homebuyer

(NU) - If you've been watching the real estate market recently, you know that many homeowners are in a state of peril.

With interest rates on the rise and home prices on the decline, many homeowners are facing foreclosure.

The first six months of 2007 were marked by a 58 percent increase in home foreclosures, which means that one in every 134 U.S. households is headed toward foreclosure. And while these numbers don't bode well for homeowners, homebuyers, especially first-time homebuyers, should consider taking advantage of this market.

Sellers are reducing their prices, making the environment ideal for aspiring owners, but buyers need to be educated.

The experts at Market Street Mortgage are putting prospective homebuyers on the right path to home ownership with these tips:

• Detail your finances:

Look at your credit income and your monthly expenses to determine what you have leftover. Examine your expenses to see if there are any cutbacks you can make.

• Determine a price range:

Based on your budget, decide how much you can comfortably spend on a mortgage payment each month. Once you have that number, use a mortgage calculator online (www.bankrate.com/mortgage) or talk to a mortgage consultant to help you determine your price.

• Check out the Federal Housing Administration loan options:

This is a type of loan that has been around for more than 70 years and is even backed by the federal government. These loans give you the ability to have a very low down payment-if you qualify. It also allows for financing assistance from certain programs that may be in your area.

• Consider your future:

Think about your future in order to better determine what mortgage option will work best. Do you see yourself in the home for just three years, or are you and your spouse thinking of starting a family and wanting this to be your family home? All of these considerations are important in determining what mortgage will work best for you.

• Shop around:

Have your mortgage consultant compare different loan products for you. An adjustable-rate mortgage may have a great rate, but have you compared that to a fixed-rate mortgage? If the rates are similar, the fixed-rate mortgage might be a smart move.

• Enlist an expert:

Work

with a real estate agent who will be patient and provide the expertise to help you through the process.

Insulation R-Value

Q. I read in a column of yours that home insulation should have a "proper R-value." What does that mean? — Doris L., Pittsburgh

A. R-value refers to the level of resistance to heat flow that insulation — from fiberglass attic insulation to pipe wrap — provides. Heat, of course, tends to radiate outward and upward, and in the winter especially, one wants to control how much of that heat escapes from the home and the water supply.

So, when choosing the type of insulation, the R-value is a more important consideration than the thickness or thinness of the insulating material. More is not necessarily better when it comes to home insulation. The R-value, the type of insulating material and how it is used are the deciding factors in effective insulation that keeps a home comfortable and pushes energy costs down.

What's the best R-value for your home? The first thing to find out is the value required for your climate zone. U.S. building codes require a minimum R-value insulation for homes — in most zones, the value for, say, insulative wall sheathing is R-11.

The Oak Ridge National Laboratory Building Envelope and Materials Program offers a very informative Web site with information on all types of home insulation. Its fact sheet on insulation can be found at <http://www.ornl.gov/sci/roofs+walls/facts/index.htm>. Included in the HTML version of this fact sheet is a handy calculator called Zip-Code, which gives the recommended R-value for insulation — and the estimated cost of installation — depending on where you live, what part of the house you need to insulate and what type of heating system you use. Read through the contents to learn about home insulation, the best ways to install it and whether you can install certain types of insulation yourself or should hire a contractor to do the job.

Just like Family
 by Jay
 With James it wasn't about making a sale, it was about developing a relationship with us. He had the ability to walk into a house and see its' potential. He took the time to get to know what we wanted, a family-friendly atmosphere with room for the kids to play. He found us our dream home and even came by three months later to help open our pool! He wasn't just our CENTURY 21 Annex Realty agent, he became our friend.

Nutrition, Exercise Go Hand in Hand

Q. My exercise routine over the past six months has been great. I have more energy, feel stronger and have more flexibility than anytime in the past 10 years. Yet with all of these accomplishments, I still have not reached my weight goal. I must admit that I have focused more on my exercise than my nutrition; however, I thought I would have seen more weight changes by now. Are my eating habits keeping me from reaching my goal?

A. Making the commitment to consistently take part in an exercise program is a great accomplishment. There is no question that exercise is beneficial and necessary. The effort needed to exercise is often seen as enough to get the results you desire. However, your nutritional habits are a major factor in your goal to lose weight, body fat and even gain lean muscle.

What you put in your body helps maintain what is going on in your body. This makes it absolutely imperative to monitor what, when and how much you intake. Following a balanced nutritional plan, designed for you, will help your body get the needed nutrients and energy to recover from workouts, build lean muscle and supply the other organs of your body to function efficiently.

The combination of proper nutrition and exercise can be achieved one piece at a time. Since you have already begun your exercise program and have seen results, slowly begin to incorporate better nutritional habits each week. Oftentimes we change what is easiest for us to change first and slowly progress to making more difficult changes. If your nutritional habits are more challenging for you to change, begin making small changes and increase your commitment to those changes each week.

Creating a healthy eating environment may take time, but be patient and remember to start small. For example, if you do not eat breakfast, start off your week by eating breakfast. Once eating breakfast becomes easier, make another change. Keep making these changes until you are regularly eating a sensible and healthful diet.

Exercise without proper nutrition, and proper nutrition without exercise, can produce results, although the results you'll achieve when completed in tandem will be much greater.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Conway Team Raises Money In Cancer Walk

Agents from Jack Conway & Co. Realtors Quincy office recently joined nearly 1,500 walkers and volunteers who helped fight cancer at the 10th Annual Quincy Medical Center Cancer Walk to benefit the Marie A. Curry Fund.

New records were set in all categories during the event at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park in Quincy, including the most number of walkers and walk teams, most funds raised on-line, and the most raised overall, which is currently at $199,500 and growing.

The Conway-Quincy office raised more than $1,000. The walking team was organized by Rose Kelley, and walkers included sales manager Diane Furness, and agents Jennifer Kern, Karen Boisson (and daughter Cristina), Joyce Delgado, Helen Shiner and Renee Czajkowski (with son Phillip).

The Marie A. Curry Fund focuses on encouraging prevention and early detection of cancer and enhancing ac-

Energize Your Day – Seven Days A Week

By MINDY HERMANN, R.D.

(NAPS) – Looking for easy ways to boost your energy every day? Try these energizing tips to help get you through the week.

Monday – East breakfast. Adults who regularly eat breakfast, including cereal, feel better physically and emotionally than adults who don't.

Tuesday – Give your brown-bag lunch a makeover. "Make your sandwich with the high-energy goodness of whole grain bread. Complex carbohydrates are absorbed more slowly for longer-lasting energy," says Dayle Hayes, M.S., R.D., president of Nutrition for the Future.

Wednesday – Be a smart snacker. "Enjoy protein-rich nuts or cottage cheese to help keep your energy up. To power up for a meeting or a trip to the gym, grab a carton of yogurt or half a sandwich with lean meat or poultry," advises Patricia Bannan, M.S., R.D., a Los Angeles-based nutrition consultant and expert for HealthETips.com.

Thursday – Plan for a p.m. boost. Maximize your evening energy by cooking a quick and colorful dinner stir-fry with lean beef strips and crunchy veggies such as broccoli, peppers and carrot slices. "The vitamin C in the veggies helps you absorb the iron from the beef," explains Hayes. "Your red blood cells need that iron to carry oxygen to all of your cells."

Friday – Move it. Moving your body in a way that you enjoy can boost energy and lift spirits, says Hayes. Think about activity as fun rather than exercise. "Choose fitness activities that you love, like dancing or swimming. Then you'll think of the activity in a positive way and you'll be enthusiastic about making fitness a priority."

Saturday – Whip up a batch of muffins or a quick bread for brunch.

Sunday – Get enough sleep. At the end of a busy week, you might want to sleep a bit later in the morning or go to bed earlier to recharge batteries. Alcohol, caffeine and heavy, high-fat meals may affect the quality of your sleep.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

DOWN TO THE ROOTS

The advanced form of gum disease known as "periodontitis" occurs when sticky plaque on and around teeth hardens into calculus (tartar). As it does so, the gums begin to pull away from the teeth, and pockets form between teeth and gums. In time, this can lead to disintegration of gum tissue and bone to the point where teeth loosen and fall out. To avoid this outcome, teeth may be subjected to the standard treatment for periodontitis known as scaling and root planing. It involves first scraping the surface of the tooth below the gumline. Then, root planing removes the bacteria-contaminated surface of the root to clean and make it more acceptable for gum and tissue reattachment.

We take a comprehensive approach to your dental health and well-being. Oral health is critically important to general health as well as to personal appearance and self-image. We want you to not only have strong, healthy teeth, but to look good and feel good as well. If you have concerns or questions about the well-being of your teeth and gums, call us today at 617-479-6220. Please don't let unwarranted fears keep you from maintaining your dental health. Your chances of needing extensive treatment in the future because of neglect today are a far greater concern. The key to dental health is routine preventive care. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Scaling and root planing may be accompanied by treatment with antibiotics.

Red Raiders Defeat W-H For Fifth Win

By SEAN BRENNAN

This year the North Quincy Red Raider football team is winning both pretty and ugly. But the good news for the program and its fans is the team has the most wins (five) in a season since they finished the 2002 campaign with four wins.

Last Friday night at Whitman-Hanson High School, the Raiders won a sloppy game 19-14 to bring their regular season record to 5-4 overall and 4-3 in the Atlantic Coast League.

"At this point in the season we are fortunate to be in the situation that we are in (with a 5-4 record)," said head coach Jim Connor. "Good things are going our way, but we still have a lot of work that needs to be done over the final two games. Against Whitman-Hanson, it was a sloppy game all-around, but once we got back to the basics, we did enough to come away with the win."

FOOTBALL

In last week's game, Whitman-Hanson scored first against the Red Raiders when running back Matt Colcough scored from 12 yards out late in the opening quarter. The point after attempt was converted and after one quarter of play the score was 7-0.

The Red Raiders would do all their scoring in a highly entertaining second quarter. Junior running back Jon Cahill got North Quincy on the board early in the second with a four-yard touchdown run that capped off a long scoring drive. The point after attempt failed and the score was 7-6.

On Whitman-Hanson's ensuing possession, the Red Raider defense came up with the play of the game. Taking advantage of a fumbled snap on a third down play by W-H deep in their own end of the field, North Quincy's Dennis Martin recovered the fumble and scored from 26-yards out to put the Raiders up 12-7.

"We really took advantage of the opportunities that came to us on defense," added Connor. "After Cahill scored early in the second quarter, our defense came up big with that fumble and touchdown return. The difference in the game was that we capitalized when given the chance and they could not do that against us."

Whitman-Hanson could do nothing against the Red Raider defense after the Martin fumble return, and when the Raiders got the ball back, their offense drove the length of the field for the second time in the quarter.

Once again it was Cahill who put the finishing touches on the scoring drive. He scored from 12-yards out after taking the handoff from Martin and running behind Presidents Drop 27-0 Decision To Plymouth So.

The Quincy Presidents were shutout by Plymouth South High School 27-0 last Friday night. The game was played on the road down in Plymouth.

The loss drops the team's overall record to 2-6 overall and 2-5 in the Atlantic Coast League. Plymouth South, with the win, upped its record to 5-4.

With just one game to go before the annual Thanksgiving Day showdown against the North Quincy Red Raiders (5-4 overall, 4-3 in the ACL), the Presidents will look to get back on the winning track this Saturday against Sandwich High School. Kickoff is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. in Sandwich.

Against Plymouth South, Quincy could not find a defensive scheme to stop quarterback Derrick Duquette and the high-flying Plymouth South passing attack. In the first quarter, Plymouth South took the opening drive deep into Presidents' territory on the strength of Duquette's arm. After driving into the Presidents' redzone, Plymouth South faced a second and goal from the two-yard line.

Duquette took the snap from under center and found a wide-open Steve Malcom in the back of the end zone for the early 6-0 lead. The point after attempt was successfully converted and after one quarter of play, Plymouth South held a 7-0 lead.

The second quarter was more of the same for Quincy. Unable to move the ball on the Plymouth South defense, the Presidents were forced to punt the ball back, and Duquette and the offense once again came through with another long scoring drive deep into Presidents' territory.

Duquette connected with Brad Girouard on a 17-yard touchdown pass on first down and 10 to put Plymouth South up by thirteen. The point after attempt made the score at the half, 14-0.

The halftime break did nothing to stop Plymouth South's momentum, as they came storming out of the locker room to start the second half and Duquette was once again at the forefront of his team's third long scoring drive of the contest.

On a second down play at the Quincy 14-yard line, Duquette found Mike Creed open on the left flat for his third touchdown pass of the evening. The 14-yard touchdown gave Plymouth South a 20-0 lead. The extra point attempt was missed to keep the Presidents down by twenty with one quarter left to play.

Duquette put the final nail in the coffin, and capped off an impressive night, with a 65-yard punt return for a touchdown halfway through the fourth quarter. The big special teams play and the successful PAT finished up the scoring in the game, as Quincy could never get its offense moving and could not find the end zone against the stingy Plymouth South defense.

Perkins Playground Top Display In Recreation Arts, Crafts Competition

The Quincy Recreation Department's arts and crafts display at City Hall Plaza saw a big turnout with the number of ballots cast from both the playgrounds and the public.

The winner was "Boston Box," which displayed Boston sports team's logos and was created by the participants and leaders from Perkins playground.

In second place was "Boston Shamrock," a large-scale paper mache' shamrock complete with the Red Sox "B" created by the youngsters and leaders at Montclair park.

Fore River playground's paper mache' "Tropical Polar Bear" which included a detailed surfboard, placed third in the competition.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said the children, leaders, and arts and crafts specialists deserve extra recognition for the hard work involved. Arts and crafts specialists Erin Croke, Shelly Donovan and Korey Verhaalt organized the display.

All 18 playgrounds, with the addition of Happy Acres, participated in the competition.

Perkins participants included Terrance Rooney, Lauren Saccoach, Peter Saccoach, Michael Saccoach, Steve Cormack and Kate Cormack, along with recreation leaders Christine Foley, Robbie Yee, Siobhan Carnell and Rob DeAngelis.

Montclair participants included Tara Neelan, Ashley Neelan, Melody J. moren, Andrew Cune, Jordan Cune, Mikey Bardon, and Bobby Paige. Recreation leaders

Meg Therrien, Anthony DiPalmio and John Rowland assisted.

Fore River participants included Matt Kozlowski, Robby Kozlowski, Steve Kozlowski, Jack Kozlowski, Ryan Turpin, Alex Heffernan, Emma Papi, Rachel Papi, Taylor Johnson, Skylar Shaheen, and recreation leaders Kristen Berry, Max Devoe and Michael Powers.

"Many thanks to the kind generosity of Balducci's, Clam Box, Tony's Clam Shop, Time Out Pizza, Pizza Hut, Quincy Creamery, Harry's Pizza and Dairy Freeze for donating prizes for the winners," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

"They helped to make this year's event tremendously successful once again."

"BOSTON BOX" created by the Perkins playground was the first place winner in the Quincy Recreation Department's Art and Crafts competition.

Plenty To Be Proud For North Quincy Girls

By SEAN BRENNAN

The North Quincy Red Raider girls' soccer team lost to Bishop Feehan High School 5-2 in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectional tournament last Sunday, but for a team that at one point this fall had a 4-7-4 record, making the post season for the 11th season in a row was an accomplishment in itself.

"We really started playing our post season schedule back when we were 4-7-4," head coach Paul Bregoli said. "At that point we needed to come out of every game with at least a point and to the girls credit, they did just that. I am very proud of our team. They stuck with it when everyone thought we didn't have a chance and they came up big."

In the first round game against number two seeded Bishop Feehan, North fell down early 1-0 after Feehan converted a goal on a missed goal kick by the Raiders. But these Red Raiders would not denied.

Senior Mary Kate Stille gathered in a pass from senior captain Emily Milone and buried home the equalizer with eight minutes left in the first half.

"Mary Kate just bulldozed her way towards the goal," said Bregoli, "and Milone found her open and she scored the goal tying the score at 1-1 entering halftime"

North seemed primed for the upset, when just five minutes into the second half Stille scored her second goal of the game (10th of the season), off a corner kick from Milone, but unfortunately for the Raiders, the grind of the end of the regular season caught up to them quickly.

Bishop Feehan tied the score at 2-2 just three minutes after Stille's goal and that goal seemed to deflate North Quincy. Feehan would later go on to score three more times in the second half for the 5-2 win.

"After Stille scored to put us up we were feeling good, but there was so much time remaining," said Bregoli. "And when they tied it, we seemed to lose a step and became sluggish. The girls played hard, but we had nothing left. We had been playing in elimination games for weeks, and it caught up to us. But these girls showed character all year long and the final score is not indicative of the outcome. We were in this game to the

Playing well against Bishop Feehan were Stille, Milone, junior goalkeeper Siobhan Carnell and freshman sweeper Shannon Coleman.

After making the post season on the last day of the regular season in a huge 1-0 win over Atlantic Coast League rival Dennis-Yarmouth, North played a preliminary round game against Falmouth High School last Friday. The two teams had played to a 1-1 tie early in the year, but this time around North would not be denied.

Senior captain Emily Milone, who was moved from her midfield spot to a forward spot to provide some scoring, netted her 16th goal of the year after Stille had won a free ball in space. Stille pushed the ball forward and Milone flicked the ball over the keeper's head for the 1-0 lead.

"That goal was one that only Emily could have converted on," said Bregoli. "It was a beautiful goal and it got us moving in the right direction. The first time we played this team we were intimidated because we had so many young kids playing, but this time around they

Greg Buck Scholarship Fundraiser A Success

The Greg Buck Scholarship Fund Raiser was recently held aboard the Boston Belle.

The harbor cruise, which sailed from Marina Bay, was for the support of the scholarship which is presented each spring to a North Quincy High School graduating senior who will study architecture or a related field at a four year college.

This year David Tidwell received the award. David will study engineering at Northeastern University.

Dr. Allan Yacubian provided Yakoo sweatshirts and baseball caps for a raffle which also included an autographed copy of David Ortiz's book given by Kate O'Reilly (teacher at NQHS), movie theatre tickets provided by Ellen and Cassian Jae, and an Italian theme food basket from the Poulin family.

Quincy residents Bob

Keough, Sarah Poulin, and Jane Gilliland won movie tickets; Sarah Poulin and Walter Bryant won Yakoo sweatshirts; Walter Bryant and Kathy Lescinkas won Yakoo baseball caps and Carole Danckert won the magnificent food basket. It was a glorious day and added to the scholarship fund which benefits North Quincy's high school students.

Save the pits from your fruit, dry them completely and store them in an air-tight container. Use them come winter when building a fire — they crackle and spark and give a pleasing aroma while burning. The ashes can later be used for composting.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your honesty continues to impress everyone who needs reassurance about a project. But be careful you don't lose patience with those who are still not ready to act.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Pushing others too hard to do things your way could cause resentment and raise more doubts. Instead, take more time to explain why your methods will work.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be more considerate of those close to you before making a decision that could have a serious effect on their lives. Explain your intentions and ask for their advice.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might have to defend a workplace decision you plan to make. Colleagues might back you up on this, but it's the facts that will ultimately win the day for you. Good luck.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat's co-workers might not be doing enough to elp get that project finished. Your roars might stir things p, but gentle purr-suasion will prove to be more effective.

Virgo (August 23 to September 22) Someone you are for needs help with a problem. Give it lovingly and without judging the situation. Whatever you feel you should know will be revealed after.

be admired for how you handled recent workplace problems, be careful not to react the same way to a new situation until all the facts are in.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Rely on your keen instincts as well as the facts at hand when dealing with a troubling situation. Be patient. Take things one step at a time as you work through it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to January 19) Your curiosity leads you to ask questions. However, the answers might not be what you hoped to hear. Don't reject them without checking them out.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Be careful not to tackle a problem without sufficient facts. Even sure-footed Goats need to know where they'll land before leaping off a mountain path.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Appearances can be deceiving. You need to do more investigating before investing your time, let alone your money, in something that might have some hidden flaws.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your recent stand on an issue could make you the focus of more attention than you would like. But you'll regain your privacy, as well as more time with loved ones by week's end.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're a good friend and a trusted confidante. You would be a wonderful teacher or a respected member of the clergy.

OBITUARIES

John M. Sullivan, 46 Star Basketball Player

A funeral Mass for John Michael Sullivan, 46, of Quincy, a star basketball player, was celebrated Nov. 2 at Holy Trinity Parish Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Quincy.

Mr. Sullivan died Oct. 28. Born in Quincy, he grew up in Houghs Neck. At Broad Meadows School, he was a star basketball player and graduated from Quincy High School in 1979.

Mr. Sullivan was a lifelong fan of the Boston Red Sox and New England Patriots.

He is survived by his parents, John J. and Mary I. (Carew) Sullivan of Houghs Neck, a sister, Ann M. Henshaw of Alexandria, VA, and several nieces, nephews and cousins and many friends.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

JOHN M. SULLIVAN

Funeral arrangements were made by the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy Center.

Memorial donations may be made to the Jimmy Fund, 10 Brookline Place West, 6th floor, Brookline, MA 02445-7226. Attn: Contribution Services, or to St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Pl., Memphis, TN 38105-1905. Tribute Page #197-04-094.

Rosalie P. Palmer, 81 Singer, Restaurant Owner

A funeral service for Rosalie P. (Galvagno) Palmer, 81, of Quincy, a former singer, was held Nov. 3 at the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Mrs. Palmer died Oct. 30 at Quincy Medical Center.

Born, raised and educated in Lexington, she had lived in Oakland Park, Fla. for many years before moving to Quincy in 1972.

During the 1940s and 1950s, she was a headliner for the Big Bands singing under the stage name of Patty Gale with band leaders such as Bennie Goodman and Artie Shaw.

Mrs. Palmer later owned and ran several restaurants and devoted herself to her children and grandchildren.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Let us on Veterans' Day take time to pause and reflect and pray. Pause to thank those millions of men and women, dead and alive, who performed the highest obligation of their citizenship... active service in the defense of their country in time of war. Let us pray for those who have shed so many tears for those who gave so freely of their lives so that we might be a free nation, a nation of choices.

Let us on Veterans' Day, as Americans, stand up and be counted... Let us stand and honor this nation and what it stands for... Let us be thankful of all the privileges and advantages we enjoy... Let us count our blessings.

ABOVE ALL, let us on this day reaffirm our dedication to the cause of peace with honor throughout the world...

the left side of the offense line. The PAT was successful and at halftime, North held a 19-7 lead.

"The kids have been stepping up this year and the second quarter is proof of that," said Connor. "It was a good overall quarter, but this game was closer than it should have been. We may have capitalized on some opportunities but we also left chances out on the field and we need to fix that."

left in the fourth quarter. The completed Hail Mary pass brought the ball down inside the Red Raider 5-yard line. On the next play from scrimmage, Whitman-Hanson's TJ White scored to make it 19-14.

North recovered the ensuing onside kick, and ran out the clock for their fifth win of the fall.

"That final pass played made things interesting," Connor said, "and that is what we are going to work on in practice this week. We need to tidy up our defense on plays like that because it made a difference in the game. We need to be better in the defense."

competition."

North Quincy will host Plymouth South this Friday at 7 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Plymouth South is coming off a 27-0 win over Quincy and is 5-4 on the season.

"Plymouth South is tough, but we have the advantage of playing in front of the home crowd," said Connor. "We will address the game plan this week at practice."

Once the Plymouth South game is finished, North Quincy will have 12 days to get ready for the Thanksgiving Day game versus Quincy.

stood out." Falmouth had a great scoring chance in the first half when a ball was headed off the crossbar, but that would be the only real scoring threat the Clippers would have the rest of the game. The Raider defense, behind the play of Coleman, Lindsey Repucci, Lindsey Reilly and Tara McFarland stopped the Falmouth attack in the second half.

In what was their first unofficial playoff game, North knocked off D-Y 1-0 in an intense hard-fought contest. Milone scored the lone goal of the game off a corner kick.

"This was like a playoff game, so intense and the girls knew the ramifications," Bregoli added. "We played great defense and stood tall."

North Quincy graduates its two top scorers, Milone (35 goals, 41 assists) and Stille (30 goals, 20 assists) plus seniors Rene DiPietro, Paige Bonanni, Kasey O'Connell, Lauryn MacIsaac, Colleen McCarthy, Kerry Coughlin, Kate Henenway, Maureen Randall, Simone Leary, Caitlyn McCarthy, Tara McFarland, Anne Marie Price, Ellen Quinn and Roxanne Lydon.

"We will reload and come back next year to do it again," said Bregoli. "But this year's team was special for their heart and toughness. I am proud of what we accomplished."

Thanksgiving Dip To Benefit Interfaith Social Services

Katherine Maloy, founder of "The Turkey Dip," announces the fourth annual Turkey Dip will take place Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 22.

The event will start at 8:30 a.m. as participants dive into the North River at Mary's Boat Livery, located at 2205 Main St. (Route 3A) in Marshfield.

"The 'Turkey Dip' brings our community together to raise money for families in need on the South Shore," Maloy said. "Participants can help raise money by gaining sponsorships for their dip."

All money raised this year will go directly to help Interfaith Social Services. Maloy said this year's fundraising goal is $10,000.

For more than 65 years, Interfaith Social Services has supplied nutritious and wholesome food, clothing, counseling and limited financial assistance to people in need throughout the South Shore.

During the first half of 2007, more than 5,400 individuals received 3-5 days worth of food through the Pantry Shelf, a 12 percent increase over the same period last years.

Last year, the agency's Fresh Start and HomeSafe programs helped 50 families and individuals avoid homelessness.

For more information, call Maloy at 617-842-3224.

one, by taking the runner-up spot with 8,769 votes.

Victor Ng was fifth with 5,751.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee won a second term, holding off a challenge by Jimmy Liang. McNamee's vote was 2,722 to Liang's 1,618.

Jo-Ann Bragg, who left the School Committee in 2003 to run for councillor at-large, came roaring back Tuesday to take the seat being vacated by Linda Stice.

Bragg topped the school committee field with a vote of 12,430 followed by incumbents David McCarthy and Elaine Dwyer with respective votes of 11,915 and 10,897.

Nicholas Puleo took the runner-up spot with 7,296 with Eileen Mullen close behind with 7,136.

Five ward councillors were re-elected unopposed:

Ward 1 Leo Kelly, 3,288; Ward 2 Dan Raymond, 2,740; Ward 3 Kevin Coughlin, 3,028; Ward 4 James (Jay) Davis, 2,063; Ward 5 Douglas Gutro, 3,242.

Koch And Phelan Election Night Comments

KOCH defeating applause from his supporters.

Koch later said that he appreciated how "gracious" Mayor William Phelan was in promising to help with the transition.

In the next eight weeks, Koch said that he will "put together a transition team to set priorities."

PHELAN

Phelan's supporters gathered at Commonwealth Restaurant where the mayor described his gratitude for the opportunity to serve the city for the past eight years as mayor and a school committee member.

At the restaurant later, Phelan said, "This has been a fantastic experience and I wouldn't taken any of it back for a minute, even tonight."

Veterans Day Speaker Urges:

'Fight Like Heck' For Our Service Men And Women

On a day set aside for those who fought in the nation's wars, the featured speaker at Quincy's Veterans Day observance called on the legacies of two widely dissimilar women to support her theme.

"The union activist Mother Jones once said, 'Pray for the dead, but fight like hell for the living,'" said Marybeth O'Sullivan, a commander in the Navy Nurse Corps and wife and mother of sailors who have been deployed to Afghanistan and Iraq.

"To be polite," she added, "I will use 'heck' from here on in."

And she quoted Mother Teresa, the nun who fought poverty in Calcutta, India, as saying, "The fruit of silence is prayer, the fruit of prayer is faith, the fruit of faith is love is service, the fruit of service is peace."

O'Sullivan spoke at the annual Quincy Veterans Day parade and ceremonies held on a chilly Sunday morning at the World War I Doughboy Statue in front of the Adams Academy building at Hancock and Dimmock Streets.

"The men and women who serve in our armed forces make our freedom and our way of life possible," she said. "Our country is free and a better and safer place because of them. We owe each of them a debt of gratitude

Traffic, Drugs, Concourse Changes Top Koch Agenda

By TOM HENSHAW

He's been mayor-elect for only a week and he won't be mayor until Jan. 7 but already Tom Koch is making plans for drastic changes in the layout of the Quincy Center Concourse, the cross-town connector through Hancock Street.

"We need the roadway," he told The Sun in an interview Tuesday, "but my approach to the layout would be different.

"There is no need to take the Cinema building with all its expense. The road can be accommodated through the vacant lot. It would require taking the Quincy Legion building, too."

THOMAS KOCH

Members of the post have asked that the building be taken because it would be too close to the new roadway.

There'll be a new senior center under the Koch administration, but it won't be on the Merrymount Park site planned by outgoing Mayor William Phelan.

"We need a senior center," said Koch. "I was opposed to the location. We are going to come up with some alternatives. We need it to be on public transportation

"We'll put together a group that includes all the former directors of the Council on aging to look at the issue."

And look for Tom Clasby, who quit as director of elder services in a dispute with Phelan over siting of the senior center, to be back in the Koch administration.

"I'm going to sit down with him and discuss the Early News, Advertising Deadline For Next Week's Sun

Because of the Thanksgiving Day holiday, The Quincy Sun will be published a day earlier next week, necessitating an early news and advertising deadline.

News, social, church and youth sports releases as well as retail, legal and classified advertising should be in The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St.,

Quincy Center, by noon tomorrow (Friday) for the Wednesday, Nov. 21 issue.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Nominations Open For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are now open for The Quincy Sun's 23rd annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, for the first time since the award's inception, co-recipients were chosen:

Patrick J. "P.J." Foley and Vincent "Vin" Moscardelli.

Both were selected for outstanding community service.

Moscardelli, a former principal of Central Junior High School, for his generous support of high school and youth sports and other worthy causes.

Foley for his environmental and conservation efforts and accomplishments.

They were among 36 nominated for the award by Quincy Sun readers.

A panel of judges representing a cross-section of the community made the final decision to honor both of them.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the that can never be repaid.

"They are there for us; we need to be there for them.

"I challenge each and every one of you to take the words to heart and 'fight like heck' to ensure that our young men and women are returning to a nation that remembers that each responded to a nation's call to service and quietly accepted the sacrifices required of them."

O'Sullivan's current post is that of outreach advisor for the Veterans Upward Bound program at UMass-Boston, a free federally funded pre-collegiate program that provides academic services to veterans of all wars.

"As part of my outreach for Veterans Upward Bound, I speak on college campuses (and) nationally on how to recognize PTSD (Post Traumatic Distress Disorder) and TBI (Traumatic Brain Injury), where to get help and support and, particularly, how to deal with these issues in the classroom.

"I 'fight like heck' to make sure everyone has the knowledge and understanding of these issues and the power to empower each and every one of you to make a difference in our veterans' transition.

"Very few are aware that Veterans Upward Bound... that has been around for over 30 years is just a 20-minute ride on the Red Line to the UMass-Boston campus. Our staff and faculty 'fight like he' to assure each student is ready... to continue what we hope will be a journey of life-long learning.

"Are you familiar with the Quincy Career Center? We have two veterans, Fred Myerson, a Marine, and Mike Kelly, a retired Senior Chief, designated by the Department of Labor to be available to assist unemployed and underemployed veterans with their job and career search.

"To be 'there for them' means a certain commitment and I ask each and every citizen to take the time to learn the resources and services that are available to support our troops as they reenter the civilian community.

MORRISSETTE Legion Post color guard and members show the way down Hancock Street.

"In Quincy alone you have some of the strongest and finest advocates in the Commonwealth, some who are here with us today. Hank Bradley, your veterans agent, can sort out the maze of wonderful but often complex benefits.

"He and his staff will 'fight like heck' to make sure that the veteran and his or her family receives the services to which they are entitled."

"In closing," said

O'Sullivan, "I would like to leave you with the words of a true leader, another strong woman who wore the uniform of a 'warrior,' but her battle was with the desperate conditions and poverty of the people of India.

"Teresa of Calcutta, Mother Teresa once said this about sacrifice, 'To be real (sacrifice) must cost, must hurt; we must empty ourselves. The fruit of silence is prayer, the fruit of prayer is faith, the fruit of faith is love is services; the fruit of service is peace.'

"To my fellow veterans, my shipmates and your families, I thank you for what you have paid, for the cost of our freedom.

"I thank you for having emptied yourselves in the giving.

"I thank you for the faith you hold in those of us who follow in your legacy.

"I thank you for the love you have for freedom, and for your service to America that will one day lead to peace."

Next City Council President

Davis Pledges Working Relationship With Koch

James (Jay) Davis, who will be the new City Council president, pledges a close working relationship with Mayor-elect Tom Koch.

"I am looking forward to working closely with Tom for the best interests of the city and a good city council-mayor relationship," Davis said.

The Ward 4 Councillor put together the necessary five votes among colleagues Thursday to succeed Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro as council president in January.

Councillor at-large Michael McFarland and

JAY DAVIS

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin were interested in the presidency.

Davis first had his own vote and then, those of Councillor at-large John Keenan, Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee, Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, needing one more, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly reportedly was the fifth and clinching vote.

The council presidency is considered the second most powerful political post to the mayor.

Davis will take office in a one-year term in January and can seek a second term.

Under council regulations a council president is limited to two one-year terms.

$132,525 FEMA Grant To Aid 7 Flood-Prone Properties

The city has received a $132,525 FEMA grant to aid seven flood-prone residential properties, most of them in West Quincy.

The federal funding, through the Pre-Disaster Mitigation (PDM) grant program under FEMA, will be used to elevate or retrofit the properties.

The properties have already been selected through an application process involving the city, the homeowners, FEMA and the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency.

Five of the seven properties are located in West Quincy and are repeatedly affected by flooding around Furnace Brook. The other two are located in Houghs Neck and North Quincy, and are repeatedly affected by coastal flooding.

"After disasters occur, home repairs and reconstruction are typically completed to restore damaged property to pre-disaster conditions," said Mayor William Phelan. "While such efforts expedite a return to normalcy, replication of pre-disaster conditions only result in a cycle of damage, reconstruction, and repeated damage. This program, however, will give seven homeowners the opportunity to break the cycle of repetitive loss."

Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development, under the direction of Dennis Harrington, will oversee this program. Its Office of Housing Rehabilitation, which implements other housing rehabilitation programs, will manage the design and construction phases. Quincy's Inspectional Services Departments and the Water/Sewer Department will provide technical assistance as necessary on individual projects.

What kind of mortgage are you looking for?

• If you're a first-time homebuyer, you probably have lots of questions. That's fine. We're happy to give you the time you need. That's the kind of bank we are - that's the kind of people we are.

• If you're an experienced homebuyer putting down a significant amount on a new home, our quicker-payoff 15-Year Mortgage might be right for you. Or maybe you'd rather have a 30-Year Loan. It's your choice!

• And if you want to refinance using your equity, we can help make that happen too.

Colonial Federal is a dependable, trustworthy community bank. Our loan officers are not on commission so their only goal is to help you get a loan you understand and can live with. If you pay your loan off early, we don't hit you with pre-payment penalties. And we're here to answer your questions after the closing too. Sound good? Moments in time

- On Nov. 14, 1851, "Moby-Dick," a novel by Herman Melville about the voyage of the whaling ship Pequod, is published. "Moby-Dick" is now considered a great classic of American literature and contains one of the most famous opening lines in fiction: "Call me Ishmael." Initially, though, the book about Captain Ahab and his quest for a giant white whale was a flop.
- On Nov. 15, 1867, the first stock ticker is unveiled in New York City, making up-to-the-minute prices available to investors around the country. Prior to this, information from the New York Stock Exchange traveled by mail or messenger.
- On Nov. 17, 1925, Roy Harold Scherer — later known as Rock Hudson — is born in Winnetka, Ill. In the late 1940s and early 1950s, he frequently starred in action films and melodramas, including "The Iron Man" (1951). Hudson died of AIDS in 1985, at the age of 59.
- On Nov. 12, 1954, Ellis Island, the gateway to America, shuts its doors after processing more than 12 million immigrants since opening in 1892. Today, an estimated 40 percent of all Americans can trace their roots through Ellis Island.
- On Nov. 16, 1960, actor Clark Gable dies. Gable married actress Carole Lombard in 1939, the same year he won his greatest role, as Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind." Gable joined the Air Force shortly after Lombard's death, rose to the rank of major and won several medals.
- On Nov. 18, 1978, People's Temple leader Jim Jones leads hundreds of his followers in a mass murder-suicide at their agricultural commune in remote northwestern Guyana. The final death toll was 913, including 276 children.
- On Nov. 13, 1982, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial is dedicated in Washington. The long-awaited memorial was a simple V-shaped black-granite wall inscribed with the names of the 57,939 Americans who died in the conflict, arranged in order of death, not rank, as was common in other memorials.

He Would Have Loved To Be There

Election night, as you can imagine, was as joyous as they can come for Tom Koch and his family.

But with a tinge of sadness.

His mother, Simone, wife, Christine and children, Abigail, Cornelius and Tom, Jr. and other members were there with him at the Granite Links Golf Club to celebrate his stunning win over Mayor William Phelan.

But missing was his father-and close friend-the late Dick Koch, Sr.

"He would have loved being there," Tom says. "We were all thinking of him."

Dick preceded his son as executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments.

He was politically active and community involved in civic and other worthy causes.

Seeing Tom elected mayor would have been one of the proudest moments of his life.

Tom thought of him during the campaign and in the last few weeks put on his father's watch.

"I got the feeling he was there with me," says Tom. Anyone who knew Dick can picture him with that big, wide smile as the results came in election night.

PHELAN TURNED OFF PEOPLE-some quite influential-with his personality and operating style as the city's chief executive.

But after a hard-hitting mayoral campaign he deserves credit for taking his defeat like a man and with graciousness.

He drove with his wife, Tracey, to the Koch victory celebration to congratulate him in person and in front of the Koch supporters and tell him he would work with him for a smooth transition of administrations.

Unlike some mayoral battles of the past when rivals wouldn't even speak to one another. Not just election night but weeks, months and in at least one case, years after.

TOM KOCH

DICK KOCH

PHELAN

YOU MIGHT CALL this one "How Times Have Changed."

This year's mayoral race was the most expensive one in the city's history.

According to their financial reports, Phelan spent $289,613 and Koch, $174,366. But those figures are as of Oct. 19. There was some heavy spending between then and Election Day. Those figures are yet to be filed.

The final report will dwarf mayor campaign spending of the past.

Like the one Frank McCauley notes in his "Quincy's Yesterdays" column one page over.

That was the 1965 race between James McIntyre and Joseph LaRaia to succeed Amelio Della Chiesa who did not seek re-election.

McIntyre, the winner, spent $2,617 and LaRaia $883.

Peanuts compared to this year.

TOP VOTE GETTER last week was Councillor Joseph Finn. His 13,082 votes not only led the city council at-large field but the entire ballot.

JO-ANN BRAGG made a triumphant return to the School Committee.

She left the School Committee in 2003 after serving 12 years but obviously wasn't forgotten. She came back strong last week, topping the five-candidate field with a 12,430 vote.

Dave McCarthy and Elaine Dwyer were re-elected with respective votes of 11,915 and 10,897.

JENNIFER MCCAULEY LOGUE, had to be pleased with her debut in the political arena.

She won the runner-up spot in the city council at-large race with an impressive vote of 8,769. Not bad for a first time run challenging three incumbents.

Will she be back in 2009?

"I certainly will consider it," she says.

CITYWIDE THE VOTER turnout was only 44 percent, down from the 52 percent expected.

The rainy, raw Election Day and five unopposed ward council seats were factors in that.

Ward 1 took top honors with a 53 percent turnout. Precinct honors went to perennial winner Precinct 5 in Ward 6 (Squantum School) which led the 30 precincts with 68 percent.

Ward 1's top precincts: Precinct 5 (Thomas Aquinas Hall), 51 percent, Precinct 4 (Adams Shore Library) 59 percent, Precinct 1 (Merrymount School) 58.97 percent.

WELL, IT DIDN'T take Weymouth long to do what Quincy hasn't done in its 118 years as a city.

That town's new mayor is a woman: Susan Kay-the town's second mayor.

Tom Koch in January will be Quincy's 33rd mayor. All men.

English Talk Time Program Seeking Volunteers

The new English Talk Time program at Thomas Crane Public Library is seeking volunteers who enjoy working with people from other cultures and countries.

The Talk Time program will meet for 10 Saturday mornings from Jan. 19 through March 22.

During their meetings, the volunteer facilitators will engage in informal conversations with adults who are learning English as a Second Language (ESOL) and want to practice their speaking skills.

Talk Time is not an English class. The sessions will be conducted in an informal, relaxed atmosphere in the library or other community locations in Quincy. Participants will be encouraged to discuss a wide range of topics.

The goal of the program is to increase each participant's comfort level in English and their knowledge of American culture, customs and idiomatic expressions.

Volunteers will work and train with experience ESOL specialists. This training will occur before, during and after each Talk Time session.

After the first 10-week session concludes, volunteers will be invited to facilitate their own 10-week session at times and places convenient for them.

For more information call 617-376-3295.

and discharge passengers. This was a very short four-track-mainline; south of here the New Haven had only two tracks. Today, the old Atlantic Depot is long gone, but there are once again four tracks along this short stretch although they have different uses. Two tracks are used by the MBTA Red Line and two by the new Old Colony railroad. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

1,100 In Tribute To Della Chiesa On Retirement

By FRANK McCAULEY

"Amelio Della Chiesa needs no monuments and wants none. Nor does he even need this testimonial dinner tonight. For he has received his greatest testimonial time and time again at the polls."

So observed Gov. John A. Volpe. But need a testimonial or not, Della Chiesa and his wife Evelyn, were honored by some 1,100 persons, a capacity crowd at the Surf Ballroom, Nantasket.

This Week

The friendship dinner marked Della Chiesa's impending retirement after twelve years as Mayor, eight under Plan A, four under Plan E. He will continue, at least through next year, as one of the city's representatives in the General Court.

Quincy's gift to the retiring mayor was a bronze tablet intended to inspire future generations of the city's youth; the tablet to be placed in the Vocational-Technical School. The tablet includes a bas-relief portrait of Mayor Della Chiesa and an inscription, which reads:

"A master plumber-turned statesman, possessed of the enduring virtues of industry, honesty, thrift and compassion, endowed with a strong moral conscience, with dignity and dedication, he unselfishly serves his people."

CARDINAL DEDICATES HOUGH'S NECK HALL

The new St. Thomas Aquinas Hall of Most Blessed Sacrament Church was dedicated Saturday, Nov. 13, by Richard Cardinal Cushing.

In what the Cardinal called his shortest speech on record, he dedicated the hall and blessed its use for the "whole parish."

Assisting in the brief ceremony was Rev. Edward F. Dowd, STD, pastor of Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Rev. Robert J. Supple, Assistant, and Right Rev. Msgr. Joseph F. Maguire, the Cardinal's personal secretary.

Former curates at Blessed Sacrament in attendance included Rev. William J. Donlon, Rev. Peter F. Hart, and Right Rev. Msgr. John M. Quirk; all now pastors in churches in the Archdiocese.

The cornerstone for the hall was laid in 1963 and the hall has been in use since February 1964.

Looks Forward To The Koch Administration

Earlier this year before anyone was thinking elections, Tommy Koch held an organizational meeting at the Best West Adams Inn.

The election was months off but Tommy knew to defeat an incumbent, you must start early during field organizing.

That night, the room was full of supporters, myself included. Many felt it was time for change at City Hall.

Back in 2001, I had the same feeling when I joined the Phelan campaign. The year of the 17-vote victory.

Sheets was a good mayor. Phelan has been a good mayor. Tommy Koch will be a good mayor.

I congratulate him for not being afraid of running against an incumbent and look forward to the Koch City Hall.

Why He Supported Tom Koch

It is the day after the election and I am compelled to make an observation.

It is striking to me that folks are finally talking out loud about the management problem in the Quincy Police Department, and even then it comes only in the context of an article in a local newspaper concerning the Mayor's concession to Tom Koch [Reference Patriot Ledger issue dated 11/07/07 "Quincy Mayor - Koch in an Upset"].

The article contains speculation from Phelan supporter "Freddy K" that the rancor in Police Union and the fallout from the Teacher's Strike may have damaged Mayor Phelan's re-election chances. (For the record, I fully support the Mayor's handling of the illegal Teacher's Strike.)

However, for months and months no one at City Hall would even acknowledge the existence of a problem between the Patrolman's Union and the Command Staff of the QPD, in particular Chief Robert Crowley.

I freely admit that I am a frequent reader of the Patrolman's Web site authored by Officer Bruce Tait. I find it entertaining and informative.

However I am not naïve and know full well there are always two sides to every story.

Mayor Phelan's refusal to even acknowledge the existence of a serious morale problem and legitimate concerns about officer staffing and safety in the QPD was frustrating at best and profoundly arrogant and disrespectful to the citizens of Quincy at worst. I suggest that Mayor Phelan underestimated the intelligence and sophistication of Quincy residents. I truly believe that voters would have thoughtfully considered City Hall's response to the QPD issues if only a response had been provided! The only response was silence!

Eventually, silence can be reasonably construed as agreement. Please spare me the knee-jerk response that the Mayor's hands were tied because these were personnel issues.

We are talking about a simple acknowledgment that a problem existed and a general description of what the Mayor intended to do to resolve the problem. In the end it seemed as if the Mayor decided that he would tell us only what HE deemed appropriate for us to hear. Apparently the Mayor concluded that the citizens of Quincy deserved to hear nothing about this very real public safety issue. (Yes I know Quincy is the second safest city in Massachusetts according to FBI statistics, notwithstanding the disclaimer that said statistics should not be used to reach such a conclusion.)

The Mayor's deafening silence on the QPD issue caused me to analyze and re-think my previous support for him and cast a more critical eye upon the Mayor's other positions. (Like the downtown revitalization plan, which I think will be a disaster, and the inaction on the pervasive flooding problems in West Quincy.)

Ultimately, I could no longer support Mayor Phelan and I voted for Tom Koch. The lesson here is that silence is not always golden.

Germantown Youngsters In Pumpkin Pageant

Some 40 Quincy youngsters were among the 200 children who recently participated in the 4th Annual Great Pumpkin Pageant sponsored by the Friends of Fort Point Channel at Children's Wharf, Boston.

Families and friends joined the youths who were bused into Boston from Germantown Community Center for the holiday party.

The festivities included pumpkin carving and decorating, face painting, and refreshments.

Spooky Halloween pumpkins and pumpkins honoring the Red Sox were some of the youngsters' creations at the festivities at the wharf, located in front of the Children's Museum.

"Opportunities for our kids to take part in area events are so important. It's great to be able to participate," said Kathy Quigley, director of the Germantown center. The youngsters

Quincy Animal Shelter Honors 100 Volunteers

The Quincy Animal Shelter (QAS) recently honored its 100 volunteer team and dozens of outstanding volunteers as the Shelter team celebrated its first eight years of rescuing Quincy's homeless cats and dogs.

The QAS is all-volunteer organizations whose volunteers walk dogs, cuddle cats, provide medical care and find permanent homes for their animals. Since 1999, thousands of homeless cats and dogs have been rescued through the efforts of QAS volunteers.

The anniversary provided an opportunity to celebrate the shelter's success and cite their exceptional members.

QAS President Kit Burke presented The President's Award to longtime volunteer, board member and Feral Cat manager, Janet Parisi. Burke described Parisi's contributions as "too great to list. She is truly a valued volunteer."

QAS Interim Shelter Director Sandra Morse presented the Director's Award to QAS veteran Kathleen Hefner.

"Recognizing Kathleen is long overdue. She has worked non-stop for eight years, making sure our animals get the best medical care."

Newcomer Ellen Grund was named rookie of the year and cited as the shelter's MVP for her willingness to help the shelter's charges in every way.

More than 30 other longtime volunteers were also honored for their hard work. The shelter located at 56 Broad St. is staffed by volunteers and works with the city's Animal Control. The shelter does not receive funds from the city.

Quincy Artist Mary Smith To Exhibit At Hingham Gallery

The works of Quincy artist Mary A. Smith will be exhibited for three weeks starting Friday, Nov. 16, at the South Street Gallery, 149 South St., Hingham Square..

The opening event will be held at the gallery from 6 to 9 p.m. with refreshments and a chance to meet the artist herself. The exhibit will continue until Thursday, Dec. 6.

Smith's most recent work was a series of 20 paintings in the Fore River Shipyard that was shown last June at the 125th anniversary of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

A successful landscape architect for 28 years, she sold the business, Mary Smith Associates, three years ago and turned to her first love, watercolor painting.

She is now the owner of Black's Creek Studios in Quincy. One of her painting won first place in the watercolor category in The Quincy ArtFest in 2000.

Surprise Tribute For Annie Leng Student Honored For Peace Garden Design At Wollaston School

Students and school officials recently honored Central School seventh grader Annie Leng who designed the Wollaston School's updated Asian or Peace Garden.

At the surprise ceremony at the Peace Garden, officials unveiled a granite stone engraved, "Designed by Annie Leng."

Science teacher Sara DiZinno organizes the garden project each year for all the grade five students at Wollaston School.

City officials joined principals, teachers and the Wollaston School's current fifth graders in surprising Annie and applauding her talent.

School committee member James Timmins congratulated Annie as an outstanding student and a leader in the neighborhood.

Annie Leng was in Grade 5 at the Wollaston School when she won the contest for providing the best design for the Asian or Peace Garden. At the time, the garden needed renovation and school officials involved the students in the project.

There were three finalists chosen from the 58 designs submitted and Annie's plans won.

The winning design resulted in the updated Peace Garden at the school located at 305 Beale St. The garden now includes an added variety of plants and bushes, spaced artistically, at the small red wood "Bridge to the Future."

Funds for the school's garden projects are provided through grants from the Wollaston School Parent Teachers Organization (P.T.O.) and the classroom teachers.

This is the seventh year that Grade 5 students at Wollaston School have participated in the planning and planting of the gardens on the school grounds.

Prior to the 2006 design contest, the Wollaston School Grade 5 students researched the landscape project through math and science exercises and botany studies.

Students also considered different types of plants, the effectiveness of 3-D symbols, and the meaning of different colors in the Chinese culture. (Each student submitted his or her own proposed design drawn to scale.)

After the winner was chosen, fifth graders pitched in to plant and execute Annie's design. Wollaston students also help in the clearing and maintaining of all of the school's gardens.

On hand at the ceremony were Susan Troy, principal, Wollaston School; Jen Fay-Beers, principal of Central Middle School; Diane Foley, vice president of the Wollaston PTO and head of the Beautification Committee.

THE PEACE GARDEN at Wollaston School was redesigned by Annie Leng (center) who won a design contest organized by Grade 5 teacher Sara DiZinno. Students and school officials recently surprised Annie with a plaque and party. Annie is now a student in Grade 7 at Central Middle School.

Sunday At Koch ComplexPublic Safety Fair To Stress Preparedness For Emergencies

The Mayor's third annual Public Safety Fair will be held rain or shine from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Sunday at the Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

The theme is "Prepared, Not Scared."

At the fair, there will be free flu shots for those over 18, an exhibition by the Norfolk County Sheriff's canine corps, Quincy Medical Center, as well as fire engines and police devices on display.

In addition, there will be free refreshments, and demonstrations of the latest public works and safety equipment and more than a dozen tables or booths sponsored by Quincy Medical Center, city agencies and private companies.

Residents will learn how to stock their homes and prepare themselves for possible emergencies, such as flooding or fire or power failure.

"It's a real family event," said Deputy Chief Gary Smyth of the Quincy Fire Department who is on the Safety Fair Committee with Health Commissioner Drew Scheele.

"We've had phenomenal success," Scheele said of past fairs which attracted almost 1,000 visitors.

"It's a great opportunity for citizens to come down and see how they can prepare themselves and their families for emergencies," said Smyth.

Smyth also, noted that residents will see firsthand how well prepared Quincy is for emergencies and how well the different department work together and complement each other.

"Don't let the weather stop you from coming," said Smyth who noted that the flu shots will be administered inside the building and exhibitors will be shielded by tents.

Scheele said that the State Department of Health provides the flu vaccine. Senior citizens over 65 will be asked to provide their Medicaid B cards.

"We have plenty of flu vaccine," Scheele said, noting all the shots are free for all persons.

Scheele said that the city is reimbursed for the senior citizen injections through Medicaid. As a result, he said, "Last year, we put back into city (general) funds in excess of $30,000 (from the flu shots)."

"They loved the canine demonstrations," Smyth said of the children who attended the fairs with their families and tested fire engines. The trained dogs "can sniff out a person or a piece of evidence," and their handlers will exhibit their skills at the fair.

"Corporate sponsors are going to provide food and drink," Smyth said of the free refreshments the day.

"It's a great opportunity for citizens to come down and see how they can prepare themselves and their families for emergencies," said Smyth.

Quincy Medical, Manet Health Receive $2.8M In State Grants

Quincy Medical Center has been awarded $2.5 million and Manet Community Health Center $300,000 from the state's Essential Community Provider Trust Fund to enhance their ability to deliver health care.

The awards are part of a $37.5 million grant by Gov. Deval Patrick to 69 health care centers across the state for primary care, clinical support, disease and pharmacy management and care coordination.

"Community-based care is essential to streamline operations of the Quincy Medical Center and the Manet Community Health Center and their services to reach the populations in need," said Rep. Bruce Ayers.

"Gov. Patrick's health care reform agenda has provided our community with essential financial support and the city of Quincy will certainly benefit from it," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

"The Quincy Medical Center and the Manet Community Health Center are great assets and this money will help to subsidize operating costs."

Starting in July, 83 health care providers across the state submitted applications for funding totaling $110 million, president and CEO of Quincy Medical Center, attributed the awards to the Quincy centers to the leadership and commitment of Morrissey and Ayers as well as Reps Stephen Tobin and Ron Mariano.

"We understand that resources are tight and more help was being requested statewide, so this was not an easy task," he said.

Toni McGuire, chief executive officer of the Manet Community Health Center, said the grant "allows us to take the first steps toward an electronic patient system that will enhance our primary care communication and quality."

Free Flu Vaccine Clinic Sunday

The Health Department will hold the first of two public flu vaccine clinics Sunday, Nov. 18, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Koch Family Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

The second will be held Wednesday, Nov. 28, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the Elks Lodge, 254 Quarry St.

Both clinics are free but seniors are advised to bring their Medicare cards so the city can be reimbursed by the federal government.

A clinic for residents of public housing was scheduled to be held yesterday (Wednesday) from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. at 1000 Southern Artery and another will be held Friday, Nov. 16, from 10 to 11 a.m. at Fenno House.

Dear Friends and Supporters,

It is with much gratitude that I thank you for your support throughout my campaign for Quincy City Councilor-at-Large.

Despite the fact that we did not win a seat in the 2007 election, in my eyes our campaign was victorious in many ways. We rallied the community together, raised awareness throughout the city, built an amazing team, and forged friendships that will last a lifetime. These are accomplishments we can all be very proud of.

It is thanks to all of you that we were able to accomplish so much in such a short time. It is a true testament to the fact that when a community gets together and works toward a common goal, great things can happen.

I hope that we can all take to heart the tremendous value of community involvement, and continue to put our best foot forward for Quincy throughout the year.

Please stay in touch.

Thank you and God Bless.

Council on Aging," said Koch.

The new mayor of Quincy may best be described as a man knows what he wants but will take time to study and determine how to get it.

James "Jimmy" Fatseas, a North Quincy native who is a retired senior executive of Merrill Lynch, will head his transition team and later be his chief of staff.

The rest of the team?

"We're just putting it together right now," said Koch. "We've been talking to the current administration. The mayor has been very gracious. He has been working with us."

"Jack Nigro and Linda

Bowes will co-chair the inauguration committee."

Bowes is the new mayor's elder sister.

After that, the new mayor was candid but vague on specific plans.

"My two top agenda items are traffic and drugs," he said.

"I plan to put the emphasis on a traffic plan for the city. I'll take a look at the current setup. There may be some changes."

"I'll tackle the drug problem but first I'll meet with the leaders of the different agencies, like the police. Congressman Bill Delahunt, a former DA, can be helpful."

Next question...

The crisis of the day in city government everywhere, one that may have played a major role in Phelan's defeat, is how much the city is willing to pay for its employees' benefits, namely health.

"Health care is a tough one," said Koch. "I plan to sit down with the union leadership in good faith negotiations. They know they will not get everything on their wish list."

"The union leaders can see it is in the best interest of everyone to keep the cost down. We should be able to come up with a plan that's fair to the taxpayers and the employees."

Koch said he plans an early meeting with state officials, the school superintendent and the School Committee "to make sure the new Quincy High School is on the right track."

"My goal is to come in under budget," he said.

Koch called the cost of government "always a challenge. I'm going to make sure we operate as efficiently as possible to ease the burden on the taxpayers."

"Obviously, we'll seek more federal and state grants. I'm going to talk to our legislative delegation about that. We'll look at having a grant writer, too, maybe a head writer or the appropriate people in the departments."

The long-standing feud between Police Chief Robert Crowley and the Patrolmen's Union is another chronic problem that needs to be settled.

"Leadership comes from the mayor's office," said Koch. "The Police Department has had a couple of tough years."

"I plan to exercise leadership on this. Nothing specific at this time. I intend to take a look at things."

"We will make the most informed decisions we can. That's part of the business."

most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

After nominations close Monday, Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2007 award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun

Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Squantum Gardeners Tree Lighting Nov. 25

Seaside Gardeners of Squantum will sponsor their eighth annual "Lighting of the Tree" ceremony Sunday, Nov. 25, at 4:30 p.m. in Gilbert Memorial Park at Huckins Avenue and East Squantum Street.

While awaiting the arrival of Santa Claus and the lighting of the tree, hot cocoa and homemade cookies will be served.

Since the tree lighting occurs on the same day as the annual Quincy Christmas Parade, if the parade is canceled due to inclement weather, the tree lighting will be called off, too.

For more information, call the event chairperson, Patricia McGilvray, at 617-328-0355.

Dear Voters of Ward 6,

I am both humbled and grateful for your support. Thank you for the trust and confidence you have placed in me once again. Having received your valuable support, I will continue to move forward in fulfilling my promise to serve you to the best of my abilities.

I also want to take this opportunity to especially thank my friends, family, and volunteers for all their efforts this past campaign season. I am forever in your debt.

Let's all now move forward with renewed vigor and continue to make Quincy our proud home.

Best wishes,

Brian McNamee

Beechwood Senior Center Seeking Program Volunteers

Beechwood Senior Center is seeking "Rocking Nannies" and handymen and lunch helpers and a host of other volunteers with other expertise for the center's new expanded programs.

"We have welcomed increasing numbers of senior participants throughout the summer and are hoping to provide new and expanded activities this Fall," said Senior Center Coordinator Maryann Mahony.

However, the Senior Center's budget has been stretched thin as leaders enlarge their programs to accommodate the rising membership, Mahony said, when outlining the need for more volunteers.

"We are a private, charitable organization and have a very small budget for our Senior Center. That's the bad news! The good news is the wonderful caring folk help us, as volunteers," said Mahony.

"First time visitors are always surprised to see our wide range of programs and activities!" Mahony continued, adding, "Wonderful volunteers make it possible. We have many volunteer positions. Some volunteers work one day a week, others more. Some work two hours a visit and others more."

At this time, the Center needs volunteers in seven categories: 1. Arts & Crafts; 2. Lunch Program; 3. Outdoor Recreation; 4. Knitting and Crocheting instruction; 5. "Rocking Nannies" who volunteer help in the center's Infant Room; 6. Children's Outdoor Classrooms; 7. Center Handyman tasks.

A volunteer orientation and social is planned for November.

For more information or to volunteer, call Mahony at 617-471-5712.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Unvented Portable Space Heaters

I was thinking over the weekend about the price of a barrel of oil now approaching $100, and the potential negative impact this fact has on residential life safety.

I am concerned that there might be a temptation for some to unlawfully use unvented portable space heaters as a substitute means of heating a home or portion of a home. Consequently, I'd like to pass along some information here hoping to avert any winter tragedy.

This State mandates that unvented portable space heaters shall not be used in a "building used in whole or in part for human habitation." This law refers to those kerosene and propane fired heaters that are portable and not adequately vented to the outside. The key word in describing our concern is unvented.

Both the propane and oil fired space heaters we're discussing here produce the same asphyxiant gases such as carbon monoxide and carbon dioxide that can render an individual incapacitated or dead.

Being unvented, and if used inappropriately within a confined habitable space, these asphyxiant gases are left to circulate within the confined space you're attempting to heat. Consequently, the oxygen within the space is consumed by the combustion process of the heater and replaced by the dangers of asphyxiant gases. Portable unvented space heaters are therefore dangerous if used incorrectly.

If you must use a space heater in a habitable space such as your home, make certain that it is electric. Look for UL approval, and place it on a firm surface a minimum of three feet from combustibles. The heater should not be left unattended, it should be kept away from water, and if an extension cord is used, make certain that it is not frayed or faulty and is appropriate for the electrical load required.

With the rising cost of oil, space heater use will tend to increase. Use of electric space heaters appears to be quite common with seniors who are particularly proven to be to be particularly vulnerable to fire within a home. This fact and this combustion make proper use of electric space heaters imperative.

Meanwhile, do not be tempted to complement your household heating efforts with an unvented portable fuel space heater within a confined habitable space.

The consequences can be deadly. Thank you.

Winterfest Fair At 1000 Southern Artery

The annual Winterfest Fair at the Senior Citizens Center, 1000 Southern Artery, will open at 9:30 a.m., Wednesday, Dec. 5.

The fair will feature a large all-day White Elephant sale and tables with holiday craft items, handmade knits, ceramics, and woodworking articles. There will be homemade treats at the Bake Shop.

A silent auction will be held all day and into the evening when a live auction will begin. Lunch will be served at three sittings.

Quincy Asian Resources Annual Meeting Nov. 28

The annual meeting of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI) will be held Wednesday, Nov. 28, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Members will elect officers and board members, review the agency's activities over the past year and discuss the future schedule, including the February Lunar New Year Festival.

A light buffet will be served. Speakers will be Victor Ng and Jimmy Liang. QARI Board President Richard Hung said Ng and Liang will discuss their recent experiences running for city council seats in Quincy.

Hung believes, "This will be a good opportunity for people to become better acquainted and to get an update on QARI's activities this past year, such as our efforts to increase the level of civic participation of the Asian community."

QARI is planning the 20th annual Lunar New Year Festival for Sunday, Feb. 17, and the agency is seeking volunteers for the New Year's Committee. The festival's kick-off meeting is set for 6:30 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 6, with the location to be announced.

Volunteer coordinators are John and Caroline Donohue.

Turkey Frozen? Go Ahead and Cook It, Expert Says

If you're in charge of cooking the Thanksgiving turkey, you may not have to plan as far ahead as you thought you did, according to Iowa State University Extension food science specialist Sam Beattie.

"Cooking a frozen turkey is an acceptable and safe way to go," Beattie said. "The advantage to cooking a fully frozen turkey is that the frozen juices do not contribute to cross contamination issues in the kitchen."

A 13- to 15-pound turkey will take about 5 1/2 hours to cook from the frozen state in a 325 F oven. The giblets and neck can be removed after about 2 hours of cooking.

"The key requirement is using a thermometer to make sure the temperature reaches at least 165 F," Beattie said. "At that temperature, some of the meat may still be pinkish but it is safe to eat according to U.S. Department of Agriculture tests."

Traditional instructions have recommended cooking poultry to 180 F until recent USDA tests showed that 165 F was sufficient. The Turkey Federation continues to recommend 180 F because this ensures that the meat is no longer pink, yet will remain juicy.

"The higher temperature also makes the turkey easier to carve," Beattie said. "As always and regardless of the way it was cooked, letting the cooked turkey rest for one-half hour will improve the flavor because some of the juices get reabsorbed."

Safe food handling after the big meal also is important.

"Crammed refrigerators make for poor cooling because of reduced air flow around the items," Beattie said. "Putting leftovers in several smaller containers instead of one or two larger bowls also helps cool foods faster."

When storing leftovers, food safety experts recommend that the temperature of hot food should drop below 70 F within two hours after placing into the refrigerator. Warm or hot foods should not be allowed to sit on the countertop until they reach room temperature before being refrigerated.

"Ideally, the food should remain above 130 F until it is placed into the refrigerator and then it should cool to below 40 F in two hours and below 40 F in another 4 to 6 hours," Beattie said.

"The major illness-causing bacteria in cooked meat and gravies slows its growth at around 70 F and does not reproduce well below this temperature," Beattie said. "Frequent handwashing as well as using paper towels also helps reduce the risk of foodborne illness spoiling your holiday festivities."

Jack Conway Co. Celebrates 51st Year

The singing of Happy Birthday punctuated the recent Jack Conway Co. sales rally in celebration of the 51st anniversary of the company.

Events were held at the Plymouth Radisson hotel and Lombardos Conference Center in Randolph.

Chairman Jack Conway thanked the hundreds of agents who helped him mark 51 years of serving the home buyers and sellers of Massachusetts.

"We are very happy to have been a part of the real estate community more than half a century, and we pride ourselves on remaining a privately-owned, non-franchised company who continues to offer services to our customers from 43 branch locations in Eastern Massachusetts," Conway said.

The two big sales celebrations, identical in format,

were held in Plymouth and Randolph.

Speakers included the company's President Dick Cahill, Senior Vice President Denis Lilla, Advertising Director Marie Fricker, Executive Vice President Tom Rudolph, Conway Financial Services Executive Rosemary O'Neil and Chairman Jack Conway.

Founded in 1956, Jack Conway and Company is the largest privately-owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 750 associates in 43 offices from Boston to Cape Cod. With over $1.9 billion in annual sales, Conway was ranked 69th among the top real estate firms in the United States by National Relocation and Real Estate Magazine.

Quincy Community Action Homebuyer Workshop

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. will hold a free first-time homebuyer workshop in Weymouth on Saturday, Dec. 15, Monday, Dec. 17 and Thursday, Dec. 20.

Participants will learn about buying a home. Sessions are open to everyone regardless of income, credit ratings, or downpayment availability.

The workshop will be held at the Tufts Library, 46 Broad St., Weymouth.

Times are:

• Saturday, Dec. 15, 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

• Monday, Dec. 17, 6 to 8:30 p.m.

• Thursday, Dec. 20, 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Participants must attend all three sessions in order to receive a certificate of attendance.

Workshop speakers are professionals from different real estate fields.

Participants receive a workbook, which contains references pertaining to home buying.

Upon completion of the course, participants will receive a certificate, which is a pre-requisite for downpayment closing cost assistance, favorable soft second and Mass Housing mortgages.

Registration is required. For more information on this workshop or future workshops, contact Ann Marie Casey at 617-479-8181 ext. 119.

Conway Real Estate Career Seminar Nov. 27

What Boomers Should Know

Parents Considering A Reverse Mortgage?

By GEORGE M. DeMELLO

Senior Vice President
Residential Lending,
Bank of Canton

As today's baby-boomers begin planning for their own retirement, they often find themselves considering not only their own financial well being, but their parents' as well. While many boomers and echo-boomers may not yet qualify for special mortgage opportunities, their parents certainly do, and Reverse Mortgages present tremendous benefits. The concern for many lending institutions is that not enough of this market segment fully understands their options.

According to a recent Harris Interactive Poll, 64 percent of adults are aware that Reverse Mortgages exist. More than half of those adults surveyed, however, do not understand how Reverse Mortgages work and less than two percent of those currently eligible for a Reverse Mortgage have actually taken advantage of the opportunity. With more institutions now offering and marketing Reverse Mortgages to seniors, it is more important than ever to know and understand this new product so you can advise your parents regarding their options and perhaps adjust your own future financial and retirement plans.

So what is a Reverse Mortgage?

A Reverse Mortgage is a home equity loan that allows seniors 62 and older to convert some of the equity accrued in their home into cash while still living there. A Reverse Mortgage works like a traditional mortgage, only in reverse. Instead of the borrower making payments to a lender, the lender makes payments to the borrower. It can be paid out in a lump sum or in monthly installments. Your parent(s) can use the money for anything, including medical expenses, credit card debt, living expenses, travel or home repair.

Who qualifies for a Reverse Mortgage?

Applicants must be at least 62 years of age and own their own home.

What other restrictions apply?

The home must be the applicant's primary residence. If there is an existing mortgage on the home, the lender will require that part of the Reverse Mortgage be used to pay off the balance. In addition, if the home is in need of repairs, money must also be set aside for this purpose.

Although it is not a long-term restriction, we ask our seniors to determine if they wish to remain in their home since a Reverse Mortgage may not make financial sense if they wish to sell the home in the near future.

What is the process of getting a Reverse Mortgage?

Knowledge is a priority at Bank of Canton, and we want to provide our clients with as much information as possible to help them make the best decision. We also ask them to bring a trusted family member, lawyer or financial planner with them to help them make this important financial decision.

Prospective clients meet with a Reverse Mortgage specialist to discuss what a Reverse Mortgage is, how much they can borrow, the closing costs involved and, finally, if a Reverse Mortgage is right for them. (The amount of money your parent(s) can borrow generally depends on their age, the home's value and location, the type of Reverse Mortgage they choose, and the closing costs and other fees associated with that type of loan.)

Finally, all clients are required to participate in a Reverse Mortgage counseling session with an independent, government-certified counseling agency either in-person or over the phone to discuss their particular situation in detail before they are allowed to take on a Reverse Mortgage.

When must the Reverse Mortgage be repaid?

The Reverse Mortgage loan is due and payable when the homeowner sells his or her property or no longer occupies the property as a primary residence. Although there has been much controversy around the issue of whether or not the homeowner is actually selling the home to the lending institution, this is NOT the case.

For example, if your parents were to sell their property, they would use a portion of the sale to pay off the equity they borrowed. Similarly, if you or your siblings are to inherit the home and later sell it, you would have to use a portion of the sale price to repay the equity borrowed on the home. If you or your siblings would like to live in the home, you could then take out a "forward" mortgage to cover the Reverse Mortgage loan.

What are the potential risks and benefits?

We make it a priority at Bank of Canton for our clients to understand exactly what they are undertaking when applying for a Reverse Mortgage. For example, not many prospective clients understand that the interest on a Reverse Mortgage loan is compounded (meaning that interest is being paid on both the outstanding principal and the interest which accrues each month). This compounded interest causes an increasing portion of the outstanding equity in the home to be used to cover interest over time. For this reason, we ask our seniors to borrow exactly what they need to supplement their income in advance, so they don't end up paying interest on money they don't need.

Why are Reverse Mortgages becoming popular?

Reverse Mortgages are an attractive option for senior citizens who would like to retire, but find themselves "house rich and cash poor." As 77 million baby boomers begin reaching retirement age, many ask themselves, "Am I ready?" Many analysts suggest that, with concerns about insufficient benefits for retirees and underfunded federal government entitlement programs that will soon be overwhelmed by ballooning demand, Reverse Mortgages are about to become more popular.

According to the National Center for Policy Analysis, by 2030, the midpoint of baby boomers' retirement years, the federal government will either have to double social security tax rates or halve all retirement benefit payments. Additionally, federal, state and local governments have $5 trillion in future benefit obligations promised to civil service workers, and American corporations owe $450 billion in pension and $350 billion in post-retirement health care benefits, all of which are underfunded. Many financial institutions are now offering Reverse Mortgages because they foresee this product as a valuable tool to boomers who may not have "planned ahead" and saved enough in private retirement funds to cover shortfalls in government- or employer-funded entitlement benefits.

Reverse Mortgages offer an excellent alternative for anyone preparing for worry-free retirement. But, as with any major financial decision, caution must be exercised. In the case of Reverse Mortgages, in particular, self-knowledge and good planning are the keys to success. Learn as much as you can about this option; ask questions of your lender; ask others who you trust. Your goal...and our goal for you...is a financially stable, hassle-free retirement for both you and your parents.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your work requires increased effort during the next few days. But it will all pay off down the line. Things ease up in time for weekend fun with family and/or friends.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your genuine concern for others could prompt you to promise more than you can deliver. It's best to modify your plans now, before you wind up overcommitted later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A situation that seems simple at first glance needs a more thorough assessment before you give it your OK. Dig deeper for information that might be hidden from view.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Careful: Right now, things might not be quite what they appear. Even the intuitive Crab could misread the signs. Get some solid facts before you act on your suspicions.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your energy levels are high, allowing you to complete those unfinished tasks before you take on a new project. A social invitation could come from an unlikely source.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might think you're helping, but unless you're asked for a critique, don't give it. If you are asked, watch what you say. Your words should be helpful, not hurtful.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your attempt at mediating disputes might meet some opposition at first. But once you're shown to be fair and impartial, resistance soon gives way to cooperation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Go ahead. Reward yourself for helping settle a disturbing workplace situation. On another note: A personal relationship might be moving to a higher level.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A sudden change of heart by a colleague might create some momentary uncertainty. But stay with your original decision and, if necessary, defend it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Rely on a combination of your sharp instincts along with some really intense information-gathering to help you make a possibly life-changing decision.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Instead of worrying if that new person in your life will stay or leave, spend all that energy on strengthening your relationship so it becomes walk-out resistant.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A sudden financial dry spell could reduce your cash flow almost to a trickle. But by conserving more and spending less, you'll get through the crunch in good shape.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your ability to keep secrets makes you the perfect confidante for friends, family and co-workers.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Holiday Weight Gain Is Not Inevitable

By some estimates, U.S. adults can gain up to 10 pounds between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day by splurging on foods they might otherwise avoid or eat in moderation throughout the rest of the year. However, experts say the trend is avoidable, and there are several simple steps holiday revelers can take to prevent weight gain.

Helen Thompson, a registered dietitian and director of the Colorado chapter of America on the Move, says anyone watching their weight should aim to cut 100 calories from their daily diet and add 2,000 steps (1 mile) to their day, a moderate walking activity that can be completed in 15 to 20 minutes.

"These two steps alone can improve people's overall health and help them avoid the weight gain usually associated with the season," said Thompson, who works at the Center for Human Nutrition at the University of Colorado at Denver.

Thompson and her colleague, Elizabeth Kealey, also a registered dietitian at the CU Center for Human Nutrition, have come up with practical tips to help the health conscious cut 100 calories from their diets and stay on track through the holiday season:

- Snack on raw vegetables while cooking.
- Drink a tall glass of water before eating.

- Aim to fill half your plate with vegetables — and go easy on the sauces and dressings.
- Drink cider instead of eggnog or choose non-caloric beverages.

- Use fat-free sour cream and cream cheese when preparing dips.
- Use whipped butter or low-calorie tub margarines.

- Substitute chicken stock for butter when making gravy and stuffing.
- Enjoy the pie filling — leave the crust.

- Try raw vegetables instead of tortilla chips with dips.
- Enjoy favorite foods, but limit portion sizes.

- Use a smaller plate to control portions.

Tips for adding more steps to your day:

- On shopping trips, park farther away from the mall.
- Take advantage of winter activities during days off. Take the kids sledding.
- Wear a pedometer to monitor your steps. Aim for 7,000 or more total steps a day.
- Even though schedules are busier, try to maintain your usual exercise routine.
- Get your exercise in early — before your day fills up.

- Eat a light snack to curb your hunger before going to a party.
- Position yourself away from the holiday buffet table.

- Talk more, eat less.

As for exercise, Kealey said the holiday season is a great time to create new traditions such as walks around the neighborhood to view holiday decorations, tag football and other active games, or power walking at malls while doing post-Christmas shopping.

Elevate Your Eye Care

Tips To Maximize Contact Lens Safety

(NAPS) — Many contact lens wearers regard their contact lenses as consumer products that can be purchased and used with as much thought and consideration as toothpaste, sunscreen and other health and beauty items. However, it is important to understand that contact lenses are, in fact, medical devices and should be used with the same care and consideration as other medical products. To remind contact lens wearers about the importance of contact lens care, eye care professionals are encouraging people who wear contact lenses to "get back to the basics."

"We need to let the public know that there is new standard of care for soft contact lenses, with the important goal of preventing infection and promoting eye health," said Joe Shovlin, OD, from Scranton, Penn., one of the eye doctors participating in an awareness campaign called Elevate Your Eye (EYE) Care.

Based on his involvement in the EYE campaign, Dr. Shovlin offers five tips for lens wearers:

1. Rub, rub, rub your

Keeping Fit Over the Holidays

As the holiday season approaches, not only do the days get shorter, but so does the amount of time you can dedicate to your fitness program. Keeping a realistic and effective fitness routine during the busy holiday season can be challenging. But there is hope! With planning and some minor changes, you can enjoy a fit and guilt-free holiday.

• Set realistic goals. Setting a goal of losing body fat, gaining muscle or training for a marathon during one of the busiest times of the year can be self-defeating. Switch to a maintenance plan if you know your schedule and responsibilities will change during the holiday season. When your schedule returns to normal, your body will be ready to kick back into high gear.

• Plan ahead. Anticipate the change in schedule and priorities you will face as the holidays approach. Modify or condense your workouts to receive the same amount of cardiovascular and strength-training benefits within the realistic time available. For example, if you are accustomed to exercising five days a week strengthening a different muscle group each day, an effective modification could be switching to three days a week using full-body exercises with one day of rest in between.

• Tackle your stress. When the pressure of an action-packed holiday season begins to take its toll, work out! Exercise has been proven to reduce stress by providing an outlet to expend energy. Even if you can't complete your normal routine, taking a walk or running can help you relax and relieve stress.

Enjoy the holidays, and when you don't have time to do anything else, KEEP MOVING!

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Andrea Renee Wyatt, M.S.S., C.S.C.S., is a certified personal trainer with an extensive background in strength and conditioning as well as therapeutic recreation. lenses clean: In recent years, "no-rub" cleaning solutions became popular, but today most eye doctors advocate using a "rub and rinse" approach. "The latest research found that nearly all eye care professionals recommend a rub and rinse regimen to their patients," said Dr. Shovlin. "I believe that rubbing lenses clean is the safest approach, and would say, simply, 'no rub, no clean.'"

It is important to clean lenses each time they are handled. If you use a multipurpose solution, place a few drops of solution in your palm before placing your contact lens in your hand, then rub for a full 10 seconds (about the same amount of time it takes to send a text message) on each side of the lens in a back and forth and up and down motion across the lens. Then, rinse the lens with more of the solution for five seconds one each side before placing it in your contact lens case with brand-new multipurpose solution and allow lenses to soak for a minimum of six hours for disinfection, cleaning and protein removal.

2. Always rinse lenses with contact lens solution, never with tap water: Even though tap water is fine to drink, it may harbor a microorganism that can cause an infection in your eye. Consequently, lenses and tap water should not mix. Yet a recent survey found more than one in five contact lens wearers is unaware of the danger.

"Contact lens solutions are specially formulated to clean your lenses and guard your eyes," said Dr. David Hansen, OD, director of Professional Services at Advanced Medical Optics (AMO), an eye care company that is leading the efforts behind the EYE Care awareness campaign. "Using a quality lens solution, such as AMO's new Complete Multi-Purpose Solution Easy-Rub Formula, not only protects your eyes, but can also make them feel better," said Dr. Hansen.

3. Avoid wearing contacts in swimming pools, hot tubs and showers: Seventy percent of contact lens users report going into water while wearing their lenses. Although no one wants to be inconvenienced, the risk of tap water or treated water getting on your lenses becomes significant in a wet environment. Other concerns include the chemicals used in pools and hot tubs, and the risk of losing your lenses.

4. Don't let your lens case become an infection point: Doctors advise patients to clean out their lens cases every day with contact lens solution and replace their cases every one to three months. Think of your contact lens case as having an expiration date. A recent survey, though, found that the majority of contact lens wearers does not follow either recommendation, and some never clean their cases.

Contact lens wearers should also avoid "topping off" the case—that is, just adding a little new solution, without emptying the used solution and rinsing out the case. Used solution can harbor harmful bacteria, which can contribute to infection.

5. Listen to your eye doctor and make sure your eye doctor listens to you: "Your eyes are different from mine, so we need to discuss what works best for you as an individual," said Dr. Shovlin. He has seen problems arise when patients change disinfecting solutions without talking to their doctors. "Contact lenses are not just another product, but are more akin to a sensitive medical device," he said. "We need to all take more time to discuss eye safety—because our eyes are worth it."

COMING TO A GRINDING HALT

Bruxism, the medical term for the grinding of teeth or the clenching on jaws, is common among young children. In fact, three out of every ten children are grinders or clenchers. In most cases, the culprit is thought to be stress, usually nervous tension or anger. On the other hand, in some cases bruxism is related to a child's growth and development. Some children grind their teeth because the top and bottom teeth are not properly aligned. As a result, in some extreme circumstances, nighttime grinding and clenching can wear down tooth enamel, chip teeth, increase temperature sensitivity, and cause severe facial pain and jaw problems. If so, proper diagnosis and treatment with a night guard can help.

Because grinding often occurs during sleep, most people are unaware that they grind their teeth. If you suspect tooth grinding, talk to your dentist. He or she can examine your mouth and jaw for signs of bruxism, such as jaw tenderness and abnormalities in your teeth. You can expect us to give you gentle, comforting care using the most up-to-date techniques and equipment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our trained professional staff works as a team to make your visits pleasant. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We will always discuss your treatment options with you. We offer the services of anesthesia with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Children who are thumb suckers or who chew on the insides of their cheeks may also be grinding their teeth at night.

Div. 1 Central/East Champs

Red Raiders Win Thriller Against Quincy

By SEAN BRENNAN

The North Quincy Red Raider girls' volleyball team rallied back from a 1-0 match hole and a 23-15 deficit in Game Two to knock off Quincy High School, 3-2, in a thrilling and action-packed Division 1 Central/East volleyball championship at Eastern Nazarene College last Saturday night.

The Raiders (22-2), the three-time defending Atlantic Coast League champions, faced Milford High School, winner of the Central/West title, Tuesday night at Ashland High School in the state semifinal.

North Quincy had defeated the Presidents twice already this fall in ACL play, including six straight games (two 3-0 match sweeps) before getting over-powered in Game One of the Central/East final.

Playing before a packed house at ENC, the Presidents, behind the play of seniors Liz Bock (middle hitter), Meagan Tobin (right side hitter), Alicia Woodberry (setter), Marybeth Torpey (middle hitter) and Catey Stanton (outside hitter) took a commanding 19-13 lead in the first game before Red Raider second-year head coach Kerry Ginty took a time out to help settle her team.

But Game One belonged to the Presidents. By the time Quincy was serving for match point, the score was 24-17, and the Red Raiders were still searching for a cohesive front to quell the Presidents' offensive barrage. Quincy finished off the Raiders in quick fashion, and for the first time in the two teams' three matches, the Presidents held the early advantage.

As Game Two began, the Presidents controlled all of the momentum, and their play in the early stages of the second game, gave pause to the North Quincy bench and fans. The Presidents trailed 3-1 early in the game, but then went on a 19-12 run in the middle part of the game that ended after Bock drove the ball into the Red Raider court to give the Presidents a commanding 20-13 lead. Moments later, Quincy held a 23-15 lead, and was just two service points away from taking a 2-0 match lead, but North Quincy was not the three-time defending league champs for nothing.

Behind the serving of super sophomore Rushri Wijesundera (five straight service points) and the play of senior captain Virginia Wong (game-high 24 kills, seven blocks), seniors Rebecca Stanton and Rebecca Goreham and junior outside hitter Ashley Kostka and junior setter Kathleen Lynch the Red Raiders went on a remarkable 11-1 scoring run to take the momentum and the pivotal Game Two from right under the Presidents noses, 26-24.

"When we're down, she (Wijesundera) brings us back and when we're out of it, she puts us right back in it," said Ginty of her sophomore sensation. "She has been doing it for us all year long, and she did it again for us. She played amazing."

North Quincy used the momentum gained from their Game Two comeback throughout Game Three. After starting off the game with a 2-1 lead, the Raiders fell behind the Presidents 3-2 after Catey Stanton got up and blocked a Raider attempted return. But North quickly tied the score at 3-3, and went ahead for good 4-3 after Wong blocked a President return.

With Wijesundera serving, North found themselves up 8-4 before Quincy head coach Quincy High School last Saturday night at Eastern Nazarene College. The Raiders took the title 17-25, 26-24, 25-21, 23-25, 15-9.

Jacqui Niosi called a timeout to quiet the Raider charge. The break seemed to work as Quincy clawed their way back into the game to tie the score at 13-13, but North would score the next five points to take an 18-13 lead.

Facing a 23-20 deficit, the Presidents dug deep again and after a long volley back and forth, Quincy stole a point to make it a two-point game at 23-21. With the possibility of being up just one point, North's Rebecca Goreham saved a point with her foot.

Goreham, playing at the outside hitter position, could not get to a ball that was about to hit the court with her arms, used her left foot to keep the ball in play, and the Red Raiders capitalized to get to match point.

Rebecca Stanton's kill won Game Three, and the Raiders were one game away from advancing to the state semifinal.

In Game Four, Quincy jumped out to a 10-5 lead stealing back the crowd support and after they upped it to a 17-12 lead, Ginty called a time out to slow down the pace of the match. It seemed to work. With Wijesundera serving again, the Raiders got to within 17-16. Quincy took a 21-20 lead, but North tied the game at 21-21 soon after. The teams would exchange points and ties of 22-22 and 23-23 before Bock's kill gave Quincy match point. The Presidents took the Raiders best shot and rebounded with a big win in the fourth game, setting up a winner-take-all Game Five.

"They had us down to a science," said Ginty. "Niosi must have done so much work with them. They knew our weaknesses and they picked on them. They played unbelievable. I was just glad that we could make adjustments to get back in the match."

North behind the serving of Wijesundera and the play of Wong took a commanding 4-1 Game Five lead. After consecutive kills by Quincy's Meagan Tobin and Alicia

North Defeats Plymouth S., Assured Winning Record

By SEAN BRENNAN

Not even Mother Nature could prevent the North Quincy Red Raiders from improving their 2007 regular season record to 6-4 overall, and 5-3 in the Atlantic Coast League.

The Raiders took an early 14-0 lead over Plymouth South High School (5-5 overall, 4-4 in the ACL) last Friday night at a wet and cold Veterans Memorial Stadium, and held onto win 14-7. With the win, North Quincy is assured of a winning season for the first time since 2001.

The game began just before the weather went from cold and dry to cold and wet, but in the opening quarter, it did not seem to matter what the weather was like because both teams had a difficult time getting their offenses in gear.

At the end of the first quarter of play, neither team had produced an offensive play that went for more than eight yards. North punted the ball twice, while Plymouth South could do nothing on its only possession of the quarter.

In the second quarter, Plymouth South took possession of the football just outside of Red Raider territory, but quickly turned the ball over on an interception. North Quincy quarterback Dennis Martin (2-6, 66 yards, TD, 2 INTs) handed the ball off to senior running back Jon Cahill in first down for a short gain. On the next play from scrimmage, Martin dropped back to pass and lofted a ball down inside the Plymouth South 10-yard line. Senior captain and wide receiver Adam Tragellis watched while two defenders banged into each other, taking themselves out of the play. Tragellis came down with the ball on the three-yard line to set up a first-and-goal for North Quincy.

Martin (seven carries, eight yards, TD) called his own number on first down and slipped through a hole on his offensive line put North up 6-0 with just over six minutes to play in the half. Senior Zac Deegan's point after attempt was successful and after a three-play drive it was 7-0.

With four minutes remaining until the halftime break, the rain started coming down in buckets. As the teams entered the locker room, the faithful hometown fans retreated under the bleachers in an attempt to stay dry and warm. But Mother Nature was not letting up. When the teams came back onto the turf to start the second half, the rain had turned to sleet and freezing rain, and the product on the field slowed to a snail's pace.

After Plymouth South could do nothing against a stout Raider defense on their first possession, the Raiders took the ball back and took a gamble on fourth-and-short that ultimately sealed the game.

Facing the prospect of kicking the ball back to Plymouth South from just inside the 50-yard line, the Raiders lined up instead to go for it on fourth down and inches. The move paid off when Martin called his own number once again and got the first down with a quarterback sneak.

Plymouth South 35-yard line, North Quincy head coach Jim Connor called for a passing play. Martin, facing an oncoming pass rush and the driving rain, spotted senior tight end Marcellus Lee down the seam between the hash marks and threw the ball in his direction. Lee took the pass away from three defenders and walked into the endzone for his first career touchdown. Deegan's second PAT put North Quincy up 14-0.

The remainder of the third quarter the Raider defense held Plymouth South to very little offense. South entered the contest averaging close to 20 points per game, but North's defensive backfield of Danny Jackson, Tragellis, Pat Watkins and Martin took away Plymouth South's Derrick Duquette's passing lanes and linebackers/defensive linemen Joe Beniot, Jesse Skomial, Dan Austin and Lee controlled the line of scrimmage.

"Our defense won this game for us," said Connor. "The defense played above their heads. They all deserve a game ball. They were outstanding all four quarters."

In the fourth quarter things got very interesting. Duquette, who could get nothing done through the air, finally got Plymouth South on the board. On a third down play from the NQ 40-yard line, he scrambled around the pocket and took off down the field. Five Raider defenders had a shot at him, but he escaped their tackles and scored to make it 14-7 with seven minutes to play.

North Quincy punted the ball back to South after they could do nothing on their next possession and on the punt a Plymouth South special team player blocked a NQ player away from the play that fired up the bench and coaching staff.

Connor called a safety blitz on first down and Watkins steamed in from the right end and buried Duquette as he threw. Lee picked off the duck and North was back in business with five minutes to play.

Martin would fumble on fourth down, but Plymouth South came up a yard short on fourth down. Martin was intercepted on the next North possession, but once again Plymouth South came up short in Raider territory and the Red Raiders took the ball back ran out the clock for the win.

The Red Raiders now prepare for the 75th annual Thanksgiving Day game against Quincy on Nov. 22. North looks for their seventh win of the year and their first against the Presidents in the last eight years.

Woodberry closed the gap to 7-6 North Quincy, the two teams went back and forth. At 9-9, North Quincy scored the next six points to win the match and take the title.

The two teams were as close to even as two teams could be, but in the end, the Red Raiders were that much better, but even in defeat, Quincy played exceptionally well.

"That was just great volleyball," said Quincy head coach Jacqui Niosi. "They are just such a great group of girls and are so much fun, all of them. They all improved so much this year."

Kwong, Jessica Ainsley, Nerry Francios, Rushri Wijesundera and Jen La.

The 2007 Presidents team includes seniors Hilary Mills, Liz Bock, Talisa Faust, Meagan Tobin, Kerri Ryan, Abigail Riddell, Alicia Woodberry, Sarah Sullivan, Marybeth Torpey and Catey Stanton, juniors Bryce McNally and Elisa Lam, sophomores Julia Yee, Kylie Kozlowski, Olivia Berry and Becca Shea and freshmen Kori Sorenson and Mary Parker.

Good Showing For Co-Ed Cross Country Team At Eastern Mass. Divisional 5K Championship

The Quincy/North Quincy co-ed cross-country teams competed in the 2007 Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association's (MIAA) Eastern Mass Divisional Cross Country 5K Championships at Franklin Park on Nov. 10.

The girls' contingent of Erica Brady, Jessica Davis, Mary Schwartz, Rachael Kananoff, Emily Zarnoch, Julie Ross and Katelyn Breen finished with a combined team score of 315 points, which was good enough for an 11th place finish in a field of 25 plus teams.

Brady, only a freshman, was the highest Q/NQ finisher. She finished the 5K race in twenty-first place with a time of 19:46.

Junior Jessica Davis completed the race in a time of 19:52, which was good enough for a twenty-fourth place finish. Davis and Brady both broke the twenty-minute mark and both finished in the top-25 out of a field of one hundred and eighty-one runners.

Sophomore Mary Schwartz was the next Q/NQ runner to cross the finish line. Schwartz completed the 5K in a time of 21:44, which put her in seventy-fourth place.

Juniors Rachael Kananoff and Emily Zarnoch finished in one hundred and eight and one hundred and ninth place with matching running times of 22:33.

Freshmen Julie Ross (116th place, 22:53) and Katelyn Breen (135th place, 23:33) rounded out the Quincy/North Quincy girls' team.

Dio Covais and Ryan Gorman finished the 5K race in twenty-fifth place out of thirty-five teams with 706 total points.

Matt McGroarty, a junior, finished the race in eighty-fourth place with a time of 17:37. He was the highest Q/NQ finisher in the boys' race.

Rob McGroarty, Matt's twin brother, ended the race in one hundred and twenty-second place in a time of 18:15. Senior Matt Meyers, who finished in 136th place, finished the 5K in a time of 18:28.

Freshman John Green finished in 179th place in a running time of 19:16, and sophomores Dio Covais (194th place, 19:35) and Ryan Gorman (233rd place, 21:47) rounded out the Quincy/North Quincy boys' team finishes.

Apaches Finish Season Undefeated, Capture QYF Crown

The North Quincy Apaches recently capped off an undefeated season with a hard-fought 6-0 victory over a tough West Quincy Elks team (5-2-1) to capture the 2007 Quincy Youth Football league title.

The only score of the game came at the end of the third quarter when the Apaches' defense had the Elks pinned deep in their own end and capitalized on an errant pitch on a sweep play. The ball bounced right into the path of Apache defender, Jack McDonald, who pounced on it for the only scoring in the championship game.

The first half was highlighted by team defense, as neither side could muster any points. The Apaches took the opening kickoff and had good field position, but a tough Elks defense forced a fumble, the first of four on the day for the Apache offense.

Early in the second quarter, the Apaches were forced to punt the ball from midfield and Pat Morrissey punted the ball inside the Elks' 10-yard line. The Elks went back on the offensive, but was stopped by a swarming Apache defense.

Cornerback Joey Lawlor had a huge tackle for a loss on the series.

Later in the quarter, Apaches' quarterback Mike McGrath made a perfect 20-yard pass to tight end Walter Hannon for a first down, but again the Elks defense stopped the promising drive.

In the third quarter, the Elks were driving and it looked like they were gaining momentum, but safety Eddie McDonough intercepted a pass and returned it twenty yards. Several plays later, the Apaches faced a fourth down and short, but could not muster the first down.

After another exchange of punts, the Apache defense again pinned the Elks deep in their own end. After a near miss safety call, the Elks fumbled on the sweep play, and McDonald recovered the loose ball in the endzone. That touchdown stood up as the Apache defense shutdown the Elks in the final quarter.

The Apaches earned their spot in the title game with a 14-6 win over the Milton Mustangs. Running back Matt McGuire scored from twelve yards out with only twenty-six seconds

Their 9-0 season was highlighted by the running attack of McGuire and Adam Nazzaro, while Morrissey and Jason Lam also saw action running the ball for North Quincy. The Apache passing attack was also impressive, with McGrath finding one of his three favorite receivers, Hannon, McDonough and his twin brother, Darren. Paving the way for the offense was the great play of Lucas Yanovich, Mike Gallato, Kevin Riordan, Craig Hines, Sean Ryan and Shane Cenvrvels on the offensive line.

Not to be outdone by the offense, the Apache defense, under Coach John Desmond, was impressive, holding opposing teams to one touchdown or less in all nine games. On the defensive line, the team was led by McGuire, Yanovich, Gallato and Riordan and got strong efforts from Hines, Ryan, McDonald, Vincent Tran and John Clifford. McDonough and Darren McGrath both played well at the safety positions, while Lawlor, Hannon and Will Smith saw time at the corners. Morrissey and Nazzaro played well at inside linebacker and Dylan O'Neil and Alex Arabiam also saw action on defense.

"We got big games from our backs all year, but the key to this game was the play of our offensive line and defense line," said Coach Tom Burke after the championship game. "We pretty much controlled the line of scrimmage the entire game. And once Morrissey got off that nice punt to pin them deep, with our defense playing as well as they were we knew it was only a matter of time until we got a break. Our kids worked hard all year for this, and the coaches are all proud of what they accomplished. We congratulate the Elks on a well played game, and a great season."

NQHS' Rose Devlin Named ECAC Player Of The Week

University of Massachusetts-Boston women's ice hockey player Rose Devlin, a North Quincy High School graduate ('04), was named the Eastern College Athletic Conference East Player of the Week for Oct. 26 to Nov. 4.

In the Beacons' only game of that week, Devlin, a defenseman, tallied two points with an assist and the game-winning goal in a 5-4 victory to open the season at Salve Regina University on Nov. 3. The two-point game marked the fourth time in her career that Devlin has registered a multi-point effort. The game-winner was the first of her career.

The Red Raider product is currently tied for the team lead in points (two), goals

(one) and assists (one). She ranks 11th in the nation in points per game, 12th in goals per game and 13th in assists per game. Devlin also ranks fifth among ECAC East players in points, goals and assists and leads the league with two power play points.

She is tied atop the nation's leaderboard for points by a defenseman.

For her career, Devlin, a senior, has played in 73 games to rank ninth all-time at UMass-Boston, while racking up 16 assists to rank 10th on the Beacons' career list. She is fourth among UMB defensemen with 20 career points.

President Fall To Sandwich

The Quincy Presidents made the long trip down to Cape Cod last Friday night to play in an Atlantic Coast League game against Sandwich High School. The Presidents' journey did not produce the results that they were hoping for as Quincy lost to Sandwich 29-7.

The loss, Quincy's second league defeat in a row, puts the Presidents' record overall at 2-7 and 2-6 in the ACL with just one game remaining on the schedule. That is the annual showdown with the North Quincy Red Raiders on Thanksgiving Day (game time 10 a.m.).

Against Sandwich, the Presidents fell into the same trap that has been their crutch all season: the inability to move the ball on offense.

Through nine games, Quincy is averaging just fewer than ten points per game (9.7 ppg.), while allowing 22.3 points per game on defense.

But when it comes to Thanksgiving, the Presidents seem to rise to the moment. Quincy has won eight straight Turkey Day games in a row and twelve of the last thirteen. The Presidents defeated the Red Raiders 10-7 last year.

is not a requirement. All youths are welcome to attend. Contact Rich Hanlon at (617) 827-8697 for additional information.

North Beats Milton 5-4 In A Shoot Out To Win 'Town Line Trophy'

The North Quincy High School boys' soccer team wrapped up their 2007 regular season against Milton High School two weeks ago. After six years of playing against each other in non-league competition, the two schools instituted the "Town Line Trophy" to be given annually to the school that comes out on top in the game.

The contest this fall ended in a 0-0-regulation time tie, and as a result, the teams agreed to decide a winner through a shoot out.

North Quincy senior defender Ryan Keaney scored first for the Red Raiders in the shoot out followed by two missed chances by the Raiders. After Milton scored on their first three shoot out attempts, the on-field officials mistakenly declared Milton the winner.

But after a quick conference between NQ head coach Rich Hanlon and the referees, the shoot out continued according to MIAA rules, which state a shoot out can not be decided until both teams complete five attempts.

NQ senior defender Tim Schow buried the ball in the far corner for the Raiders second goal to make it 3-2 Milton. Sophomore goalie Ryan Louis followed Schow's goal with a sensational save on Milton's fourth attempt, and then came out of the net to score with a hard shot to the left corner of the net, tying the shoot out at 3-3.

A tremendous kick save by Louis on Milton's final attempt sealed the shoot out tie, and sent the shoot out into a sudden death format. In sudden death, NQ senior defender Chris Doyle scored his first high school goal to keep the Raiders alive, but Milton came right back and tied it again.

NQ junior Mike Piroli calmly put the ball in the net on the Raiders seventh shoot out attempt, and when the next Milton player missed, the "Town Line Trophy" went to the Raiders.

"It was an exciting way to end a great season," said Hanlon.

The 2007 Red Raiders will graduate seniors Sean Clifford, John Cicciariello, Dan Richards, Alex Bream, Marc DeLucia, Eoin Kenny, Luis Escobar, Besmir Sulcman, Matt Johnson, Zach O'Hara, Elbara Ziade, Pavli Permeti and Kwasi Osei.

"These seniors will be sorely missed when the graduate in June," added Hanlon. "But with the promising players moving up from this year's junior varsity squad and the players we have returning from this year's team, I am optimistic about a post-season tournament appearance next year."

SCOTT DEWARE

"Obedience is the Mother of success." - Aeschylus... "He who obeys with modesty will be worthy some day of being allowed to command." - Plato

We know that at times it is hard for all of us to confront the necessity of obedience and accept it. Obedience is not a popular word in our society. It is a very important word, nonetheless. We have to submit to some sort of obedience in every act and thought of our lives. We may not like this; we may rebel; but the fact remains that as we go through life, we are constantly being called upon to obey. We must obey traffic lights and rules... We must pay government taxes... We have to be on time regarding work hours...

Obedience is the first step in the direction of self-control, and self-control lies at the basis of moral character.

We know that a good home is a home where obedience is required and accepted in good spirit. Granted, children may not want to obey! Did we not feel the same when we were children?...

Yet, should we not remember that there is no moral character without self-control and no self-control without the willingness to obey?... Obedience... Popular or not... It is really quite a word!

PRAYER

To the Application
To the Holy Spirit
Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, who light our roads so that I may attain my goal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again, that I never want to be separated from you even in spite of all material illusion. I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. Repeat this prayer for 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the favor requested will be granted, even if it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after favor is granted without mentioning the favor. Only your initials should appear at the bottom. M.C., K.C., R.L.

1,000 Attend Safety Fair; 700 Receive Flu Shots At Clinic

Upwards of 1,000 people turned out for Quincy's third annual Public Safety Fair Sunday to check on the city's preparedness for emergencies and to receive shots to protect them from the flu.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said more than 700 people got flu shots from public health nurses in the first of two free public clinics in preparation for the winter flu season.

The second clinic will be held Wednesday, Nov. 28 from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the Elks Lodge, 254 Quarry St.

The fair allowed the Fire, Police, Health, Emergency Management and Public Works Department to show off their safety equipment and show residents how to prepare for emergencies.

On display were many of the pieces of new public safety equipment purchased by the city with the more than $2 million in federal grant funds received in the past four years.

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, Quincy

Medical Center, Keyspan, National Grid and others also took part in the fair in the Koch Park and Recreation Complex in Merrymount Park.

The fair was developed by Mayor William Phelan in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina to update residents on the latest advances in emergency preparations.

"The event allows us an opportunity to reinforce the importance of preparing your family for any kind of emergency," said Phelan.

"There are simple steps you can take to make any situation better. If this event prompts people to think about preparedness, it is a resounding success."

If you missed the fair and still want to learn the best ways to prepare for emergencies from power outages to hurricanes, visit the city's emergency management page at www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

Curt Schilling To Appear With Family

90 Units In 55th Christmas Parade Sunday

What may be the third largest spectator event in Massachusetts will step off for the 55th time Sunday, Nov. 25, at 12:30 p.m. at the corner of Elm and Hancock Streets, Quincy Center.

Curt Schilling, who helped Boston to its first world series championship in 86 years, will now help Quincy celebrate its 55th Christmas Festival Parade Sunday.

The 41-year-old pitcher, who recently signed for another year with the Red Sox, will ride behind a float containing Wally the Green Monster, the mascot for Fenway's left field wall.

With him in the open convertible will be his wife, Shonda, and their four children, Gehrig, Gabrielle, Grant and Garrison. The Schilling family lives in Medfield.

"We are pleased that they are able to join us," said George White, chairman of the Christmas Festival Committee. "When they see the number of people watching the parade they will enjoy the day."

An estimated 200,000 turn out yearly to watch the parade as it winds its way down Hancock Street to East and West Squantum Streets at North Quincy High School.

Only the 26 mile, 385 yard route of the Boston Marathon and the Boston Pops Fourth of July Concert on the Esplanade have been known to draw larger crowds with regularity.

Some 90 units will take part in this year's parade, including the ever popular Shriners Clowns, the Boston Police Gaelic Bagpipe Band, and the Hallamore Clydesdales.

The rain date for the parade will be Sunday, Dec. 3, also at 12:30 p.m. Quincy Access Television will carry a news crawl if the parade is postponed.

The parade theme, "Christmas Celebrations," will be reflected in the floats which will be rated by the judges as they pass through the Cottage Avenue/Hancock Street area.

The awards for best floats and bands will be made in the North Quincy High School gym after the parade.

The parade theme, "Christmas Celebrations," was proposed by Janice Magee of Quincy, who will ride in the parade.

High school bands participating: Douglas, New Bedford, Weymouth, Bishop Hendricks, David Prouty of Sterling, Immaculate Heart of Mary, Somerset, East Bridgewater, Acton-Boxborough, Joseph Case of Swansea and the combined Quincy/North Quincy bands.

Other bands: Boston City Club, 103rd Electrician Pipe Band, Natick Legion Post, Boston Police Gaelic Bagpipe Band, Waltham Legion Post, and the Silver Dolphin Drill Team.

Entered floats: Jack Conway Co., Inc., Eastern Bank, Quincy Partnership, Quincy Credit Union, Concert in the Park Gazebo, Quincy High School, Woodward School, Sacred Heart School, Bare Cove Fire Museum/Fire Engine, D & B Tree Service, Nanci's Barber Shop, Christmas Festival Committee.

Specialty Units: Janice Magee, theme winner, QHS/NQHS Beauty Queens, Hallamore Clydesdales,

What kind of mortgage are you looking for?

- If you're a first-time homebuyer, you probably have lots of questions. That's fine. We're happy to give you the time you need. That's the kind of bank we are — that's the kind of people we are.
- If you're an experienced homebuyer putting down a significant amount on a new home, our quicker-payoff 15-Year Mortgage might be right for you. Or maybe you'd rather have a 30-Year Loan. It's your choice!
- And if you want to refinance using your equity, we can help make that happen too.

Colonial Federal is a dependable, trustworthy community bank. Our loan officers are not on commission so their only goal is to help you get a loan you understand and can live with. If you pay your loan off early, we don't hit you with pre-payment penalties. And we're here to answer your questions after the closing too. Sound good? Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, Cathy Barry or Eileen Flibotte at 617-471-0750.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Nov. 20, 1820, the American whaler Essex is attacked by an 80-ton sperm whale 2,000 miles from the western coast of South America. Herman Melville's classic novel "Moby-Dick" (1851) was inspired in part by the story of the Essex.

• On Nov. 19, 1863, at the dedication of a military cemetery in Pennsylvania during the Civil War, President Abraham Lincoln delivers one of the most memorable speeches in American history, the 272-word Gettysburg Address.

• On Nov. 23, 1936, the first issue of the pictorial magazine Life is published. Publisher Henry Luce meant for the magazine to provide a way for the American people "to see life; to see the world; to eyewitness great events."

• On Nov. 25, 1947, film industry executives announce that 10 directors, producers and actors who have refused to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee, and name others who allegedly belonged to the Communist Party, will be fired or suspended. The "Hollywood Ten" were also jailed and fined for contempt of Congress.

• On Nov. 22, 1955, record company RCA announces that it has purchased the recording contract for Elvis Presley from Sun Records for $35,000 — a record sum at the time. Presley received a $5,000 advance, which he used to buy a pink Cadillac for his mother.

• On Nov. 24, 1971, hijacker D.B. Cooper parachutes from a Northwest Orient Airlines 727 with $200,000 in ransom money in his possession. In 1980, an 8-year-old boy found nearly $5,880 of the money along the Columbia River, 5 miles from Vancouver, Washington. Cooper's fate remains a mystery.

• On Nov. 21, 1980, 350 million people around the world tune in to television's popular primetime drama "Dallas" to find out who shot J.R. Ewing. The new episode solved the mystery, identifying Kristin Shepard, J.R.'s sister-in-law and his former mistress, as the culprit.

An Election Night To Remember

It isn't easy to be a good loser.

Especially in politics.

But Bill Phelan was one last election night when he strode into Tom Koch's victory celebration to congratulate the man who had just taken the mayor's office away from him.

It got me to thinking about my favorite Quincy election night as a newspaperman back in 1959.

That was the year in which City Council President

James McIntyre, only 29 challenged the veteran, powerful and popular incumbent Amelio Della Chiesa, 58.

It wasn't who won or lost that made it so memorable an election night but how it ended.

It had been a hard-hitting and one of the best mayoral races in years.

I walked into McIntyre's campaign headquarters on Hancock Street, just a couple of doors from where The Quincy Sun is now located, election night, Nov. 3.

He and James "Pete" Ricciuti, his campaign manager and long-time friend were studying what they considered key early returns.

"I don't think we're going to make it," McIntyre said, shaking his head.

Later figures would prove him right. They would eventually show Della Chiesa the winner by a margin of 2,117 votes-17,650 to 15,533.

It would be McIntyre's only political defeat.

McIntyre's wife, Sheila, was there with him. She had promised to call her mother in Niagara Falls, NY with the outcome. And, when it looked certain it was not going to be their night, she made the call.

"Jimmy didn't make it," she told her mother and added, "But it's only an election. We lost something more important than that."

She was referring to the death shortly before the election of their infant son, William, named for McIntyre's father, Police Captain William McIntyre.

Now, it was getting late. McIntyre and Ricciuti looked at one another and knew what they were going to do.

"Let's go," McIntyre said.

I went along with them walking across the street to old City Hall and climbing the stairs to the mayor's office. Della Chiesa had gone there after leaving his campaign headquarters, which were across the street from McIntyre's.

He was alone when we walked in.

"Congratulations, Mel," McIntyre said, extending his hand. "You are still the mayor."

The two shook hands and then Della Chiesa, like a father, slipped his arm around McIntyre's shoulder and said, "You're young, Jimmy. Your day will come."

And, it did in 1965 when Della Chiesa retired after 12 years as mayor, eight under Plan A and four under Plan E and McIntyre succeeded him, defeating Joseph LaRaia.

Della Chiesa mused he was giving up his seat "for the woman I love," borrowing from King Edward VIII. That was his wife, Evelyn, whom he said had been "a political widow" during his 22-year career and wanted to spend more time with her.

Della Chiesa and McIntyre had campaigned hard against one another. Their political views differed, Della Chiesa a Republican and McIntyre a Democrat. But they shared a deep love and respect for Quincy.

RICCIUTI

The election was over that night in 1959. One had won, the other had lost. But they could still be friends. It would still be Mel and Jimmy.

The years passed.

Della Chiesa became ill and McIntyre would visit him. Near the end, he would sit and hold Della Chiesa's hand, comforting him.

Della Chiesa died in October 1975 at age 74.

McIntyre, who had served also as a state representative and state senator was counsel for the Massachusetts Senate when he died at age 53 in March 1984.

The two are fondly remembered as "two of Quincy's greatest mayors."

And to me, they were also role models in how to accept political defeat and victory.

FORMER WARD 6 City Councillor Alicia Gardner is returning to the political scene.

She's running for Democratic State Committeewoman in the Norfolk-Plymouth District. Incumbent Bernice Mader, who served in Mayor James Sheets' administration, is not seeking re-election.

Gardner is Director of Support Services in the Norfolk County Register of Deeds office.

Christine Cedrone, former School Committeewoman, is seeking another term as Republican State Committeewoman.

Patrick McDermott, Norfolk County Register of Probate and former city councillor, is a candidate for re-election as Democratic State Committeeman.

Dominic Paulo of Quincy and Matthew Sisk of Braintree are candidates for Republican State Committeeman.

ATTY. GEORGE BURKE plans to keep his Thanksgiving Day tradition streak alive.

Burke will be in the stands for his 64th consecutive Quincy-North football game.

The streak started when he was in the seventh grade at Central Junior High School, and continued through Quincy High School into this year.

Anyone top that?

OOPS: Whenever the phone rings and its Frank McCauley I answer, "What now?" Frank keeps a close eye on me and let's me know when I boot one.

Last week we noted that Ward 1 had the largest voter turnout Nov. 6 with 53 percent well over the city's 44 percent.

And, we said, Precinct 5 had 51 percent. It was actually 61 percent, says Frank. (He's right). It was a typo.

One of these days I'm going to get one on him. Haven't been able to yet.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1964 POSTCARD shows Quincy Center looking north on Hancock Street from its intersection with Revere Road. This is a Sunday morning picture so there is not much traffic, but the square was still a vibrant Shopperstown at this time. Shortly after this picture was taken, Sears and Roebuck expanded their store into the boarded up Capitol Theater Building on the left. Now, though, Sears, Touraines, Woolworth's, The Lerner Shop and Remick's down on the left are all history. On the right all the store names shown on the signs are gone from here as well, except the Spotlight, which has changed its name but is still a tavern. Notice the once familiar blue "City of Quincy Shopperstown" sign in front of Charlie Bean's music store on the far right. Today, with big plans for a revitalized downtown, the city hopes to take the old theater building down so that the new Concourse roadway can pass through the foreground of this picture. Perhaps a new vibrant downtown will someday have a new but different name as meaningful as was "Shopperstown." To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy Dry Dock Property Sold To New York Firm

By FRANK McCAULEY

The idle Quincy Dry Dock and Yacht Corporation property on Town River, formerly the Baker Yacht Club Basin, has been purchased by the Bruton Development Company of New York.

President and treasurer of the company is Joseph A. Bruton, a New York realtor and a former resident of Quincy Point. Associated with him is Atty. John P. Flavin of 14 Neponset Rd., Quincy, who is assistant treasurer of the company.

The property consists of 456,000 square feet and is assessed for $97,000.

Commenting on the sale, William A. O'Connell, executive vice-president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, said, "I believe that this property is one of the most valuable waterfront properties in New England."

CITY MANAGER TO SPEAK AT CHAMBER MEETING

Civic and municipal affairs will be featured at the annual membership meeting of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Neighborhood Club in early December.

City Manager William J. Deegan will be the guest speaker. He is expected to throw some light on the 1954-tax rate, discuss the capital improvement program and speak on various city services.

George A. Daly, Jr., former president of the Chamber is committee chairman. John P. Flavin, former city solicitor and city councillor, will be the toastmaster.

YARRINGTON DEMANDS NEW RENT CONTROL BOARD

George A. Yarrington, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, asked City Manager William J. Deegan to request the resignation of all members of the Quincy Rent Control Board and appoint a new board. Yarrington asked for the appointment of a new board "that will work in harmony with the director and with each other and produce results in the public interest."

The present board, according to Yarrington, is stymied by continual bickering that goes on between two members.

QUINCY-ISM

Foy's Markets, 1177 Hancock St. and 60 Franklin St., Quincy, were offering "Ready For The Oven Turkeys - 11 to 14 pounds, 63 cents a pound and 19 pounds and over, 55 cents a pound." "Goody" Bardos South Shore Shoe Repair, 47 Franklin St., South Quincy, suggested "Bring in Your Entire Family's Shoes for a Free Checkup." Rev. Charles A. Wing, minister of the United First Parish Church of Quincy, was the exchange minister of the Sunday morning service at the First Church in Weymouth. His topic "The Battlefields of Life" The Adams Theater, School St., Quincy, double-feature included James Stewart and Joanne Dru in "Thunder Bay" and Edward G. Robinson and Vera Ellen in "Big League." The Maple Cafe, 6 Maple St., Quincy, was advertising an "Old Fashioned Thanksgiving Day Menu," Turkey with all the fixings. Adults: $2.50, children under 12: $1.25. Muriel Ford, 11 Winslow Rd., Squantum. Stephen Asnes, 67 1/2 Stewart St., Quincy Point, and Nancy Coggi, 66 Center St., Quincy were winners in the weekly Patriot Ledger's "Misspelled Word Contest." Each winner received a ticket to the Strand Theater. The 48th annual ball of the Quincy Police Mutual Aid Association was held at the Masonic Temple, Quincy Square. Patrolman Kenneth Poulin, president of the association, was chairman of the event, assisted by Captain Anthony Caperci, treasurer and Sgt. William Dillon, secretary. Alexander Smith was chairman of the reunion committee of the Quincy High School Class of 1928. The committee is seeking to locate missing classmates. Mrs. John Bell and Mrs. Harold Hillier were in charge of planning for the annual fair of the Quincy Point Congregational Church. The fair will be held Dec. 3. Mrs. William Maiers, Mrs. Ernest Bizzozero and Mrs. I. Francis Murdock were in charge of arrangements for the annual dinner dance of the Quincy Women's Club. Sgt. David A. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Foster Taylor, 44 Elm Ave., Wollaston, returned to the United States after serving 16 months in Japan. Girl Scout Troop No. 91 welcomed five new scouts at the investiture ceremony held at the Nathaniel Hunting School. The new scouts are Joan Aldred, Maureen Coughlin, Kathleen O'Brien, Leslie Reviere and Judith Sullivan.

MEMA Offers Safety Tips for Power Outages

Storms hit in all seasons and power outages often follow. For that reason, the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) recommends that residents be aware of potential danger and be prepared for emergencies.

Strong winds and heavy snow can cause utility poles to topple and snap tree limbs, according to MEMA Director Don Boyce who warns they may "fall on power lines and disrupt electrical service."

Downed wires and trees are dangerous because electrical wires can be hidden from view. Keep children and pets away from such areas. Never attempt to touch or move downed lines. Call the utility company to report any outage-related problem.

MEMA officials recommend the following safety precautions to protect life and property.

- Check flashlights and portable radios to ensure they are working and you have extra batteries. Check your Family Disaster supply Kit. A radio is an important source of critical weather and emergency information.

- Fill your bathtub and all spare water containers with water if you water supply could be affected by a power outage. The water in the bathtub should be used for sanitation purposes only.

- Set refrigerator and freezer to their coldest setting. During the outage, do not open the refrigerator or freezer door unnecessarily. Food can stay cold in a full refrigerator for up to 24 hours and in a well-packed freezer for 48 hours (24 hours if it is half-packed).

- Persons with medication that requires refrigeration should check with their pharmacist for guidance on proper storage during an extended outage.

- Unplug all sensitive electronic equipment as power surges can damage televisions, stereo, microwave ovens, computers and automatic garage door openers. Review the process for manually operating an electric garage door.

Forum On Alcoholism For Families Nov. 28

Quincy Medical Center will host a free information session for families dealing with problems of alcoholism Thursday, Nov. 28, from 7 to 8 p.m. in First Floor Conference Rooms B and C.

Dr. Timothy O'Farrell, professor of psychology at Harvard Medical School, will speak at the session, entitled "The Family Forum: Coping with Alcoholism."

Dr. O'Farrell is also director of the Family Project at Bay State Services, a research study offering free treatment to people and families struggling with substance abuse.

Dr. Daurice Cox, director of clinical services at Bay State, called Family Project an innovative treatment offered to individuals with alcohol or drug abuse to see if adding family counseling to one-on-one recovery counseling leads to more sobriety.

For more information, contact Jane Alter, clinical director of Family Project, at 508-208-5802.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Nancy's Spicy Pumpkin Cake

It was our granddaughter's 9th birthday and since she plays the guitar, her mother Nancy made a cake shaped like a guitar.

It had a white cream cheese frosting and chocolate printing. We all thought it was either a chocolate or white cake.

As it was being sliced, we were wrong on both counts. It turned out to be a spicy pumpkin cake and one I will make for Thanksgiving Day.

SPICY PUMPKIN CAKE

- 4 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 16 oz. pumpkin (unsweetened)
- 2 cups flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 teaspoons cloves
- 2 teaspoons nutmeg
- 2 teaspoons allspice
- 1 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon baking soda

Mix the egg, sugar, oil and pumpkin together. Add the dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 35 minutes or until toothpick or knife comes out clean.

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

- 1 ounce package cream cheese
- 5 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups powdered sugar

Mix the cream cheese and butter until blended. Add the vanilla and the powdered sugar gradually until well-blended.

P.S. For extra stuffing place in lightly sprayed muffin tins and bake in a 350-degree oven for 25 minutes.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING!

Jewish Literature, Identity Topic At Crane Library Nov. 26

The "Let's Talk About It" series at Thomas Crane Public Library will focus on "Jewish Literature- Identity and Imagination" Monday, Nov. 26, at 7 p.m. at the main library, 40 Washington St.

Dr. Jeslyn Medoff, Adjunct Professor of England Language and Literature at the University of Massachusetts, Boston, will lead this discussion.

During this series, speakers explore the relationship between Jewish people and neighboring cultures and trace the Jewish experience from Muslim Spain to Bolshevik Russia to contemporary America.

The five-part series "Neighbors: The World Next Door" uses contemporary and classic books for the discussions. This session will explore details from Jan Gross's book, "Neighbors" which includes an account of a 1941 massacre that occurred in Jedwabne in northeastern Poland.

Copies of each book will be available for all registered participants in the series discussion.

The Thomas Crane Library is one of over 250 libraries nationwide receiving grants to the host the series developed by Nextbook and the American Library Association.

Eastern Nazarene College has provided local support for the program.

For more information or to register, call 617-376-1305.

ENC's 'Handel's Messiah' Concert Dec. 1, 2 At Wollaston Nazarene Church

The Eastern Nazarene College Choral Union will present its 74th annual production of Handel's Messiah at two free concerts at the Church of the Nazarene of Wollaston, 37 East Elm Av. on Saturday, Dec. 1 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 2 at 6 p.m.

Asst. Professor of Music Delvyn Case will conduct the ENC Choral Union, performing with a 25-member chamber orchestra and four virtuoso professional vocal soloists.

The soloists have performed nationally, internationally and regionally. They are Gayle Berman, soprano; Susan Forrester, mezzo-soprano; Jason McStoots, tenor and Lawrence Indik, baritone.

Berman has performed as a soloist with opera companies, orchestras and on recital series throughout North America and Europe. Her engagements have included Rome Festival Opera, Abendmusik, Chorus Pro Musica and San Antonio Opera.

Forrester has recorded for the Discovery Channel and has been acclaimed for her performances with New England ensembles including Bel Canto Opera, Boston Lyric Opera, Cambridge Lieder and Opera Boston.

Critics have called McStoots' tenor voice the "perfect light-opera voice" and praised his "real acting ability." He has appeared with such groups as the Boston Lyric Opera, the Handel Choir of Baltimore, Granite State Opera and Cape Cod Opera.

Indik is known throughout the United States for a wide range of repertoire including Oratorio, chamber music, and solo performances. He has also appeared in numerous operative roles with recent roles as Marcello in La Boheme and Malatesta in Don Pasquale. He is an active member of the Philadelphia music community.

For more information about the concert, call 617-745-3715.

‘Healthy Spa Party’ At Adams Shore Library

A session on safe cosmetics entitled the "Healthy Spa Party" will be held from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., Monday, Dec. 3, at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St.

Speakers will be Erin Boles, M.S.W., of the Massachusetts Breast Cancer Coalition and Christine Way-Cotter, owner-operator of Skinsations Day Spa, Norwell.

Way-Cotter and Boles will outline the healthiest approach to the selection of cosmetics and body, skin and personal hygiene products. Certain cosmetics have been linked to cancer and reproductive harm.

Program speakers and sponsors will provide samples and light refreshments.

Way-Cotter specializes in herbal skin care, massage, yoga and healing therapies. She uses many herbs to create her skin care products.

Boles is Associate Executive Director of the Massachusetts Breast Cancer Coalition and leads the coalition's public affairs and grassroots efforts. She also acts as MBCC's liaison to the Alliance for a Healthy Tomorrow and the National Campaign for Safe Cosmetics.

The program is co-sponsored by the Quincy Environmental Network and the Massachusetts Breast Cancer Coalition. For more information, call 617-376-1325.

Katherine Aalto Honored At 102, Her Life Has Been Happy And Simple

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

Thirteen years before Nov. 11 became a date to remember in U.S. history, Quincy resident Katherine Aalto was born to Irish immigrants in Boston.

Last week, she celebrated her 102nd birthday with friends and family at the Adult Day Care Center at the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps.

The middle child of nine siblings, Katherine recalls taking a ride in her brother's Model T Ford, and a coke-fueled furnace in her childhood home, attended to by her brothers. And she remembers assisting her mother in the kitchen, where mornings always featured a big pot of oatmeal on the stove to feed a hungry family off to work and school.

"My father worked for the city of Boston and I went to parochial school in Boston-my mother and sister insisted on my going to a parochial school. Later on I worked at J.A. Cigars."

At age 25, Katherine Finnegan married Frank Aalto, who worked at the Quincy Shipyard, and they had two sons, Frank and Richard. They have all predeceased her.

A resident of O'Brien Towers, Katherine is the most-senior member of the Adult Day Care Program at The Salvation Army, where she spends three days of her week from 8 a.m. to 2:45 p.m.

Activities Director Kim Oliveri said, "There are 38 participants in the program right now, some attend daily, and some attend a few days per week-we are licensed by the Commonwealth of Mass to provide for only thirty people per day because of the size of our facility."

Because the physical capabilities of participants have been waning in recent years, Oliveri notes a change in the program's activities.

"We used to be able to do more outdoor activities, like visit museums and take swan-boat rides, but we can't now with all the wheel chairs and walkers...it's a big change. We are limited in going out."

One of Katherine's favorite activities is the twice

monthly dining out, where program members visit a local restaurant and enjoy a complete meal for just $10. Some of the Quincy restaurants which offer this service are Coop's in Quincy Point, Louis Crossing in Houghs Neck and The Fours in Quincy Center.

Potential participants in this day program are first approved by South Shore Elder Services in order to determine whether there is an infirmity or a need, which warrants funding for the senior to attend.

There are also private-pay participants in the program, as well as scholarships awarded to seniors in need who do not otherwise qualify for assistance.

A religious woman, Aalto refers to herself as "Everlasting" and says of her longevity, "I am a happy person. I just lived a simple life, a quiet life. Now I watch television, it takes up most of my time at home...I've looked at Dancing With The Stars, and soap operas, and The Price Is Right...the TV is like company."

Two years ago, when Katherine's only living sister, Margaret, was 96 years old, she traveled from California to attend Katherine's 100th birthday party.

Adams Shore resident Debora Nigro, Aalto's niece, said "We refer to my aunt's younger sister as the West Coast Matriarch, and we call Katherine the East Coast Matriarch."

"My aunt Katherine genuinely enjoys attending this program, she's made a lot of new friends here, which is not always easy to do when you are a centenarian-the staff is great and I couldn't be more pleased."

Many of the program's senior participants reside in assisted living facilities and attend the Salvation Army's Day Health Program for the activities and companionship provided. One such member is Abby McCann, 84, who lives in her own home in Weymouth.

McCann described Aalto: "I have never seen Katherine unpleasant, she is a happy lady with a wonderful disposition, a great outlook on life, she just rolls with the punches. We all should be more like that lady...she's a gift."

After good-naturedly cautioning her not to "drool on the cake," the group of about 30 of Katherine's friends sang Happy Birthday as she blew out her candles and posed for pictures.

Many of the seniors there spoke of the importance of quality of life and how enriching this day-program is to each of their lives. And they are universally grateful for the mental and physical stimulation provided.

Gymnasium activities include shuffleboard, walking, T-Ball and basketball, and sit-downs like arts crafts, bingo, pokeno, dominoes and trivia. Snacks and nutritious lunches are provided and bowling field trips are regularly scheduled.

MORE FOR YOU HERE AT HOME

At Joyce & Gendreau Jewelers we are proud to make purchasing and servicing fine quality jewelry an unimpeachable, relaxing, and friendly experience. The Gendreau family is in our 97th year (and fifth generation) of providing our customers with solid values on exceptional on-premise services and jewelry.

Joyce Jewelers has been a fixture in the "Downs" since 1942 where it has been known as the home for fine quality and discounted prices for generations. The Gendreau family moved our business from Boston to North Quincy in 1993 and continued Ben Starr's reputation for discounted prices on fine quality jewelry. We have continued his pursuit of great values for the everyday customer and have added the commitment to service which we can provide with our on-premise repairs.

Today, our business consists of Frank and Anne Gendreau, their children Frank, David and Denise and the next generation is in training with granddaughter Rachel filling in on Saturdays and holidays.

Virtually every item in our store is hand-picked and selected by us. Therefore, we are proud to own them and to offer them for sale. We offer for sale everything from diamonds and bridal jewelry to pearl jewelry to watches to Cape Cod jewelry to baby items all at discounted prices.

When our grandfather started in his father's business in 1925 he was told "Quality work and honest values will keep your customers coming back". Eighty years later, it still works for us!

We are members of New England Jewelers Association, Jewelers of America and Gemological Institute of America Alumni.

Check out these other great businesses!

Yard-Waste Pick-Up Extended For A Week

The City has extended the schedule of yard-waste pick-up an additional week to allow Quincy residents a chance to finish fall yard work.

The schedule has been extended to the week of Dec. 3 through Dec. 7. Quincy residents can place leaves, cut grass, and small branches in appropriate containers with their garbage on the day of pick-up. BFI will pick up yard waste and dispose of it in the city's compost pile.

"This valuable service helps separate Quincy from many other communities," said Mayor William Phelan. "We are extending the date to allow residents a chance to properly dispose of their leaves and keep our city looking great."

After the week of Dec. 3, the DPW allows Quincy residents to drop-off appropriate yard waste at their facility at 55 Sea Street. The hours are Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"Quincy is lucky to have many residents that care for their properties and that keep everything looking great," said Phelan. "Nice looking yards and properties result in nice-looking neighborhoods, and nice-looking neighborhoods result in a nice-looking city. I want to thank everyone that does their part to make Quincy such a beautiful city."

Those seeking more information about yard waste pick-up may call the DPW at (617) 376-1953 or visit the DPW page on the City website www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

No Flammable Holiday Decorations

During this holiday season I'd like to take this opportunity to remind owners and managers of halls, restaurants, bars and nightclubs that flammable decorations are not allowed within assembly occupancies.

When patrons decorate hired halls for family or company parties, it is essential for managers to instruct those hiring these halls that decorations must be non-flammable. In restaurants, bars and nightclubs, the same regulations apply, flammable decorations including live Christmas trees are unacceptable.

As I've written in a previous article, the State Fire Marshal's Office initiated a program focusing on fire safety with social clubs and halls after a fire in a Fall River religious club prompted this initiative. In this incident, candles ignited combustible decorations and lives were lost. I gather that volunteers decorated the hall with combustible decorations without consideration of the consequences. In writing this, I hope that any manager renting a hall this holiday season would bring this requirement to the patron's attention. I also expect that any owner or manager of a restaurant, nightclub or bar will conform to the regulations as well.

In addition, any candle or candle centerpiece used within assembly occupancy must meet our approval. We often meet within this office with those hiring halls when they have been instructed by managers to submit their candle centerpiece for approval. We specifically look for low profile, stable candleholders with chimneys which more than adequately cover the flame. In lieu of banning them entirely, no candle is approved without adequate stability and flame coverage.

Simply put, the act of fire prevention has a great deal to do with isolating combustibles from potential ignition sources. In this instance the State Fire Marshal's Office has attempted to do that by emphasizing the importance of eliminating combustible decorations in these occupancies, while the elimination of smoking has eliminated a potential ignition source as well. No code is effective, however, unless it is embraced and implemented on a daily basis by those managing and accepting responsibility for these occupancies.

Everyone benefits in a well-maintained, safe environment; make it your priority as well. Thank you for it. Meanwhile keep in mind that we are always available to assist you with your efforts or remind you of their importance.

Happy holidays!

Why 50% Of Homes Listed For Sale Don't Sell The First Time And What To Do About It

Quincy - If your home has just come off the market and hasn't sold, don't get discouraged. The reason your home did not sell may have nothing to do with your home or the market. In reality, your home may have been one of the more desirable properties for sale.

So Why Didn't Your Home Sell?

Last year almost half of the homes listed for sale never sold at all, and many sellers found that there was a tremendous amount a homeowner needed to be educated on to sell their home for top dollar in the shortest time period.

Don't risk making the wrong choices and losing both time and money on your investment. Before you hire a realtor, know the right questions to ask to save you time and money. Industry experts have prepared a free special report called "How to Sell a House that Didn't Sell" which educates you on the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report call 800-611-0351 and enter ID#1012. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call now to make sure your home sells next time you list it for sale. www.southshorehomeinfo.com

This report is a courtesy of Choice Homes CRM®. Best Advice. Not intended to advise properties currently listed for sale.

Interfaith Social Services 10th annual Feed The Hungry Holiday Spectacular will be held Thursday, Nov. 29, at 6 p.m. at Lombardo's Function Facility, 6 Billings St., Randolph.

Reservations are $65 per person, $650 for a table of 10, with all proceeds going to The Pantry Shelf, a relief agency of the Quincy-based ISS for the past 29 years.

The 10th annual Feed the Hungry campaign will feature entertainment by US Ballroom Dance Champions Daniel and Deirdre Radler and music from The Ovations 10-piece orchestra.

There will also be live and silent auctions. The sponsor for the evening is Arbella Charitable Foundation. To reserve a ticket or make a donation, contact Laura Stracco at 617-773-6203.

Staff Sgt. Michael McGrath Helping To Make:

Guam An Important Staging Area For U.S. Military Strategy

By DONA FAIR

ANDERSEN AFB.

Guam - Most people are drawn to this tiny Pacific island for the warm weather, pristine coral reefs and lush tropical flora.

Japanese honeymooners flock here and this U.S. territory is closer to Japan, the Philippines and Australia than to its closest American neighbor Hawaii. Because of its location in the western Pacific and west of the international dateline, it's the first place on American soil to see the sun rise each morning.

But for the son of a Quincian, this tropical paradise is the backdrop to a life of strategic importance. Staff Sgt. Michael P. McGrath is an air transportation specialist with the 734th Air Mobility Squadron.

STAFF SGT. Michael P. McGrath is an air transportation specialist assigned to Andersen Air Force Base, Guam.

McGrath, son of John McGrath of Presidents Lane, Quincy, is helping transform this sleepy outpost into one of national importance for U.S. military strategy in the 21st Century.

McGrath is an air transportation specialist with the 734th Air Mobility Squadron.

"I help inspect and prepare the aircraft, and upload and download the passengers and cargo for all of the aircraft that arrives and departs from here," said McGrath, who graduated in 2000 from Newton North High School.

Andersen is no stranger to strategic importance, though. The base was created as a staging area and airstrip in 1944 to allow B-29 bombers to attack mainland Japan during the latter part of World War II.

The base has grown tremendously in importance since then, mushrooming to over 15,000 airmen with constant B-52 missions over North Vietnam during the early '70's.

Since Desert Shield/Desert Storm in the early '90's, Andersen has become a deployment mecca for B-52, B-1 and B-2 bomber units focusing on a new mission - the global war on terror.

"The build up here is helping me to improve my skills due to the increased workload," he said.

Off duty, McGrath and fellow airmen are privy to a literal paradise. On a tropical island 30 miles long and nine miles wide, airmen can find white sandy beaches ringed by pristine coral reefs, crystal-clear water teeming with exotic marine life, a balmy tropical climate and gentle trade winds.

Add a slew of restaurants, resorts and shopping areas and it's easy to see why

FOUR F-15E Strike Eagles fly in formation over the southern point of Guam after completing aerial training here. They are assigned to the 391st Expeditionary Fighter Squadron and are deployed from Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho. (Photo by Cecilio Ricardo)

AIRMEN FROM the 2nd Maintenance Squadron, Barksdale, La., do a phase inspection on a B-52 Stratofortress aircraft here. (Photo by Val Gempis)

Guam has become the Air Force's best kept secret. "Life here is very relaxing! I live in Tumon which is located right by the beach, which allows me to go fishing and just relax by the beautiful ocean," McGrath said.

Dedham Singer to Perform At North Quincy Library

Dedham crooner Tony Cibotti will perform his repertoire of pop songs from the Golden Age of music at a free concert Wednesday, Dec. 5 at 2:30 p.m. at North Quincy Branch Library, 381 Hancock St., Quincy.

Cibotti, a regular performer in Boston, has been singing professionally for over 50 years. He recreates the songs and charisma of Frank Sinatra, Tony Bennett, Dean Martin, Bobby Darren and Nat King Cole. He sings to the instrumental background of the original recordings.

RECOGNIZING AND TREATING PLANTAR WARTS

Like other warts, plantar warts are caused by a virus and are contagious. They appear on the soles of the feet, often on pressure points. They often look like little, white grainy spots on the foot's sole, and they can also resemble gray or brown bumps with little black dots on them. They may even just look like a disruption in the normal lines on the bottom of the feet. Although there are some over-the-counter treatment options available, plantar warts often return, so it is best to see the podiatrist for a definitive diagnosis and effective treatment plan. Diabetics should never try to self-treat any condition that occurs on their feet, even plantar warts.

Home treatments for plan-tar warts may bring short-term, temporary relief, but medical answers are your best bet for successful, long-lasting results. At our office, our aim is to prevent, not just repair. Don't wait for warts, skin conditions, fungal infections, and aches and pains to disappear like magic, because they won't. Come see us instead for prompt, personal attention to your feet's every need at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Call 781-986-3668. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

P.S.: Plantar warts are contagious, so try to keep your feet from touching other parts of your body.

Fore River, Nut Island Possible Sites

Morrissey Plans Discussion On Wind Turbine Dec. 5

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Sen. Michael Morrissey will host an open discussion of wind turbines at the request of officials from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA).

Morrissey said that MWRA officials are weighing the benefits of erecting a wind turbine at the Nut Island sewage transfer station.

The meeting is tentatively set for Wednesday, Dec. 5, at Quincy Yacht Club, 1310 Sea Street, Houghs Neck.

The senator emphasized that there are no definite plans yet regarding an MWRA wind facility. Both he and MWRA officials want to sound out area residents.

This is the second potential wind turbine site under consideration in Quincy. Patriot Renewables, LLC, has already filed for a permit for a privately owned wind turbine for its affiliate, Jay Cashman Co., at the former Fore River Shipyard.

As a result, the City Council is currently developing an ordinance regulating details, such as the size and location, of wind turbines in the city.

Planning Board Chairman Robert Harnais said the board's public hearing on the wind turbine ordinance has been continued to Dec. 12.

The MWRA station, at the tip of Houghs Neck, runs 24-hours a day, seven days a week and uses considerable energy to treat and transfer sewage that comes from pipes as far as Framingham, according to MWRA officials.

Morrissey noted that the regional agency is under considerable pressure to hold down the water and sewer rates for ratepayers in its 61 cities and towns.

Using renewable energy would reduce utility costs for the agency, according to Morrissey who said, "What they envision is savings for the ratepayer. The largest single cost they're facing is utility costs. Nut Island came up where there might be a possibility."

"Hull has been very successful," Morrissey said. Hull's wind turbines have cut municipal energy costs in that town since the late 1990's.

The tip of Hull is located about two miles across the bay from Nut Island which means wind velocity and energy data are already available, according to Morrissey.

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly who is coordinating the neighborhood meeting with Morrissey said he is considering all aspects of the issue.

"I'm going to listen to what my neighbors have to say," Kelly said, adding that he has reservations about locating wind turbines near residential properties. "I'm against them abutting residential properties. I'm not against wind turbines."

Kelly and all city councillors recently considered enacting an ordinance regulating wind turbines and held a Nov. 13 Public Hearing.

The proposed regulations presented by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin were patterned after an ordinance in effect in Worcester.

The ordinance addresses height, noise, and visual impact and prohibits advertising on the structure which must be of neutral tones.

City Council President Douglas Gutos suggested the proposal needed more review and changes as did Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, who said, "I do see a number of questions that still exist."

Guto suggested waiting until citywide wind data has been collected and then, pinpointing areas most viable for wind projects. He also suggested a review of city zoning maps.

"There are a lot of elements up in the air. It's better to get it right than to do it fast," Guto said.

The wind turbine project proposed by Patriot Renewables, LLC, at Fore River would be located in Councillor Daniel Raymondi's Ward 2.

According to drafts of the plans, the base of the wind turbine structure would be the height of the Goliath crane at Fore River, and the wind propellers would be above the crane's height.

Raymondi encouraged councillors to enact an ordinance to head off challenges to the city's authority regarding wind turbines.

Raymondi said that lawyers for the Fore River property owner, Cashman Construction Co., still believe that they could build a wind turbine without a special permit "as a matter of right."

"It may turn out that way," Raymondi said, later adding, "We could always amend it or improve it."

Raymondi noted that the most controversial section of the proposed ordinance restricted the height to 265 feet.

"This ordinance effectively kills this project," C. Trevor Childs, project manager for Patriot Renewables, told the Council. The wind turbine would be 390 feet in height.

Childs described company owner Jay Cashman as "committed to Quincy. He has set up his headquarters here."

After the meeting, Raymondi disagreed with Childs' suggestion that the Cashman wind turbine could not be built. Raymondi said that the company could apply for a Special Permit for extending the height.

Earlier in the evening Childs described two public sessions his company held for Ward 2 residents at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Childs said his company sent out 7000 invitations and, roughly, 100 residents attended each meeting and most supported the project. "We had very positive support."

Former City Councillor Larry Chretien, also, spoke in favor of wind energy, but suggested there were only a "finite number of sites in Quincy."

Chretien is executive Director of Mass Energy, a non-profit organization aimed at developing renewable energy sources.

"We see wind power as the most affordable zero emission energy," said Chretien adding,

"Massachusetts is moving rather slowly. We have the opportunity to stop the flow of dollars going out of state."

Two resident, John Mayo and William LaRaia, spoke during the public hearing.

"The thing that bothers me is the size of their proposal," said Mayo who warned that wind turbines could disrupt the landscape much as billboards did.

"What benefit do the citizens get?" LaRaia said, noting the Fore River project would be built for a private enterprise. "In this instance, we should get a benefit."

City councillors expect to revisit the wind turbine ordinance proposal in mid-December.

Marines To Collect 'Toys For Tots'

The war in Iraq has occupied many U. S. Marine Reservists but there are enough of them left stateside to walk the three mile route in the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade collecting Toys for Tots.

Last year, the 1st Battalion, 25th Marines, covering the Greater Quincy area, helped to raise the total of toys collected for needy children to 450,000 across Massachusetts.

Due to the callup of Marines Reservists, the need to collect and donate to the Toys for Tots program is greater than ever before.

The public is invited to bring new, unwrapped, non-violent toys to the parade where they can be picked up by the Marines and placed in trucks along the parade route.

Toys for Tots, the custom of collecting and distributing toys for needy children, began on a nationwide basis 59 years ago and now gives away upwards of 12 million toys annually.

Members of the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee urge this year's spectators to show the same "Semper Fidelis" spirit as they have in the past and bring a toy to the parade.

Santa, Elves To Arrive By Parachute Saturday

Santa Claus and four of his hard-working elves will arrive in Quincy by parachute Saturday, Nov. 24, landing on Pageant Field up the road from Adams Field at 12:30 p.m.

Prior to Santa's arrival, costumed characters will arrive by fire engine at 11:30 a.m. to hand out candy canes to the waiting youngsters.

At the conclusion of the event, Santa, the four elves and those in costume will depart the field by fire engine and be driven through downtown Quincy to the Central Fire Station.

Santa will reappear Sunday riding his sleigh in the Christmas Festival Parade.

Over 30,000 Lights This Holiday Season

Crews from the Park and Forestry Department are preparing the City for the holiday lighting season.

More than 30,000 lights will adorn trees throughout the city during the upcoming months.

The holiday events will kick-off in earnest this weekend with the "Turning on the Lights" ceremony on Friday, Santa's Arrival by parachute on Saturday, and the annual Christmas Parade on Sunday. Quincy also hosts a number of community tree-lighting ceremonies in November and December.

"Not only does that city look festive during December, but the community tree-lighting ceremonies are great annual neighborhood traditions," said Mayor William Phelan. "I want to thank the residents and ward councilors that work to organize these wonderful traditions. They are part of why Quincy is such a nice place to live."

Crews are also erecting a giant Santa Claus, Frosty the Snowman, and a Toy Soldier in front of City Hall. Santa's Mailbox will also be placed outside City Hall so children of all ages can drop-off their wish lists.

Parking For Parade At 15 Locations

Fifteen parking locations will be available for those who drive to attend the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Sunday. They are:

- MBTA parking garage, Burgin Parkway.
- Stop & Shop garage, Burgin Parkway.

Christmas Lighting To Open Season Friday

Quincy's holiday season will get underway unofficially Friday, Nov. 23, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. when the Christmas lights are turned on in President's Place Galleria across from City Hall.

Costumed characters will distribute candy canes to children from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

Winners of the elementary school poster contest will be announced between 7 and 7:15 p.m.

Guest speakers and other dignitaries will be introduced from 7:10 to 7:15 p.m.

Donna Marie Children's Puppet Show will perform from 7:15 to 7:45 p.m.

A Christmas sing-along will accompany Santa's brief appearance between 7:45 and 8 p.m.

The Christmas lights will be turned on at 8 p.m.

Nativity Pageant At First Dec. 9

The annual interdenominational Nativity Pageant will be held Sunday, Dec. 9, at 6:30 p.m. at historic United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

The Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of the First Parish Church, and the Rev.

Jack O'Brien, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, North

Quincy, will preside over the pageant.

Santa's Mailbox Opens Friday

Santa's Mailbox will open on Constitution Common (City Hall Plaza) Friday, Nov. 23, for the Christmas season.

Children writing letters to Santa may drop them in the mailbox to be forwarded to the old gentleman at the North Pole.

Tips To Keep Home Warm And Comfortable This Winter

(NAPS) - You can give cold weather a warm welcome by ensuring that your house stays comfortable before the first snow falls. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Energy Star offer these energy-efficient tips to keep your home warm:

• Check Your Equipment - Energy-efficient heating equipment, sized and installed correctly, will make occupants more comfortable and can save homeowners as much as 20 percent on their annual energy costs.

• Clean Your Filter - A dirty air filter can increase energy costs and lead to early equipment failure. Clean or change the air filter in your heating, ventilating and air-conditioning (HVAC) system monthly.

• Seal Your Home - Hidden gaps and cracks can add up to as much airflow as an open window. Home sealing can improve your home "envelope" - the outer walls, ceiling, windows and floors - and can save up to 10 percent in energy costs. Start by sealing air leaks and adding insulation.

• Test Your Home - Energy Star has online tools

(www.energystar.gov/homeimprovement) to evaluate your home's energy performance and offers solutions to increase comfort.

If these steps don't work and your home is still feeling chilly, it's probably time to replace your HVAC equipment. When selecting a new heat pump or furnace, it's important to select products that are energy efficient.

Heat pumps are available with energy-efficiency ratings of 13 through 18 SEER (Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio).

To learn more about energy-efficient home-heating equipment, visit www.yorkupg.com.

THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

THE GAME: Making Memories For 75 Years

By SEAN BRENNAN

When the 2007 North Quincy Red Raiders and Quincy Presidents meet Thursday at 10 a.m., the two schools will kick off the 75th edition of the annual Thanksgiving Day game.

This rivalry started back in 1933 and with it began the unpredictability that makes "The Game" one of the best Thanksgiving Day games in the country.

North Quincy, the underdog, defeated the favored Presidents 6-0 in the first annual game. Walter Joly, substituting for injured NQ star Walter (Cap) Bryan, took a 21-yard pass from Arthur (Bat) Nelson for the lone touchdown as the Raiders, in just their second year of football, upset Quincy.

North Quincy may have won the first annual game, but after the Presidents scored a late touchdown against North in 2006 to run their current winning streak to eight games, Quincy holds a 41-28-5 series lead.

The game has also been a springboard for a number of undefeated seasons, for both Quincy and North Quincy.

In 1966, the Raiders, coached by the late Carl Leone, had a 9-0 record, won the Greater Boston League title, shared the Class A crown with Arlington and went on to shut out Quincy, 8-0. The 1992, coached by Ken McPhee (a guard on the 1966 team), had an 11-0 record, won the Old Colony League title, beat Arlington in the Div. 1B Super Bowl and shut out Quincy on Thanksgiving, 20-0.

The 1970 Quincy team, coached by Hank Conroy, defeated North 16-6 and went on to win the Greater Boston League title with a perfect 9-0 record.

But the game is not all about winning and losing. It represents, for many players, the last time that they will ever pull on a uniform and line up to play organized football, and that is something that players and coaches of the past remember years after the final whistle blows.

"It is one of the best experiences that these players will ever have," said McPhee, an alumni of the 1964, 1965 and 1966 games and head coach at North Quincy for seventeen years. "It is something you never forget and it can be very influential. It is one of the best, if not the best, rivalry games in the state.

"You have the extra time after your last regular season game to think about Thanksgiving. The game is really like another season. And emotionally there is an edge among the players. The game, fair or not, brings with it pressure and every player wants to give their best."

Ron Ivil, the Quincy-North Quincy Hall of Fame president, played in three Thanksgiving Day games from 1954-56, and he fondly remembers his experience.

"When I played at Quincy we won three times under legendary head coach Bill Sullivan (18-0, 44-20 and 19-13). Back in those days we would have thousands of people who would come to the game and I know we played in front of 14,000 people one year. Those games are memories you never forget.

"The 50s Alumni Group still gets together to talk and reminisce about our time playing against one another. Thanksgiving Day games are what you remember the most. You could have had two tackles, but years later that number jumps to twelve tackles. That is just the way it goes. But the talk always goes back to Thanksgiving. Those games form life-long memories."

The unpredictability of the game is what most former players remember the most. It doesn't seem to matter, who has the better record, or the best players, it always seems to come back to who wants it more.

"Anything can and will happen in the game," added McPhee. "You could be favored, but that does not mean that your team will come out on top."

For sheer excitement and last-second drama, few, if any, football rivalries can match Quincy-North Quincy. Including last year's come-from-behind 10-7 victory by

AS THE CITY CELEBRATES the 75th annual Thanksgiving Day game between Quincy and North Quincy this Thursday, Hall of Fame president Ron Ivil submitted this photo to The Quincy, there have forty teams that have been decided by one touchdown and conversion or less. The 1975 game, a 15-8 win by North, is the only game that was won in overtime. But more recently, the games in 1984, 1985, 1987, 1989, 1994 and last year have come down to the final play of the game.

The current head coaches at Quincy and North, Bob Noble and Jim Connor, each have their own take on what it means to coach on Thanksgiving.

"This is a game that these kids, especially, the senior class will remember for ever," said Noble who is a perfect 8-0 on Thanksgiving as head coach at Quincy. "Great things seem to happen in the rivalry and this is the one game that they will talk about years from now. I don't think you will find a bigger high school event in the city than this one. The guys you play against are the same ones you will see the rest of your life. That is what makes it so special."

Coch Connor, a native of Pennsylvania, will be coaching in his second Thanksgiving Day game, but he already is in awe of what takes place when these two teams get together.

"Not being from Quincy, I didn't grasp the history of the game until I coached in it last year. In general, it is an honor to be a part of it. As both a coach and a teacher at North Quincy, it is an unbelievable experience. The game is great for the players, school and for the city itself."

So, fans, young and old, dust off your old varsity jackets, grab a hot cup of coffee and get down to Veterans Memorial Stadium at 10 p.m. Thursday and root on your favorite team, because if the previous seventy-four games are any indication, something special is about to happen.

Four North Players, Two Quincy Players On ACL All-Star Team

The North Quincy Red Raiders had three seniors named to the Atlantic Coast League all-star team and one to the honorable mention squad.

Dennis Martin, the team's leader at quarterback, made the squad for his defensive skills. Martin, a two-way player, earned the honors for his play at defensive back.

Jon Cahill, the Red Raiders leading running back with close to 1,000 yards and eight touchdowns, was selected to the team and Marcellus Lee made the all-star team for his play at the tight end position.

Wide receiver Alex Tragellis earned honorable mention honors.

Quincy's Diego Arredondo and Matt Oriol were selected to the honorable mention team. Arredondo finished the season with eight touchdowns and Oriol was a force on defense from his defensive lineman position.

THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

Presidents Could Post 9th Straight Win Can Quincy Continue Holiday Dominance?

By SEAN BRENNAN

Come Thursday, you can throw the records out the door.

The Quincy Presidents, who will take the field at Veterans Memorial Stadium on Thanksgiving with a disappointing 2-7 overall mark, may not have had their best season, but when it comes to the annual Quincy-North Quincy game, head coach Bob Noble's teams always seem to bring their "A" game.

The Presidents enter the 75th annual Thanksgiving Day game riding an impressive eight-game winning streak on Turkey Day. They came-from-behind in the fourth quarter last year to win a thrilling 10-7 contest over the Red Raiders.

"First and foremost, when it comes to the Thanksgiving Day game you have to throw the records away," Noble said. "We may have not had the best year so far this season, and it has been a little disappointing, but we have been successful the last eight years in this game, and that is our hope again this year."

Noble is being kind when he says that Quincy has been successful recently. The eight-game winning streak not withstanding, the Presidents have gone into the game the last 15 years and have come out victorious in 12 of those contests.

Quincy has held the Red Raiders to 14 points or less in all fifteen of these games, and they have pitched shutouts three times during that period (1997, 2004 and 2005). Since Noble took over the sidelines in 1999, the Presidents have outscored North Quincy 144 to 54 in the two city teams biggest game of the season.

"Once the regular season ends we (the coaching staff) have ten days to prepare for North Quincy. There is an advantage, not just for us, but for their staff as well, to watch film and get together a game plan that we can give to our players. It has worked the last eight years.

"Besides winning the last eight games, Quincy has won 12 of 15 and there is something to that."

If the Presidents want to continue to enjoy their Thanksgiving Day dinners as city champions, Noble realizes that his team will need to control the ball against a very good Raider defense. Last year, Quincy's offense had the ability to make opposing defenses pay, be it in the run game, or through the air. So far this season, the Presidents have found it difficult to rack up the points like in years past (just 87 points scored in nine games), but there have been times, specifically against Nauset High School (a 35-21 win), where the offense has shown bursts of its potential to score fast and often.

"If we want to come out of this game with a win, and we obviously do, we are going to need to put great emphasis on ball control. Their defense has been good all year long and their offense can put up points."

"So, controlling the ball and the clock and limiting their chances on offense is the key for us this year. The longer we have possession on offense, the better our chances are of doing what we want to do while staying in the game plan."

The guess here is that Noble and the rest of the Presidents' coaching staff will rely heavily on the running of senior captain Diego Arredondo. Arredondo leads Quincy with eight rushing touchdowns this season. In Quincy's two wins over Falmouth on Sept. 21 and against Nauset on Oct. 26, he accounted for seven rushing scores (three versus Falmouth and four against Nauset when he ran for 111 yards on 18 carries).

"Diego has been great for us all year long running the ball and kicking for us (Arredondo is the team's place kicker and punter) and if we want to be successful controlling the ball on Thursday, we are going to need him, and the rest of our backs to step up."

Other players who have seen time taking handoffs from quarterback Lance Peterson include senior Joe Reggiannini (captain), juniors Max Devoe (one touchdown), Stephan Davis,

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

Raiders Seeking First Holiday Win Since '98

North Quincy Prepared For Rivalry Game

By SEAN BRENNAN

One week, one day and one game at a time.

That has been the mantra all season long for the North Quincy Red Raider football program.

Under the direction of second-year head coach Jim Connor, North enters the 75th annual Thanksgiving Day game against the Quincy Presidents with a 6-4 overall record. The team's six wins – one non-league and five Atlantic Coast League contests – assures that the Raiders will finish 2007 with their first winning season since 2001.

But Connor understands that when it comes to "The Game," records can be thrown out the window.

"This is a rivalry game," Connor said. "It does not matter what the records are heading into it. We are going to need to be prepared if we want to come out of it with a victory."

The Raiders may have the better record (Quincy holds a 2-7 record), but the Presidents will line up on the turf at Veterans Memorial Stadium riding an eight game Thanksgiving Day winning streak. And don't think for a minute that Connor and his team have forgotten about last year's 10-7 heart-breaking loss, or that Quincy, under head coach Bob Noble, is always ready to play once the whistle blows on Turkey Day.

"Quincy is much better than their record shows. They have had success in this game and I expect the same again this year. But we have done a tremendous job all season long not looking ahead and not dwelling on things that happened in the past. We have one thing on our minds heading into the game, and that is to prepare in practice to get ready for what we may see from them."

For a team that struggled last year, North came back this season with another year under their belts in Connor's system, and sometimes that extra experience and confidence that comes with familiarity, is all it takes to get a program moving in a positive and successful direction.

This year, the Raiders returned four of its top-seven scorers from 2006. Quarterback Dennis Martin, running backs Jon Cahill and Danny Jackson and wide receiver Alex Tragellis have all contributed on offense, while the defense as been anchored by the return of seniors Sekou Benjamin, Dave Thomson and Marcellus Lee.

"We have great kids who believe in North Quincy football," Connor added. "I have not had to battle with anyone of them about buying into the program. Starting last year, I thought we started to 'turn the corner,' and this year we got better every week and fortunately have picked up some wins."

"But the credit goes to the captains: Jackson, Tragellis, Thomson and Benjamin, and the rest of the senior class. They have stepped up and their morale has been steady all year. The leadership they have shown bodes real well for this game and for the future."

Leading the way on offense has been Cahill who is closing in on the 1,000-yard mark. He leads the team with eight rushing touchdowns, including two games (Somerville and Whitman-Hanson) in which he scored twice. Jackson has found the end zone thrice, scoring twice on the ground and once through the air. Martin, who has played admirably behind center, has scored two rushing touchdowns and returned a fumble for a TD on defense. And fellow senior Zac Deegan has converted 16 point after attempts and kicked two field goals, including a game-winner in a 24-22 win over Falmouth.

"We like to run a Wing-T offense with three guys carrying the ball. The coaching staff calls the plays, but our core group of guys has willed themselves into the end zone. It doesn't hurt that our offensive line has been spectacular all year long."

Connor, a former offensive lineman at Boston College, has rotated nine different players onto his O-Line, and the results have been positive. Seniors Greg Ingram, Anthony Dipalmo, Lee and Benjamin along with juniors RJ Barden, Joe Benoit and Chris Bergeron and sophomore Mike Benoit have been paving holes for the running backs since the season opener against Somerville.

"They all have played significant time at that position and, again, tremendous job and with a number of underclassmen, the future looks bright."

The balance on offense (11 different players have scored) has been equaled by the balance on defense. North has allowed just 195 points to be scored against them, and if you throw out the games against defending ACL champion Marshfield (26-7 loss), Dennis-Yarmouth (28-6 loss) and Plymouth North (28-0 loss), the Raiders are allowing just over 14 points per game.

"The biggest strength of the defense is the balance. The defensive line works in harmony with the linebackers, the linebackers work well with the defense backfield. We try to stick with a basic plan and we have taken a 'bend don't break' mentality and it seems to be working. Coach Dominico Barbudo has done a great job with them."

THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

Eight Straight Is Not Enough For Quincy

Mark Gilbody and Zack Manning Butitis Arredondo who is the horse of that stable.

Noble began the season hoping to use a two-quarterback set, but as the season progressed, it was the sophomore, Lance Peterson, who ended up seeing the majority of the time under center. He enters his first Thanksgiving Day game with big shoes to fill. Matt Boyle, who graduated last spring, was a two-time Turkey Day winner as the Presidents' QB.

Peterson's favorite receiving target this fall has been junior wide out Anthony Raddatz. Raddatz finished the first nine games as the team's second leading scorer with three touchdowns. He best game was against Nauset when he caught a 40-yard bomb from Peterson that put Quincy up 14-0.

Gilbody (the team's second QB), Manning, Reggiannini and senior Paul Oldham (one touchdown) have also been on the receiving end of passes from Peterson, and if the Presidents can establish their inside running game against North, this receiving core could be in for a huge game.

On defense senior captain Matt Oriol leads Quincy. An honorable mention Atlantic Coast League selection, Oriol mans a defensive line that can cause havoc to any offense. Fellow senior captain Zack Olshon (DL), senior Paul Carson (DL) and juniors EJ Louis, Max Devove and Aldo Villena have also contributed on the D-Line.

At the linebacker position, Arredondo, Oldham, Tim Lewis and Manning have played well, while Gilbody, Reggiannini, and senior Dan Sabin have stood out in the defensive backfield.

"Our defense needs to play well for us to do what we need to do in this game," added Noble. "The coaching staff has confidence that they can do just that."

Quincy will have to contend with a balanced Red Raider offense. North had eleven different players score touchdowns for them this fall, and they had three running backs (Jon Cahill, Danny Jackson and Joe Vialpando) who scored at least two touchdowns with Cahill leading the charge with close to 1,000 yards rushing and eight scores.

The Presidents will need to watch out for the Raiders' passing attack as well. Senior quarterback Dennis Martin has multiple down field weapons including senior tight end Marcellus Lee (league all-star), senior wide out Alex Tragellis (league honorable mention) and sophomore wide receiver Paul Reamer.

"Coach Connor and his staff have down a wonderful job with that team," Noble said. "They have bought into what they have been told in order to be successful, and their team is well balanced on both offense and defense. You need to give credit where it is due and they have done a good job over there."

Quincy's 2-7 start can quickly be swept under the rug if they can win again this year and that is something that Noble is preaching to his team.

"Like I said, throw away the records. This game is huge in the city and anything can happen once it starts. This will probably be the biggest football game any of these kids play and it should be special.

"For the seniors, it maybe the last time they put on a uniform and, win or lose, it is a game that they will remember years from now. I tell my teams that great things can happen on Thanksgiving and here is hoping that it happens again this year for our program and we can extend out winning streak one more year."

5 Ties In 74 Games

Entering tomorrow's 75th annual Thanksgiving Day game, Quincy High School holds the edge with a 41-28-5 series record.

The contests in 1934, 1937, 1940 and 1983 were scoreless affairs, while the 55th meeting in 1987 ended in a 14-14 stalemate.

The series was last deadlocked at 7-7-3 going into the 1950 game.

The Presidents have won a record eight straight Turkey Day games and 12 of the last 15. The Red Raiders will be trying to rebound after last year's 10-7 loss.

North Quincy's Jon Cahill,

Quincy's Diego Arredondo Leading Scorers

The North Quincy Red Raiders and the Quincy Presidents head into tomorrow's 75th annual Thanksgiving Day game with high aspirations.

North Quincy will take their 6-4 record into the game tomorrow and will be looking to win on Thanksgiving for the first time in nine seasons.

Quincy will be aiming for their ninth straight victory in the Thanksgiving Day game. They won last year 10-7.

The Red Raiders' leading scorer in 2007 is senior running back Jon Cahill. Cahill leads the team with eight touchdowns, all rushing, for a total of 48 points. His best games were against Somerville and Whitman-Hanson, when he scored twice in each contest.

Senior kicker Zac Deegan finished with 22 total points. This includes 16 successful point after attempts and two field goals, including a game winner against Falmouth.

Senior running back

Danny Jackson chipped in with three TDs, one receiving and two rushing for 18 total points, quarterback Dennis Martin scored two rushing TDs and returned a fumble for a score for a total of 18 points and junior running back Joe Vialpando scored two rushing TDs for a total of 12 points.

The Presidents' leading scorer was senior running back Diego Arredondo. Arredondo scored eight rushing TDs and converted on nine PATs for a total of 57 points. His best game was a four-touchdown explosion against Nauset and a three-touchdown game versus Falmouth.

Junior wide receiver Anthony Raddatz was second in scoring with 18 total points. Raddatz caught three TD passes from quarterback Lance Peterson. Junior running back Max Devove and senior wide receiver Paul Oldham each finished with 6 total points.

THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

Red Raiders Will Be Ready For Presidents

on Nov. 9 against Plymouth South and the extra time during the bye week has given Connor and his staff the time watch film and prepare a scheme to stop the Presidents. The first order of business is to find a way to slow down Quincy senior running back Diego Arredondo who leads the Presidents with eight rushing touchdowns.

"It is unique (the bye week). But we do not want to over-coach or force any schemes defensively that could cause our players problems," he said. "We are going to continue to do our thing. I think we all know Quincy's record the last eight years, and we all remember last season's loss, but we can't force anything."

"Arredondo is a special player, as are their senior skill players like Joe Reggiannini and Paul Oldham. They also boast several underclassmen who are good players, including Max Devoe, Mark Gilbody, Anthony Raddatz and their quarterback Lance Peterson. On defense, players like Matt Oriol, Zack Olhson, Arredondo and Zack Manning stand out on film."

Connor is aware that the Presidents, under Noble, like to switch up what offensive attack they use almost every series. He mentioned their ability to go from a shotgun-spread formation to a hard-nosed running attack, and he has been trying to prepare his team for many different looks.

"They can run the tough inside runs and they can lineup in a spread formation. They can be dangerous either way and we will need to be ready for whatever they show us. But this team will be ready come Thursday."

The one characteristic that has not changed from this year's squad and last year's team is an attitude that has quickly seeped into the practices, the locker room and the halls at North Quincy High School: a team with discipline is what brings about the best results.

The Raiders, for the second time in two seasons under Connor, were recently awarded by the other coaches in the ACL the league's Sportsmanship Award, which is something the coach takes great pride in.

"It is important to me and our staff that these kids stay in line with the program we have set up. We told them, either we lose with good kids or win with good kids. I can count on one hand any discipline issues we have had. They know that if one messes up, the whole team will get punished."

"And you know what it buzzed, because there is a work about this team. You can see and feel it at school and in the support we have received. This team has been playing football with an edge, but it has not affected their behavior and the results have been satisfying."

At 6-4, the Raiders have accomplished plenty this fall, and a win on Thanksgiving would be icing on an already solid year, but Connor realizes it is just a game. One that happens to be in its seventy-fifth year, but just a game nonetheless and he and his staff prepared the team as best they could for whatever outcome may come out of it. But a win would be special.

"It is an exciting day for everyone: the players, coaches and the fans. It would be a great way to end the year, but on Thanksgiving anything can happen, so we will have to wait and see how it turns out."

Raiders 5-3 In ACL, Presidents 2-6

Both Teams Defeated Falmouth, Nauset

The Quincy Presidents and the North Quincy Red Raiders played eight common opponents this season as both teams played in the highly competitive Atlantic Coast League (ACL).

The Red Raiders posted a 5-3 league record (6-4 overall) in those contests. The Presidents finished league play with a 2-6 record (2-7 overall) in those games.

The Red Raiders and the Presidents both defeated Falmouth and Nauset High Schools. Quincy beat Falmouth 18-6 on Sept. 21 for their first victory of the year and North knocked off the Clippers 24-22 on a late field goal Sept. 28. The Raiders beat Nauset 35-28 on Oct. 20 to snap a two-game losing streak, while the Presidents hung on to defeat Nauset 35-21 on Oct. 26.

North, who will finish 2007 with a winning record for the first time since the 2001 season, defeated Sandwich 13-12 on Sept. 14 for their first ACL win, won 19-14 against Whitman-Hanson on Nov. 2 and defeated Plymouth South 14-7 in the driving rain on Nov. 9.

The Raiders lost to Plymouth North 28-0 on Oct. 5 to snap a three-game winning streak, fell in defeat 28-6 to Dennis-Yarmouth the following week (Oct. 12) and were beaten 26-7 by Marshfield on Oct. 27.

Quincy lost to Plymouth North 21-7 on Sept. 29, fell to Whitman-Hanson 14-0 on Oct. 5, lost to Marshfield 24-6 on Oct. 12 and lost to Dennis-Yarmouth 31-7 on Oct. 19. Quincy ended league play with consecutive losses to Plymouth South (27-0) on Nov. 2 and Sandwich (29-7) on Nov. 10.

Quincy lost its only non-league game on the schedule, a 28-7 defeat in the season-opener on Sept. 7. North went 1-1 in non-league games. They lost to Somerville 28-14 in their season-opener on Sept. 7, but came back in their third game of the year to knock off Randolph 34-2 on Sept. 28.

Largest Crowd: 1947 Game

As the 75th annual Thanksgiving Day game approaches tomorrow, the debate about which of the previous 74 affairs drew the biggest crowd comes down to either the game in 1946 or 1947.

It appears the 1947 game had the largest paid attendance, reported to have been 18,003. In 1946, the paid attendance was 16,065.

Many estimate that close to 25,000 saw the 1947 game, if you count those who watched from the walls and trees, and those who lined the bus yard where the MBTA garage now stands.

The biggest previous crowd prior to 1946 was the 15,000 who watched the 1939 game.

The Right FIT

Q. My personal trainer always reminds me that although I'm not sore after all of my workouts, I am still making progress. I trust my personal trainer; however, when I exercise on my own, how do I know if my workouts are really working?

A. The effectiveness of a workout routine should be determined by the results you see and not just how you feel. Feeling exhausted and sore after a workout is a physical response to the exercise performed, but should not be used as a major measure of success.

The workouts you are completing with your personal trainer should be designed to be performed with a suggested number of sets, repetitions and weight. These exercises should be specific to your goals, and you and your trainer can decide what will work best for you.

When working out without your trainer, determining how and when to change your workout program can be tricky, but you can use the acronym FIT to help you out. Designing your workout with the right Frequency, Intensity and Type can keep you working toward your goals and feeling confident in the effectiveness of your workouts.

The frequency is how often you are completing your workout program. One to three times a week may be recommended for strength training, while a frequency of up to seven days a week may be recommended for specific cardiovascular workouts. It is equally important not to overdo your workouts in order to achieve that feeling of soreness. Soreness could be a sign of overtraining or lack of recovery time between workouts.

The intensity of your workout is important in developing a program that will not only help you see results, but also keep you safe. The stress you place on your body through the intensity of your workouts is an integral part of your workout. An intensity too high could cause you to feel the soreness you seek, but it can also mean you are working yourself too hard.

For example, if the workout calls for you to do squats with dumbbells, choose the right weight by starting light and progressing after completing a few workouts safely and with the correct technique. This may require you to complete the squats without the dumbbells at first, and then increase the intensity by adding weights.

The type of exercise also should not be ignored. Pre-designed workouts such as the ones in magazines usually give you a goal and explanation of what the workout was designed to accomplish; however, let your trainer help you. Be sure that the workout you are completing is designed to fit YOUR needs. If strength is your goal, then be sure the workout has been structured to improve strength and not just cardiovascular endurance or flexibility.

Keep these factors in mind when trying new workouts and use them as a guide to help you reach your goals.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program.

Gobble Up Traditional Turkey Temptations

It's that time of year when visions of cornbread stuffing, green bean casseroles and pumpkin pie start dancing in your head.

Thanksgiving Day is an opportunity for many people to enjoy special foods that come around only once a year. Unfortunately, it's also a time of year where many people give up on the healthy habits they've adapted throughout the year.

"My successful members know that they can enjoy Thanksgiving Day without hindering the success that they've achieved," said Sharna Borsellino, manager of the Weight Watchers location in Quincy.

"I tell my members that it's important not to deprive themselves of the dishes that they look forward to throughout the year, as long as they keep in mind the healthy lifestyle they've been living up until now."

Here are some tips to health maintain control on Thanksgiving Day:

• Don't starve before the feast. Starving for a big dinner can backfire because it can result in overeating. Instead, eat a snack such as a cup of non-fat yogurt, half a small bagel with humus, or a piece of fruit to avoid feeling ravenous.

• Map out your plate. Try to fill half of the plate with vegetables, and split the other half between meats and starches. This will help prioritize whether to get sweet potatoes, stuffing or macaroni and cheese, or a combination of smaller portions of all three.

• Don't forget the activity. Walking is a great way to burn some extra calories during the holidays. In addition, if you walk together as a family, it provides a chance to catch up with each other in an undistracted environment.

It's important to remember that Thanksgiving is just one day, not a whole week. One large meal won't pile on the pounds, but seven days of leftovers tends to add up.

"Many people think that if they go off course for one day, then all of their efforts are down the drain," Borsellino said. "It's important not to let one day sabotage your long-term efforts and goals."

Here are some ways to get back on track the day after Thanksgiving:

• Divide and Conquer. Take out the Ziploc bags and containers. Freeze individual portions of favorite dishes so Thanksgiving can be enjoyed in moderation for a long time.

• Send the leftovers home with your guests. They will appreciate not cooking for one day and you'll appreciate not being tempted by leftover biscuits.

• Create some leftover magic. By day three, it's easy to get bored with another turkey and stuffing sandwich, but with a little abracadabra leftovers can be turned into healthy meals. Some examples include:

- Cuban Style Ham
- Rice and Beans
- Turkey and Veggie Omelette
- Asian-Style Salad

All of the recipes are available upon request and are in the November-December issue of Weight Watchers Magazine.

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE REPLACEMENTS

If missing teeth are not replaced, it can greatly compromise a person's ability to eat and talk properly. To avoid these unwanted outcomes, the dentist will likely recommend a removable partial denture or "bridge" if some natural teeth remain in the mouth. These prosthetics consist of replacement teeth attached to a pink or gum-colored plastic base and metal framework that holds the denture in place in the mouth. If all teeth are missing due to decay, injury, or illness, a full denture can be fitted to the mouth, eight to twelve weeks after all remaining teeth are removed. In the meantime, patients are outfitted with "immediate" dentures until the "conventional" dentures are ready for permanent use.

Brushing twice a day and flossing daily helps prevent tooth decay and gum disease that can lead to tooth loss. Preventive dentistry is our goal for every patient. It involves daily care, good nutrition, and periodic check-ups and cleaning that maintain good dental health already achieved. Oral health is a long-term commitment we share with each patient. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we take pride in our ability to provide quality dental care in a relaxed and comfortable environment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Beneath the place where missing teeth once stood, shrinking alveolar bone creates hollows in the face that make a person look older and less healthy.

OBITUARIES

Patricia English Bachman, 64 Co-Owned Nantucket Surveyors

A Mass of Christian Burial for Patricia English Bachman, 64, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Oct. 20 at St. Mary's Church on Nantucket.

Mrs. Bachman died Oct. 8.

Born in Quincy, she graduated from North Quincy High School and Quincy College. She married in 1964 and moved to Milton where she gave birth to her two sons, Thomas, and Timothy English.

In 1980, she moved to Nantucket and remarried. She, and her husband of 24 years, Michael Bachman, were the owners of Nantucket Surveyors on Nantucket, where they worked alongside each other until selling the business in 2005.

Known for her bright and vivacious personality, "Patti" had many nicknames including "Patty Pan," "Peppermint Patty" and "Patty Popcorn."

She listed her occupation as a homemaker and she derived great pleasure from taking care of her family and home.

A cheerleader in high school, she remained one all her life. She was a staunch advocate for her family and friends. Always willing to listen and give support, she pitched in no matter what the task. She charmed everyone she met.

Mrs. Bachman enjoyed

cars, cooking, entertaining, fine dining, skiing and long talks with her many close friends. Several of them worked together over the years, earning all the ribbons for various categories at the annual Daffodil Picnic.

She especially enjoyed the holidays and the excitement of the many other local events on Nantucket such as Christmas Stroll.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK
It's that time of year that nearly everyone pauses to give thanks for all the goodness that has passed their way during the past year. Some give thanks for their neighbors, to their Lord, and thanks are usually given for so many things.

We at the Deware Funeral Home are thankful, too, for many things. We're thankful for the love of both family and friends in our community and state in which we live.

We're thankful too for the opportunity to be a part of your life each week, and for the trust you place in us for allowing us to be a part of your weekly reading.

We're especially thankful for the trust and confidence that you have shown to us at our home and toward our services.

We are the Deware Funeral Home wish all of you a very Happy Thanksgiving....

Christmas Cantata Dec. 4 At Houghs Neck Church

The adult and youth choirs of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church will present "Born a Savior, Born a King," a Christmas cantata on Tuesday, Dec. 4 at 7 p.m. at the church.

All are welcome to attend this free concert.

"The cantata explores through music the contradiction of Christ's birth in Bethlehem," said Choir Director Lois Zulauf.

"How could a child born of such humble surroundings be the promised savior and king? And how could a baby be the one whom the prophets had long promised would vanquish the enemy and deliver God's people," Zulauf added.

Refreshments will be served following the performance.

Located at 310 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck Congregational Church is handicapped accessible.

For directions or more information, call 617-328-1384.

Holiday Craft Fair Dec. 8 At Marina Bay Nursing

Marina Bay Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, 2 Seaport Dr., North Quincy, will host a holiday craft fair Saturday, Dec. 8 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The fair will feature local crafters, white elephant goods, toys, balloonist and face painting, live entertainment and bake sale items.

Free Senior Medical Trips

Medical transportation with curb to curb service Mondays through Fridays is provided at no cost to Quincy seniors.

The service requires two weeks notice for trips, including those to Braintree Hospital, Carney Hospital, Milton Hospital and eight major hospitals in Boston.

To request a trip, call the Transportation Office at 617-376-1242

New Revaluation Figures Available To Taxpayers

By LAURA GRIFFIN
Board of Assessors Chairwoman Marion Fantucchio announced this week that the preliminary 2008 real estate revaluations are now available for public inspection.

The records can be reviewed weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at City Hall or on the city's website, www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

The information is also available at Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturdays, and on Sundays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

This report represents the most recent revaluation of all city properties as required every three years by state law. The new assessments will

Koch Names Nine To Transition Team

Mayor-elect Tom Koch named his full transition team Tuesday, bringing together a group of civic and business leaders with wide-ranging experience to help guide the new administration into office.

"We've assembled a group of great people with a broad range of talents who all share a great love of Quincy," Koch said. "There is a lot to be done over the next several weeks, and I am looking forward to working closely with this group so we can hit the ground running in January."

The group will be led by Koch's incoming Chief of Staff James Fatseas, and will hold its first meeting this week.

World Series Trophy Here Dec. 9

How'd you like to have your picture taken with the 2007 World Series Trophy won by a Boston team for only the second time in 89 years?

And at the same time share in the dreams of Ciara Durkin, the Quincy soldier who was slain in Afghanistan and didn't live to see the triumph of her beloved Red Sox.

The championship icon, escorted by Red Sox security people, will be a feature of the Ciara Durkin Toy Drive Sunday, Dec. 9, from 11:30

WORLD SERIES TROPHY a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Atherton Hough School gym, 1084 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

The trophy's visit to Quincy was arranged by Scott Campbell, chief of staff to State Treasurer Tim Cahill. The rest of New England will be treated to a tour later on in the year.

All you have to do to view the trophy is bring a new toy to donate to the charitable group Cradles to Crayons, or, in lieu of that, a check made payable to "Cradles to Crayons."

And, oh, yes, bring your camera.

Fundraiser To Aid Burned Out Couple

Friends of Louis Gangi and Kristine Ramponi, who lost their home in a fire earlier this month, are holding a fundraiser Saturday, Dec. 8, from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 5 Hollis Ave., North Quincy.

Gangi and Ramponi and their teen-aged daughter,

Alissa, arrived home one evening to find the two-story house on Washington Street where Gangi had lived for more than 50 years engulfed in flames.

Tickets for the fundraiser are $15 per person and $25 per couple and may be purchased at the door the night of the event. There will be food, music, raffles and giveaways with all the money going directly to Gangi and Ramponi.

For ticket information or to make a donation, contact Cathie Moran at 617-984-1787 or Jonathan McInnis at 621-984-1785.

Morrissey Votes For Emergency Home Heating Assistance

The State Senate recently acted to avert a home heating crisis by unanimously approving $15 million in state funding to help more than 100,000 elderly residents and low-income families stay warm this winter.

The emergency appropriation will supplement the federal Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) and help eligible households remain financially stable during the cold winter months.

"People should not have to choose between food for their children and heat to keep them warm," Senate President Therese Murray (D-Plymouth) said. "There are too many families due to have their heat turned off, and rising energy costs are not helping the situation. With this money, we are reaching out to families in need and helping them get through what is expected to be a very tough winter."

Senator Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy), co-chair of the Joint Committee on Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy, also supported the appropriation.

"Higher oil prices and reduced assistance have created a critical situation for many Massachusetts households," he said. "The money we approved today will go a long way toward bridging the gap in federal funding and keeping families warm this winter."

The Senate is joined by the House and the Governor's Office in making the emergency state funding available for LIHEAP, which operates every year from Nov. 1 through April 30.

The money will be funneled to the Department of Housing and Community Development for distribution to non-profit, community action agencies across the state that accept applications for assistance. The agencies then make payments directly to utilities or landlords on behalf of the eligible households.

Homeowners and tenants with incomes up to 200 percent of the poverty level are eligible for the fuel assistance funding.

Crowley, Patrol Officers Charges Dismissed By Judge

Another round in the long feud between Police Chief Robert Crowley and the Quincy Police Patrol Officers Association has ended in a tie.

Charges and counter-charges brought against Crowley and Patrol Officer Michael O'Brien have been dismissed by Brockton District Court Clerk Magistrate Kevin Creedon.

The case started in August when O'Brien was ticketed by Sgt. Michael O'Shea for driving his cruiser after his license had expired. O'Shea said Crowley order him to ticket O'Brien.

President Bruce Tait of the Patrol Officers Association then issued Crowley a citation, claiming that the chief knew O'Brien's license had expired and set him up for the ticket by ordering him to drive.

Forum On Alcoholism For Families Tonight

Quincy Medical Center will host a free information session for families dealing with problems of alcoholism tonight (Thursday), from 7 to 8 p.m. in First Floor Conference Rooms B and C.

Dr. Timothy O'Farrell, professor of psychology at Harvard Medical School, will speak at the session, entitled "The Family Forum: Coping with Alcoholism."

Dr. O'Farrell is also director of the Family Project at Bay State Services, a research study offering free treatment to people and families struggling with substance abuse.

Dr. Daurice Cox, director of clinical services at Bay

State, called Family Project an innovative treatment offered to individuals with alcohol or drug abuse to see if adding family counseling to one-on-one recovery counseling leads to more sobriety.

For more information, contact Jane Alter, clinical director of Family Project, at 508-208-5802.

No Court Yet For Woman In Hospital Drug Case

Court arraignment is expected shortly for a woman charged with selling drugs from a most unusual and unwitting crack house — a bed at Quincy Medical Center.

Jonna Marks, aka Costello, 39, of Quincy was accused of possession and distribution of heroin and possession of marijuana after police raided her hospital room Nov. 14.

Detectives confiscated seven bags of heroin, a scale used to weigh the drugs, a quantity of marijuana and $344 in cash but did not arrest her since she was under hospital care.

Marks had been hospitalized for an unidentified illness for nearly two weeks when police of the drug control unit received a tip that she was dealing heroin from the hospital bed.

Detective saw a man visit Marks briefly then go to a car in the parking lot where they found him and a companion preparing a heroin fix. The men told police Marks had sold them the heroin.

A search of Marks' room at the hospital turned up the drug layout. She checked out of the hospital shortly after the search.

Assistant Clerk Magistrate Robert Bloom in Quincy District Court said Tuesday afternoon that Marks had not yet made a court appearance.

Follett Street Re-Zoning Before Council Monday

Ordinance Committee Chairman Jay Davis said that his committee will likely review and approve the re-zoning of the Follett Street property in Quincy Point at Monday's meeting.

The final decision will be made by the City Council, which recently received notice that the Planning Board recommended the re-zoning.

City Council approval would re-zone the site from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development or PUD and allow development of residential housing or similar complexes on the parcels located at 40-76 and 78-112 Follett St.

The issue is highly controversial in the Quincy Point area. Residents on both sides of the issue attended an Oct. 18 public hearing on the re-zoning.

Some 300 residents signed petitions opposing the re-zoning. At a public hearing, opponents said they fear the PUD designation will open the densely populated area to over-development and high-rise complexes.

At the same meeting, supporters of the PUD designation said that the current zoning leaves the neighborhood at more risk.

Crisis Center Reloading For Christmas Giving

Fulfilling the needs of the needy is a never-ending job.

The Quincy Crisis Center, still recovering from a record number of deliveries for Thanksgiving, is now replenishing its shelves for a Christmas season that is expected to match or surpass it.

Donations can be dropped off at 282 Billings Rd., North Quincy, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Foods that are especially needed are stuffing, cranberry sauce, gravy/broth, corn, green beans, dessert mixes and cereal.

Along with the food, the Crisis Center also collects toys, books, hats, mittens or gloves and clothing for children age 16 and under. Or you can sponsor a family to buy these gifts for the children. You can become a sponsor for Christmas by calling 617-847-6967.

Happy 50th, Yakoo

Someone special is having a special birthday tomorrow.

The Yakoo. His 50th. He's had his bumps getting to that milestone.

But the beloved symbol of North Quincy High School made it and will be honored at a birthday party starting at 7 p.m. in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

The Yakoo was born in November 1957 when the NQHS student council was seeking a symbol for the school. One to appropriately represent North Quincy's strong school spirit, and pride. And its Red Raiders sport teams.

Long-time friends and classmates Allan Yacubian and Peter Frederickksen got together and the Yakoo became that special symbol.

Yacubian was the model and for whom Yakoo was named. Frederickksen, the creator, drew Yacubian's profile for that of Yakoo's.

Yacubian is now a well-known Wollaston dentist. Frederickksen, a talented artist, is a retired Milton schoolteacher and lives in Randolph.

Yacubian is of Armenian decent but the Yakoo depicts a caricature of a stern Native American with a feathered headband, carrying a stone hammer and a NQHS pennant in a moving forward stance.

Back in 1991 critics claimed he was a racial stereotype offensive to Native Americans.

They said the hammer was a tomahawk and saw the figure projecting a fighting stance. Yacubian, Frederickksen and five decades of students see it quite differently.

As Yacubian notes: "The hammer denotes hard work. His (Yakoo's) look is that of determination and perseverance. Critics have miscalculated the whole thing."

In a booklet he had published to commemorate Yakoo's 50th birthday, Yacubian notes North Quincy is a small high school and adds:

"Through its determination and fight and its legendary school spirit, the school became a very successful underdog.

"Pete wanted to show this perseverance and hard work...he wanted a raider, a warrior who reflected working the land and being committed to hard work...to portray this hard work this symbol should have a tool, not a weapon...a stone hammer.

"Pete never placed a tomahawk or hatchet in Yakoo's hand. In fact he avoided using a bow and arrow and nowhere do you see a knife. The Yakoo overcomes with hard work, not with weapons."

The Yakoo is a survivor. He has been shot at through the years by critics trying to banish him as an offensive racial stereotype.

In 1991 NQHS students rallied behind him in a democratic process to determine his fate.

They invited supporters and opponents to speak to them on whether Yakoo should stay or go. Among them were Native Americans.

Jeff Hanley of North Dakota Chippewa Indian decent and director of Harvard University's American Program thought Yakoo should go.

"A group of people," he said, "have been reduced to a mascot. It perpetuates racial stereotype."

But Louell Falls of Sioux Indian decent and originally from South Dakota came on from New Mexico to speak in favor.

"The students have so much pride behind the mascot that I can't understand the controversy," she said. "I don't find anything derogatory about it."

The kids listened to both sides and then took the issue to the ballot box.

Results: 88 percent of those voting favored keeping the Yakoo, as he was... 7.8 percent favored keeping him with some change. Only 25 students voted to ban him.

In 1995, the U.S. Department of Education backed the kids, ruling that the Yakoo image did not violate the U.S. Civil Rights Act.

Quincy High School alumni and students joined forces with NQHS grads and students in the cause.

The two schools are still rivals on the playing field. But friends off. The Yakoo has helped bring this new relationship about. So have the North Quincy Boosters Club and the Quincy High School 1950s Football Alumni.

Quincy High School Principal Frank Santoro, a NQHS

SANTORO

grad, and Jack Raymer, former Quincy High head football coach and graduate are co-chairing the birthday celebration.

They plan a low-key, informal get-together without speeches. A fun night. Tickets ($25) will be available at the door. Proceeds to North and Quincy High School programs.

There will be Quincy and North Quincy coaches, principals, teachers, players, students and other supporters getting together tomorrow night in tribute to Yakoo.

And, of course, Yacubian and Frederickksen will be there, but not looking for the spotlight.

They want the tribute to go to Yakoo, the symbol of NQHS pride and spirit.

For a half-century students have placed and kept Yakoo on a pedestal of beloved esteem and respect.

Yakoo's critics just don't get it.

Donate That Cartridge, Save The Environment

It takes 1,000 years for an ink or laser toner cartridge to decompose in a landfill and the number of cartridges thrown away in a year is enough to circle the earth. Now you're able to get rid of those old cartridges and give the environment and education a boost at the same time.

Simply take your used cartridges and donate them to North Quincy High School, which will receive $3 apiece from Staples, where they can be refilled and reused.

The money goes to education in North Quincy. You have kept one more item of long-term clutter out of the landfill. And the environment is given a little breathing space.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1908 real photo postcard is a view of the newly built Furnace Brook Parkway looking east from its intersection with Willard Street in West Quincy. At the time, it had an unpaved dirt roadbed. In the center distance is what was known locally as Echo Bridge that carried the Granite Branch of the Old Colony Railroad over the roadway. Today, that railroad right-of-way is the path of the Southeast Expressway. This parkway was built by the Metropolitan Commission as part of a master plan of roadways linking the parks around Boston. Automobiles were just coming into use. Through the trees on the left can be seen the cupola of the Willard School; the parkway was cut right through its playground. The sign on the far left, as you would expect, says Furnace Brook Parkway. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Asks Koch To Keep City On Solid Financial Ground

Mr. Koch, I did not vote for you for Mayor because I believed, I still believe, Mayor Phelan has done a commendable job. He has put Quincy back into a very strong financial foundation again, as one strong example.

However, Mr. Koch, you are the people's choice, and I respect that. All I ask of you is to continue to keep Quincy on solid financial ground and do not give in to unions' demands.

Remember that they work for us, and not we work for them.

Last, but not least, do what is right for the city, no less. Thank you.

Wants City To Proceed With Pageant Field Track Facility

I strongly urge Mayor Phelan and Mayor-elect Tom Koch to proceed with the construction of the approved track facility at Pageant Field immediately. This site and

Our track teams and programs have gone long enough without a regulation track. Now is the time to provide these dedicated and

Your immediate construction of the new track facility is required.

Delayed Real Estate Bills On The Way

By FRANK McCAULEY

Mayor Tobin has promised that Quincy's long awaited property tax bills will be in the mail (Thursday, Nov. 30).

But City Auditor Charles L. Shea isn't that sure.

"When are tax bills going out?" The Quincy Sun inquired at noon Tuesday.

"In 48 hours," said Mayor Tobin.

"Right Charlie?"

"Within a few days hopefully," said Auditor Shea.

"In 48 hours," repeated Mayor Tobin.

"Within a few days, hopefully," repeated Auditor Shea. Tobin got in the final words. "The bills are going out in 48 hours," he declared.

Shea willingly assigned blame for the fact that real property tax bills have been delayed while the city switched from manual to automated procedures in calculating them.

Mayor Tobin said the city is not that far off last year's schedule in sending out the bills.

$6.8 MILLION TO WOLLASTON LUTHERAN FOR ELDERLY HOUSING

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Tasty, Easy Clam Fritters

Our family likes almost any kind of friter. My mother made them out of everything from string beans, zucchini and many others.

Today's recipe is for clam fritters which are a family favorite. I usually use the fresh minced clams from the supermarket. But canned minced or chopped clams can also be used.

CLAM FRITTERS

- 2 egg yolks (beaten)
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 carton fresh minced or chopped clams or 2-7 ounce cans
- 1 cup bread crumbs
- 2 teaspoons fresh chopped parsley

salt and pepper to taste
2 egg whites (beat until stiff) vegetable oil for frying

Mix the egg yolks, milk, clams, bread crumbs and parsley. Fold in the egg whites, salt and pepper.

In a frying pan and in hot oil, fry the fritters turning until brown. Drain on paper towel and keep in warming oven until ready to eat unless eaten immediately. (I use about a tablespoon if I want a small fritter, or a quarter measuring cup for a larger one.)

P.S. A good way to serve these for guests is placing the fritters in a clam shell as an appetizer and keep them in a warming oven on a cookie sheet.

Senior Bridge Club To Meet

ISABEL SHAMITZ

A reception for Quincy artist Isabel Shamitz will be held Sunday, Dec. 2 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. to mark the opening of her two week exhibit at the Dickinson Art Gallery, 1132 Main St., (Rte. 18), Weymouth.

Shamitz will be the Dickinson's featured artist from Saturday, Dec. 1 through Saturday, Dec. 15. Admission is free and visitors can access off-street parking at the gallery.

The gallery will also display the work of Roger Gill, George Hartley, Kathy Ferrara, Dick O'Brien, George Murray and 15 other talented artists.

Street scenes and "special moments" are among Shamitz's favorite subjects. Her works feature ink and pencil.

Shamitz and her husband Jerry Shamitz have lived in Quincy for nine years. Her husband is vice president and sales manager at the Fortress storage facility in Dorchester which offers museum quality storage for art and furniture.

She developed her skills at the Art Institute of Boston and trained at the Museum of fine Arts after earning her bachelor's degree at the University of Maryland.

The artist is a member of the Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth art associations. She has exhibited with the Quincy Art Association at the Thomas Crane Public Library and won their first place award in 2005.

Author To Discuss New Sacco And Vanzetti Book Dec. 6

Author Bruce Watson will discuss his new book "Sacco and Vanzetti: The Men, the Murders, and the Judgment of Mankind", the first study and reevaluation of the famous case in a generation at the Quincy Historical Society's meeting, Thursday, Dec. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams Street, Quincy Center.

The case is filled with local connections: In 1920 two men were murdered during payroll robbery in Braintree. Immigrants Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were charged with the murders, and the subsequent trial, appeals, and eventual executions sparked international attention and controversy. One of the murder victims, two lawyers for the defense, and the trial jury foreman were Quincy residents.

Watson strives to treat the case in all its complexity. Arguing neither for guilt or innocence, Watson will take the audience through Sacco and Vanzetti's story, set that story in the various contexts of their time, and also point out some striking comparisons to the present, in what is a lingering mystery and fascinating study in human nature and politics.

The New Yorker called Watson's approach "unusually even-handed," and the New York Times said he "does a great service in rescuing fact from the haze of legend."

The public is welcome. There is no charge for admission. A book signing will follow the talk.

THREE QUINCY YOUNGSTERS have donated their hair to the "Locks of Love" program which provides hair pieces for youngsters who have lost their hair after undergoing chemotherapy. In the center is Maeve Walsh, 6, daughter of Patrick and Theresa Walsh of Quincy. Maeve recently made her second donation of hair through Leonardo's Hair Salon of Quincy. Also donating their hair were the McDonald sisters Nina, 8, (left) and Angela, 10, (right) who had ten inches of their hair cut and donated to "Locks of Love" at Studio Hair Design in Weymouth. They are the daughters of Scott and Mary McDonald of Quincy Point. Maeve is a Grade 1 student at the Montclair School; Angela is a fifth grader at Point Webster Middle School and Nina is a third grade student at the Clifford Marshall Elementary School.

Safford Park Tree Lighting Friday

The sixth annual Safford Park Tree Lighting Ceremony will be held Friday, Nov. 30, at 6 p.m. at Safford Park on Beale Street across from the Wollaston School.

Musical numbers will be performed by children from the Wollaston School. Santa Claus will pay a visit and a reception will be held in the school gym provided by the Wollaston School PTO.

The tradition was begun six years ago by City Councillor Kevin Coughlin with the support of the Mayor's office and has become the opening event of the Christmas season in Wollaston.

'Food For Life' Program At Library

Healthy foods can be delicious and simple to prepare, according to the experts who designed The Food For Life program.

The program will be explained Sunday, Dec. 2 at 2 p.m., at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Samples of some of the foods recommended for healthy diets will be available for tasting and recipes will be provided.

According to some physicians and nutrition experts, the right food choices can reduce the risk of developing cancer and improve the chances of recovery by strengthening the immune system and establishing weight control.

The immune system is considered critically important in fighting cancer. As a result, nutrition experts and registered dietitians at The Cancer Project designed the Food for Life program which identifies foods that are high in immune-boosting nutrients.

Healthy weight control is, also, considered essential in warding off a variety of chronic diseases, including cancer. Proponents believe the fiber and nutrient-rich dishes in The Food for Life program will help participants maintain a healthy weight.

The Cancer Project is a non-profit organization committed to teaching people about the benefits of a healthy diet for cancer prevention and survival.

Registration is necessary. For more information call 617-376-1316 or visit the reference desk at the Main Library. The program is sponsored by the Cancer Project and the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

New Orleans Conference Spawns Innovative Ideas For Doug Gutro

Ward 5 City Councillor Doug Gutro, the outgoing president of the Council, spent last week in New Orleans communing with mayors and their advisors from across the country on common problems facing cities everywhere.

Nearly 3,500 municipal leaders attended the 2007 National League of Cities (NLC) Congress of Cities to discuss leadership and innovation, municipal finance, "going green," and emergency preparations.

"The opportunity to stand shoulder to shoulder with mayors and city councillors from across this country to not only represent Quincy's interests but to learn about innovative strategies to address important issues that are common to all U. S. cities and town was an extraordinary one," said Gutro.

"This was an invaluable way to learn successful approaches other communities are employing to tackle issues that we here in the city of Quincy face, such as health care finance, rising energy costs, emergency preparedness and creating livable and sustainable communities."

Among those lending their expertise to the congress were New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg, New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin, political strategists Kenneth Mehlman and Terry McAuliffe and Terry Tamminen, environmental advisor to California Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Gutro joined other elected leaders in "mobile" workshops that took participants into New Orleans and surrounding parishes for up-close learning in disaster preparedness, recovery and social programs in the wake of the havoc wreaked by Hurricane Katrina.

Other workshops were devoted to a variety of issues facing cities, including climate change and sustainability, changing public finances, public safety and transportation funding.

Conference participants were also urged to bring home ideas and resources gathered during the workshops as well as from the exhibit hall, where innovative and awarded-winning programs from cities and towns throughout the country were spotlighted.

'Bonjour Shalom' At Main Library Dec. 3

The award winning 1991 Canadian documentary, Bonjour Shalom, will be shown at 7 p.m., Monday, Dec. 3, at Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The film directed by Gary Beitel and Richard Elson focuses on the municipality of Ouremont in Montreal where a community of Jewish Hasidim live side by side with French-speaking neighbors who are not familiar with their customs.

The Jewish Hasidim are intent on preserving their traditional lifestyle and they general distance themselves from outsiders. As a result, the French Catholics become curious, frustrated and mistrustful toward their Hasidic neighbors.

Diane Costagliola, Adjunct Instructor of English at Simmons College, and a member of the library staff, will lead the discussion.

The film is being shown in conjunction with a series on Jewish Literature called "Let's Talk About It." The project is funded through grants from Nextbook and the American Library Association.

The program is free. For more information, call 617-376-1301.

directly impact the city's tax rates.

A Northboro firm, Vision Appraisal Technology, conducted the revaluation of real estate properties for the city at a cost of $235,000, according to Fantuechio. Real Estate Research Consultants evaluated the city personal property at a cost of $100,000.

No summary or analysis was available at midweek as the final figures could change, according to Fantuechio who emphasized that the state Department of Revenue (DOR) had only issued preliminary approval of the revaluation.

Mayor William Phelan said Wednesday that estimated property tax figures based on these figures should be ready for review at the City Council's meeting Monday.

Phelan said his financial team is still preparing the final figures, but he declined to offer any predictions on the 2008 rate.

During his term, Phelan has maintained nearly level tax rates for city homeowners. During the recent campaign, he suggested that real estate rates could remain level or even decrease this year.

In Fiscal Year 2005, the average single-family tax bill increased approximately one percent. In Fiscal Year 2006, most rates did not change and in Fiscal Year 2007, there was a two-percent increase.

The state DOR must give official approval of the new figures before the actual annual tax rate can be set, according to Fantuechio who noted the rate, "...can't be set until after public disclosure and classification."

"We need to get our final reports so we can set a tax rate," Fantuechio said. "There are a lot more reports."

"We also have to have a public hearing," said City Council Finance Committee Chairman John Keenan who noted that the City Council does not set the new tax rate, but must review the proposed rates.

"We will vote on it," Keenan said, noting that councillors can recommend that a new tax rate is too high or too low, but have no official impact.

The City Council plans to discuss the tax rate on Monday, but Keenan believes that sufficient information may not be available for a full review until a special meeting set for December 10.

When setting last year's tax rate, Phelan sought a temporary transfer of $1 million from the Stabilization Fund to keep the taxes level.

Keenan said that when the DOR released the city's 2007 Free Cash, the money was returned to the Stabilization Fund. Keenan said that he does not expect transfers for tax purposes from the Stabilization Account this year

That will likely occur in the future, said Keenan, noting that the school building bond costs will begin to affect the city in two years.

"To do it this year, they'd have to give me a compelling reason," said Keenan.

According to Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick, there is currently $12.6 million in the city's Stabilization Fund. Municipalities use such funds to weather extreme financial situations.

Koch Names Nine To Transition Team

The transition team members are:

Deborah Coughlin: Retired director of accounting and reporting for North America, Gillette Corp.

Al Grazioso: Chief of Staff, Massachusetts State Lottery.

James Timmins: Quincy School Committee member and lawyer in private practice.

Betty Yau: Community activist and President of Yaus Marketing.

Robert Foy: Retired city auditor.

Bruce Wood: President, Wood Commercial.

Helen Murphy: Executive Director, Elder Housing

Corp.

Joseph Coyne, Jr.: President, Home and Auto Appraisal, Inc.

Fatseas said he expects the full team to break into focus groups targeting specific areas, including finances, business development, and community relations. The group will help gather information, share ideas, and advise Koch leading up to his Jan. 7 inauguration.

"The team is a great mix of backgrounds, but they all have one thing in common: long histories of involvement with the community," Fatseas said.

City Council President Doug Gutro had invited Koch to use his office during the transition process.

Realtors Dance To Aid Habitat For Humanity

Nearly 700 people filled the ballroom at Lombardo's in Randolph recently as local realtors danced for donations for the South Shore and Plymouth chapters of Habitat for Humanity.

The program was called "Dancing With the REALTORS to Benefit Habitat for Humanity" and was sponsored by the Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors (PASS).

The dancers raised over $37,000 for the two local chapters of Habitat For Humanity which builds, renovates and provides homes for families in need.

The event based on the popular television show, "Dancing With the Stars" starred local PASS realtors and affiliate members. None of the participants were professional dancers or were experienced in ballroom dancing.

Quincy's John Heaney of Century 21 Annex Realty in Quincy won two top slots: first, as the Best Overall Male prize and third place for expertise in a fox trot.

Quincy resident Jennifer Kern of Jack Conway & Co won sixth place in the Swing Dance competition.

The volunteer realtor dancers were paired with professional dancers and has less than three months of training before their stage debut.

Mark and Dawna Nocera were the professional judges for the evening and the third judge's seat was auctioned off to the highest bidder, Atty. Joyce Friedman of Kellem and Kellem, LLP. The dancers performed and were judged on the foxtrot and the swing dance. There were six winners in each category.

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer Workshop

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, in conjunction with the Brockton Housing Partnership, will host a first-time homebuyer workshop Monday, Jan. 7 from 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, Jan. 12 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Multicultural Banking Center at HarborOne Credit Union, 68 Legion Parkway, Brockton.

Attendance at both sessions is necessary to receive a homebuying certificate.

The workshop is open to all Massachusetts residents regardless of income.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend the workshop. Participants will have an opportunity to speak to a lender.

Topics include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works, and other presentations from related professionals.

Participants must complete the workshop to qualify for grant programs.

There is a $15 fee per person. For more information, call (617) 770-2227 ext. 29.

Homebuyer Workshop At Quincy Community Action

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) will host a first-time homebuyer workshop on three evenings Thursday, Jan. 3 and Tuesday, Jan. 8 and 15 at 1509 Hancock St., fourth floor conference room, Quincy Center.

Workshop hours will be 6 to 9 p.m.

Participants must attend all three sessions in order to receive a certificate of attendance.

The free workshop is open to anyone regardless of income, credit ratings, or downpayment availability.

Workshop speakers are professionals representing different real estate fields.

Participants will receive a workbook, which contains references pertaining to home buying.

Upon completion of the course participants will receive a certificate, which is a pre-requisite for down-payment closing cost assistance, favorable soft second and Mass Housing mortgages.

Registration is required. For more information on the workshop or future workshops, contact Ann Marie Casey at 617-479-8181 ext. 119.

Safeguard Your Home

(NU) - While home safety is a concern year-round, it's especially critical during the holidays. The following tips will help protect the people inside your home during the holidays:

• Install smoke and carbon monoxide detectors. According to the U.S. Fire Administration, fires injure approximately 2,600 people during the holiday season and can cause close to $930 million in damage every year. Every floor of your home should be equipped with one smoke detector and one carbon monoxide detector or a combo unit - especially near bedrooms. Change the batteries when you change your clocks, twice a year.

• Safeguard your fire place. Without proper maintenance and cleaning, fireplaces turn into safety hazards. Call a professional to inspect and clean your chimney once a year. You can also keep birds and other small animals out of the chimney by installing a chimney cap.

• Additional safety fixes. Ensure area rugs have anti-skid tape or padding to keep them from sure-footed, and always have a strong step stool on hand to reach items or seasonal decorations that are too high in closets, cabinets or storage units.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Christmas Gift Ideas

Lost for an original Christmas gift idea this year?

Here is some local fire prevention bureau suggestions for gifts for loved ones that are homeowners, tenants or students living in off-campus housing:

Battery operated single stage smoke detectors situated on every level of habitation can offer early notification of a smoke condition within that loved one's residence. Rest assured your thought filled gift would help keep them protected in your absence. Having working smoke detectors within a residence can double one's chances of survival while the intent of the gift expresses your concern for the ongoing welfare off another or others as well.

With these winter months upon us, a carbon monoxide detector on every habitable level of a residence can detect the presence of carbon monoxide, an asphyxiate gas which can be generated from a malfunctioning fossil fuel burning heater or stove. The State Fire Marshal's Office has mandated their presence within residential dwellings while in your absence, this detector will notify occupants of the presence of carbon monoxide from a malfunctioning unit or blocked flue. It is another gift idea to express your concern and do something about it.

A properly place fire extinguisher is a good first aid tool against small fires before they become larger more destructive fires. A multipurpose fire extinguisher, suitable for use on all three classes of fire, ordinary combustibles, flammable liquids and electrical, can offer some assurance that one is using an appropriate extinguisher on a specific fire. Typically an extinguisher is accompanied by instructions for its use as well. Hang it in an area where you consider it might be needed, however, not too close to the potential hazard, while the importance of hanging it near an escape route cannot be overemphasized. It is a practical gift.

A flashlight or other light source generated by batteries in lieu of candle use can be safer during a power outage. While candles can be decorative and functional when used properly, unattended burning candles account for approximately 60% of all candle fires. Consider resting easier knowing a loved one is prepared for the unexpected, using long lasting battery operated lighting during a power outage.

I'll obviously use whatever angle I can to promote the tools available for a safer household. Expressing care for others in these unique ways included. I suggest to you that the ideas mentioned above are both practical and expressive. They all keep giving long after the holidays end.

The best and safest Christmas to you ever!

Menorah Lighting Set For Dec. 6 Outside City Hall

The Hingham Quincy Chabad will hold a lighting of the Menorah to celebrate Chanukah Thursday, Dec. 6, at 6 p.m. outside Quincy City Hall on Hancock Street.

The lighting will be followed by a family festival indoors at 6:30 p.m.

There will be fun for all ages with live music, face painting, dreidel games, chocolate coins, arts and crafts, and hot latkes and donuts. Participants are urged to bring a gift for a needy child.

"Chanukah is a time for celebrating the freedom to practice our heritage," said Rabbi Shmuel Bronstein, director of the Quincy-based Chabad.

The event is sponsored in part by the Quincy Jewish Committee.

A Job Well Done

Recent Scams: The Quincy Police Department has seen an increase in victims of internet and mail scams involving apartment rentals, lotteries, auto sales and other transactions.

Apartment Rental:

This scam involves someone emailing or calling a landlord who has advertised a property. The caller, who sometimes claims they are from out of the country, states he/she is interested in the apartment and asks for the total price, including first and last month's deposit. The caller then sends a check or money order to the landlord well over the amount requested, asking the landlord to cash the check and send the extra money back.

The victim/landlord then goes to the bank and cashes the check and either uses one of his/her checks or money order to send money to the suspect. Sadly, the victim fails to heed the warning of the bank teller, who advises customers that there will be a hold on the suspect's check for five days. This is done to protect their customers from scams.

Check Cashing: This is usually conducted via the internet, where the victim receives an email from a fictitious company looking for people who will cash checks for them and in return can keep 10% of the total payment. The victim receives the check and cashes it in, then forwards the money to their "employer" with a money order or personal check. The bank in this case notified the victim that she was showing a balance of minus $3,000 in her account. Her check had been cashed but the check she deposited was fraudulent. Again, the bank had advised her that there was a five-day holding period on the check.

Sweepstakes: A citizen came to the lobby with a check made out to her for $5,000, with a letter indicating she had won the $250,000 Switzerland Sweepstakes lottery. The letter stated the check was an advance on her winnings but she needed to pay $3,000 in order to get the remaining money.

Often times the letter will state the winner has to pay taxes up front or pay administrative fees. In this case, there was no victim because she brought this to the attention of the police.

Remember, if you do not enter a sweepstakes, you can't win! Secondly, why wouldn't the lottery people just take out what they believed to be legally theirs? There really is no such thing as free money.

Internet "Craig's List" Scam: A citizen put a diamond ring up for sale on Craig's List for $700. A person called, a deal was made and the victim received a check for $4,000, which she deposited in her bank account. On the same day, the victim mailed the ring to the suspect, she also sent him a money gram in the amount of $7,700. Her bank contacted this victim that she no longer had funds in her account. This type of scam involves all types of items for sale.

Bottom Line: If you are conducting business via the internet and accept a check as payment, be sure to wait until the check clears. Be wary if the check is for more than the agreed upon price.

THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

Presidents Roll To Ninth Straight Holiday Win, 28-7

By SEAN BRENNAN

Nine, that's the magic number.

The Quincy Presidents, behind a dominating performance on both offense and defense, won their ninth straight Thanksgiving Day game, 28-7, over the North Quincy Red Raiders last Thursday to capture the 2007 city championship.

The Presidents entered 'The Game' as the underdogs, sporting a 2-7 record, but when the whistle blew to kick off the 75th edition, Quincy put their feet on the gas pedal and discarded the Raiders like week old Thanksgiving Day leftovers.

"Winning nine in a row is a special thing particularly this year," said QHS head coach Bob Noble who is a perfect 9-0 coaching on Thanksgiving. "I don't think a whole heck of a lot of people other than ourselves gave us much of a chance."

Quincy had entered the game with just one win in the final seven regular season games, but after a uneventful first quarter of play, the Presidents drew first blood on their first drive of the second quarter.

Starting from their own 45-yard line, Quincy's sophomore quarterback Lance Peterson (6-7, 92 yards, TD) connected with junior Mark Gilbody for five yards on first down. A three-yard run by the Presidents' sensational senior running back Diego Arredondo (more on him in a minute) on second down brought up a third down and three. On third down, Peterson went back to the air and found junior wide out Anthony Raddatz for 17 yards and a first down.

Two consecutive runs by Arredondo and a holding penalty on Quincy set up a third and 17 from the North Quincy 33-yard line. Peterson dropped back into the pocket and lofted a pass in the direction of junior Sean Gray, but the ball went over Gray's head and into the waiting arms of Raddatz, who caught the pass and ran into the endzone for the touchdown. Arredondo missed the point after attempt, but Quincy had gone seven plays in five minutes to take the early 6-0 lead.

"(I) was a big part of the game and it feels good to help the seniors," said a jubilant Raddatz after the game. "I was supposed to run a streak but I saw the ball go over Sean's head and I judged where the ball was going, caught it and just got my hands on it and scored."

The two teams swapped turnovers on their next two drives. After the Quincy touchdown, North Quincy quarterback Dennis Martin threw a pass over the middle on first down and 20, and the Presidents' Joe Reggianni intercepted the ill-fated pass.

The Raiders defense answered that interception with one of their own on Quincy's ensuing drive. The Presidents' Peterson facing a third down and five, tried to find senior Dan Sabin along the right sidelines, but North's Joe Vialpando stepped in front of the pass and came up with a highlight reel pick.

Down 6-0 and finding it difficult to get any type of run game going, the Raiders went on a six play drive following Vialpando's INT. After picking up a first down on runs by Pat Watkins and Danny Jackson, Martin was stuffed by Quincy senior Paul Oldham (double-digit tackles) for a three-yard loss.

With just under a minute remaining in the opening half, North punted the ball from the Quincy 33-yard line. Raddatz, who was back to receive the punt, muffed the ball and North's Dave Thomson recovered the live ball at the Quincy 15-yard line. Three plays later Martin found all-league tight end Marcellus Lee for a 13-yard touchdown strike and after a Zac Deegan PAT, the Raiders lead 7-6 entering the break.

Whatever pep talk Coach Noble gave to his team in the locker room seemed to work as Quincy came out and completely took over what had been up to that point a close and competitive game.

The Raiders took the ball first in the second half, but Quincy's Devon Gillen (this second of the game) stopped their drive with a QB sack on third down. After a three and out by the Presidents (including two penalties) forced them to punt, North could do nothing against the Presidents defense and had to punt the ball right back.

Another three and out by Quincy (a drive in which they committed another two penalties), the Raiders took over in their own end up 7-6. Sabin and Arredondo dropped Vialpando for a loss on first down, and on second down and 17, Raddatz made his presence felt on defense. Martin's throw was off the mark and Raddatz picked off the pass and returned it to the

THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

NORTH QUINCY RUNNING back Pat Watkins eludes a tackle as he attempts to reach the first down marker during the second half of the game against Quincy.

QUINCY QUARTERBACK Lance Peterson looks to complete a pass down field during the third quarter of last Thursday's game. Peterson finished the game 6-7 for 92 yards and one touchdown.

NQ 33-yard line.

On the next play from scrimmage Noble called for a flea flicker. The handoff went to Gilbardo who tossed it back to Peterson, who then launched a pass down the field to Sabin. Martin and Vulpandall went up for the ball, but it was Sabin who came down with a beautiful reception, setting up a first and goal to go. The play seemed to surprise the Red Raiders, but it was a great call by Noble.

"You pick your spots and that was an opportunity to keep them down after the interception. And it worked out that way."

Arredondo would punch it in on the first play of the fourth quarter to put Quincy up 12-7. He followed the TD run with a successful two-point conversion and the Presidents led 14-7 with 10:45 left in the game.

The momentum shifted after Quincy took the lead. North's next possession ended with a fumble that was recovered by Quincy's Tim Lewis. Tumble recovered, fumble forced. After Arredondo missed on a 32-yard field goal attempt, the Raiders had to go the length of the field to try and tie the game at 14-14.

The Quincy defense, which held the Raider high-flying offense to just 65 yards of total offense all game, came up big once again.

On first and 10 from his own 20-yard line with 6:11 to play in the game, Martin keyed on Lee down the middle of the field, but Arredondo (25 carries, 135 yards, two rushing TDs, one defensive TD, two-point conversion, PAT) stepped in front of the pass and returned it 31-yards for the score. The PAT was good and Quincy took a commanding 21-7 lead.

"Lee likes to go out on a flat route and the wide receiver likes to go out on a slant," Arredondo said after the game. "I just saw Lee go out and I knew nobody was on him. As soon as the ball was thrown, I just jumped the route."

"That was the turn around play of the game," added Noble of the pivotal INT. "That completely shifted the whole balance of the game."

The Raiders' anemic offense would gain just seven yards on their next drive and turned the ball over on downs. Quincy came right back and ran six consecutive running plays starting from the NQ 44-yard line, finishing off the drive and the Raiders when Arredondo scored from eleven yards out for his third TD of the day.

"They shut us down," Coach Noble and his staff did a tremendous job," said NQ head coach Jim Connor. "We didn't make the plays we needed to make. It just didn't work in our favor."

"In reality, nothing was different in the first half. We got that turnover and scored to take the lead, but we couldn't move the ball on offense, we did OK on defense, but we were forced to take more gambles as the run game was not working."

North was forced to play without star running back Jon Cahill, who was out with an arm injury, but that was not an excuse for Connor.

"You can't blame any individual person. Jon is a tremendous player and was missed, but the credit goes to Quincy, they came ready to play. We wanted to stay with our same philosophy. That is what got us here. The last thing we wanted to do was try and get creative. Quincy just outplayed us."

It may have been a disappointing way to end a great season for North (the team finished 6-5), but Connor and his team have much to be thankful for as they head into the off season.

"This is a tough one to swallow. We came back after last year and won six games. That is a tremendous step and hopefully next year we can take another step forward."

For Quincy and Noble, the win helped to end their year on a positive note.

"First off you have to give credit to Coach Connor and his staff, they have turned that program around. But I kind of like winning by three touchdowns. That is a definite statement. There was no luck involved, we made great plays all around and I am just so proud of my kids and my coaching staff that I have had the privilege to coach with for almost fifteen years."

"We won this game decisively. It is nice to not be sweating it there at the end. These games have a tendency to be nail-biters, so it was nice to be able to enjoy it at the end. It was a great day. I am very, very happy."

Quincy Defeats North 8-0 In 'Little Turkey Day Game'

The Quincy Presidents jayvee football team knocked off the North Quincy Red Raider jayvee team 8-0 on Nov. 17 to capture the 2007 'Little Turkey Day Game' honors.

Defense was the name of the game for both teams, but in the end it was the Presidents' defense that stood stronger, forcing four North Quincy turnovers, and limiting them to little offense.

After a scoreless for half of play, the Presidents' defense recovered a Red Raider fumble on the NQ two-yard line early in the third quarter. On third and goal, junior running back Brian McGee scored up the middle for a 6-0 lead. McGee successfully ran in the two-point conversion for the final points of the game.

Playing well for Quincy on defense were McGee, Adrian Domingo, Adams Jean-Baptist, Ngozi Aguguo, Derek Andrews, Sefwan Eid, Scott Devlin, Marc Graham, Aldo Villena, EJ Lewis and James Nguyen.

The Quincy offense stayed with its running game and found success driving the ball and not turning the ball over. The offense was led by Ed Jolicoeur, Kevin Rhodes, Brendan Neenan, Akeem Heywood, John Parry, Tony Nguyen, Joe Spargo, Jimmy Vo, McGee, Davis and Jean-Baptist.

Quincy ended the season with a 4-5-1 record.

The Red Raider roster included Mike Stanton, James Flaherty, Chris Evora, Dan Cedrone, Danny Tsai, Paul Reamer, Phuc Huynh,

Recreation Gym Schedule Starts Saturday

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct supervised recreation programs in 10 neighborhood gymnasiums on Saturdays beginning Dec. 1.

The Saturday gym programs are free and open to boys and girls ages 8 through high school.

The time varies for each of the age groups. All programs have walk-in registration at each location and are open only to Quincy residents.

Participants may attend the location of their choice, not just their neighborhood gymnasium.

Assorted gym activities such as floor hockey, tag football, basketball and relay races will be conducted under the supervision of the Quincy Recreation Department staff.

The core schedule is:

- 9 to 10:30 a.m. for elementary age youth
- 10:30 a.m. to noon for middle school and high school age youth.

Some adjustments in this time schedule may be made at different locations to accommodate differences in attendance by age group.

The Saturday schedule is offered at the following schools:

Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Point Webster, Wollaston and Atlantic.

Metabolism and Weight Loss

Q I exercise three times a week, but ever since I turned 40 years old I have had trouble losing weight. I believe my metabolism is the culprit. Could a slower metabolism be the reason I'm not losing weight, or might it be something else?

A: Metabolism is a term used to describe the rate at which your body burns calories. It's the process by which your body converts food into energy.

Metabolism is a complex process that involves many different factors, including age, gender, and body composition. As you age, your metabolism naturally slows down, which can make it more difficult to lose weight.

Metabolism is also affected by the amount of muscle you have. Muscle burns more calories than fat, so having more muscle can help boost your metabolism.

The amount of calories your body burns each day is affected by your body's basal metabolic rate (BMR), how your body processes food and your activity level. BMR is your body's calorie expenditure each day to support basic everyday functions, such as fuel for organs, cellular repair, breathing and circulation.

A combination of the calories you consume compared to the calories you expend needs to be your focus toward losing weight. The factors that determine how many calories you need, or don't need, each day is determined by gender, age and overall body composition.

Men tend to have less body fat and more lean muscle than females, raising their BMR. This higher BMR can mean more calories are expended by just living each day. It does not mean that females are destined to fail to lose weight, however you should maximize your success by getting the most out of your metabolism.

As age advances, your metabolism naturally slows down. This is because you lose muscle mass and gain body fat. We can't change this, but we can make a difference in how our bodies burn calories by making changes to our body composition as we get older. The more lean muscle the more calorie expenditure throughout the day, the more body fat the less calorie expenditure.

Although metabolism is not usually the cause of weight gain, you might talk with your physician about any medical changes to your body. Track how your body is responding to exercise and changes in weight over time, and present this information to your doctor.

It is important to remember that your daily activity level of cardiovascular and strength training plays a large role in weight management, and that over time, modifications to these regimes may be necessary. Continue to work hard, and remember that it will be easier to lose weight when you understand how your metabolism can work for you.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program.

23 Local PMC Cyclists Raise Over $104,000

Quincy Residents Help Pan-Mass Challenge Raise $33 Million For Jimmy Fund

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge (PMC) raised a record-breaking $33 million for cancer research and care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its August cycling event. $7 million more than the organization raised last year.

The total sum is more than twice the amount ever raised for charity by any other athletic fundraising event. It is the largest single contribution to the Jimmy Fund.

Three PMC cyclists who reside in Quincy, raised more than $104,000 of the total $33 million.

The contribution represents 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar, a first in the PMC's 28-year history. Since its 1980 inception, the PMC has raised more than $200 million for the Jimmy Fund.

"Raising as much money as possible for cancer research is the foundation of the PMC culture," said Billy Starr, PMC founder and executive director. "PMCs compete more about the money they raise than they do about their cycling speed."

The 27 percent increase in funds raised was primarily the result of an explosive 20 percent increase in the number of cyclists who rode in the event, according to Starr.

QUINCY RESIDENTS Aaron Long and Tara Welby (right) both of Quincy, along with Sandra Moore, of Braintree and Celia Dontaio, of Belmont, were at the Pan-Massachusetts Challenge Check Presentation Ceremony when the PMC presented a record-breaking $33 million for cancer care and research to Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its Jimmy Fund — $7 million more than the organization raised last year. It is the largest sum ever given to the Jimmy Fund, which represents 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar, and it is more than twice the amount ever raised for charity by any other athletic fundraising event in the United States.

Each cyclist was required to raise between $1,000 and $3,600 to participate, depending on the chosen route.

In 2007, the PMC attracted 5,100 cycling fundraisers from 36 states and 10 countries. Also, the PMC this year created a new, one-day, 50-mile loop that started and ended at Babson College in Wellesley. The new route attracted 330 new riders who brought in an additional $1 million for the Jimmy Fund.

There are now seven PMC routes which cover 360 miles of infrastructure and travel through 46 cities and towns. In addition, 23 PMC Kids Rides in Massachusetts and New Hampshire brought in more than $463,000, which was $200,000 more than the PMC Kids Rides program raised last year.

Founded in 1980 when 36 cyclists rode across Massachusetts and raised $10,200 for the Jimmy Fund, the PMC is known today as the "gold standard" of athletic fundraising events, due to the unprecedented sums it raises and its consistently efficient charity pass-through rate. Through the 1990s, the PMC contributed between 92 to 99 cents of rider-raised dollar.

PMC 2008 is set for Aug. 2 and 3. Registration opens online on Jan. 8 for alumni and Jan. 15 for newcomers.

Granite Medical Physicians Honored For Excellence In Patient Care

Granite Medical, an affiliate of Atrius Health, announces it has been named to the annual Harvard Pilgrim Health Care Honor Roll for excellence in adult patient care.

This is Harvard Pilgrim's Sixth Annual Quality "Honor Roll." The Honor Roll highlights adult and pediatric physician groups that have achieved exceptional results in their approach to disease prevention and the treatment of chronic illness.

Harvard Pilgrim selected the Honor Roll physician groups based on clinical performance measured against national standards set by HEDIS® (Health Plan Employer Data and Information Set), a tool developed for the National Committee for Quality Assurance (NCQA) to assess the clinical performance of doctors and other medical professionals.

For adult care, Granite Medical physicians exceeded the national 90th percentile in a majority of selected preventive and chronic care measures including breast and cervical cancer screening, asthma management, and diabetic testing and management.

"Granite Medical is delighted to be recognized for its achievements in providing high quality care for our patients," said Guy Spinelli, MD, president, Granite Medical.

Granite Medical is located at Crown Colony Medical Center, 500 Congress St., in Quincy, telephone 617-471-0033.

Granite Medical was founded in 1997 and joined Atrius Health in 2005. Their 20 physicians and 5 nurse practitioners are committed to providing patients with the highest quality of care at its convenient location in Quincy.

In addition to internal medicine, many of the Granite Medical providers have expertise in a sub-specialty, including cardiology, endocrinology, gastroenterology, hepatology, nutrition, podiatry, pulmonary medicine and rheumatology.

Granite Medical accepts insurance from most major health plans, including Aetna, Blue Cross Blue Shield of MA, Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, Neighborhood Health Plan, Tufts Health Plan and Tufts Medicare Preferred.

REVERSING TOOTH DECAY

While healthy saliva is neutral or slightly alkaline (an environment that is not friendly to harmful bacteria), slightly-acid saliva (due to poor diet) creates an acid environment in which acid-producing bacteria attack tooth enamel. The good news is that fluoride attracts enamel-friendly minerals, which "remineralize" the teeth when they are held in solution by healthy saliva. Most importantly, this remineralization process occurs more rapidly, and results in stronger enamel, if fluoride is present in the saliva. Fluoride not only speeds the remineralization process, but it is incorporated into the enamel of developing teeth. Patients may avail themselves of the beneficial effects of fluoride from fluoridated toothpaste and mouthwash, topical fluoride treatments, dietary supplements, and fluoridated water.

We all need saliva to moisten and cleanse our mouths and digest food. Fluoride benefits adults and children, decreasing the risk of cavities at the root surface as well as the enamel crown. The importance of an attractive smile should be underestimated. Your personal satisfaction with your oral health and appearance is important. We are a highly qualified and experienced team of professionals - and we're here to help you make the most of your smile. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where are proud of our staff - a staff dedicated to helping you look and feel your best. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydenist.com.

P.S. Toothpaste should always be spit out and never swallowed. Too much fluoride in young children's systems can lead to "fluorosis" (and its associated stained teeth) when a child's tooth enamel is forming.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARI

"Life is sweet because of the friends we have made... And the things which in common we share... We want to live on, not because of ourselves... But because of the ones who would care... It's living and doing for someone else... On that all of life's splendor depends... And the joy of it all, when we count it all up... Is found in the making of friends." ... Anonymous

It has been said that a man who has the gift of making friends is a very blessed person. It is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, but, above all, the power of going out of one's self, and seeing and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another person.

We like Norman Vincent Peale's description of a friend: "A true friend knows when you need a word of affection and encouragement and knows just how to say it. He is one of these wonderfully thoughtful people who is sensitive, or tuned in, to the hearts and minds of others. He has that fine sense of timing which enables him to say the word of comfort and strengthening just when needed."

Christmas Cantata Dec. 4 At Houghs Neck Church

The adult and youth choirs of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church will present "Born a Savior, Born a King," a Christmas cantata on Tuesday, Dec. 4 at 7 p.m. at the church.

All are welcome to attend this free concert.

"The cantata explores through music the contradiction of Christ's birth in Bethlehem," said Choir Director Lois Zulauf.

"How could a child born of such humble surroundings be the promised savior and king? And how could a baby be the one whom the prophets had long promised would vanquish the enemy and deliver God's people," Zulauf added.

Refreshments will be served following the performance.

Located at 310 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck Congregational Church is handicapped accessible.

Houghs Neck Congregational

The Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., will celebrate the first Sunday in Advent at 9:30 a.m.

Pastor John Castricum will deliver his sermon "Gifts of Christmas: Myrrh."

Anne Baxendale and Dorothy Sparks will serve for the Diaconate. Coffee hour will follow the service hosted by Renee Ryan and Bette Olson.

The Church Post Office opens Sunday for parishioners to exchange Christmas cards with their friends at church and make a donation to the monthly newsletter.

The Church Council

meets Monday at 7 p.m. in the Gordon Room.

On Tuesday, "Born of Savior, Born a King" will be performed at 7 p.m. in the Sanctuary. The free cantata, sung by the church senior and junior choirs under the direction of Lois Zulauf, is open to the public.

Quincy Community United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual Hanging of the Greens during the 10:30 worship service Sunday.

"The origin of the Hanging of the Greens ceremony is unknown. Evergreens have a very long symbolic history," said the Rev. Dr.

Susan Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church. "Since the ancient times they have represented life and rebirth."

The service will combine readings from Scripture and songs. The real focus of the service is participation.

Before the service begins, everyone is invited to help decorate the Sanctuary with greenery. Then, at a certain point in the ceremony, volunteers are asked to carry out their part of the decorating.

The public is invited to attend the service.

For more information, call the church at 617-773-3319.

Quincy Point Congregational

The celebration of Christmas begins with the start of Advent season Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

The "Advent Wreath Ceremony" will be held during the 10 a.m. worship.

The Angel's message will be "Your Prayer has been Heard" delivered by the Rev. Ann G. Suzedell. She will be accompanied by the Deacon of the Day, Jane Raymond.

Following the service, all are welcome to fellowship hall for coffee and light refreshments. Selections will continue for the "Tree of Joy."

Bethany Congregational Church

Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St., Quincy Center, celebrating its 175th anniversary, will have Sunday worship service and church school at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William C.

Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "The Candle of Hope."

Childcare is available for infants and toddlers.

Following the worship service, there will be fellowship time in the Allen Parlor. Light refreshments will be served.

All are welcome.

The church is handicapped accessible.

St. Chrysostom's Holiday Fair Dec. 7-8

The annual Holiday Fair at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church will be held Friday, Dec. 7 from 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 8 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Friday evening opens with the traditional chowder supper catered by "Barefoot Bob's" of Hull.

For more information, contact the church at 617-472-0737.

The church is located at the corner of Linden and Hancock Streets in Wollaston.

OBITUARIES

Neil Howard Lancaster, Sr., 78

U.S. Navy Veteran

A memorial Mass with full military honors for Neil Howard Lancaster, Sr., 78, a longtime Quincy resident, was held Tuesday in First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave., Wollaston.

The Rev. Mike Cunningham officiated. Mr. Lancaster died Nov. 23 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth, following a period of declining health.

Born in Quincy, he was the only child of the late Manley H. and Anna (MacLeod) Lancaster.

After graduating from Quincy High School in 1947, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He served aboard the USS Waldron (DD699), a destroyer, as part of the Atlantic Fleet during the Korean War.

He was honorably discharged May 1, 1952.

He had lived in Hanover from 1958 to 1984.

Mr. Lancaster was a member of the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy, the Loyal Order of Moose in Quincy and the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in Quincy.

He was also an avid local sports fan, in particular the Red Sox and Patriots.

He is survived by his wife of 54 years, Nancy (Brooks) Lancaster; his children, Neil H. Lancaster, Jr. of North Weymouth, Paul B. Lancaster of Jacksonville, FL and Lois E. Concannon of Wollaston; six grandchildren and a great-grandson.

He is also survived by sisters and brothers-in-law, many nieces and nephews, and a good friend, Jimmy Campbell.

Interment was private. Funeral arrangements were made by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the South Shore Hospital Building Fund, 55 Fogg Rd., Weymouth, MA 02190.

COA In Need Of Bath Seats

The Council on Aging is in urgent need for bath seats for senior citizens.

Quincy Animal Shelter Kicks Off 'Santa Paws' Fundraiser

The Quincy Animal Shelter kicked off its annual "Santa Paws" fundraiser Sunday at Petco in Quincy.

Pet owners brought their excited and anxious dogs to have their photos taken with "Santa Paws", (Santa's "helper", Bob Gledhill), with all proceeds going to benefit the Shelter.

Pets and their owners received a photo card and photo CD for their $15 donation, which goes towards helping the homeless and unwanted animals in the city.

The Shelter is also holding a second "Santa Paws" event at Pet Supplies Plus

$2 Million Transfer Keeps Increase Under $118 $65 Average Tax Bill Hike Seen For Homeowners

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The city's residential tax rate for 2008 is expected to increase 1.69% or $65 for the average homeowner under the current tax plan prepared by Mayor William Phelan.

Phelan's tax proposal and the city's new revaluations were presented Monday at a City Council public hearing by Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors.

Fantucchio emphasized that all data, including the proposed tax rate, must still be certified by the state Department of Revenue (DOR).

"You can talk about it. You can not take a vote," Fantucchio said. As a result, the public hearing was continued until Dec. 17 after Fantucchio assured councilors that tax bills would still be distributed before the first of the year.

According to current records, the city's total valuation is $11,740,774,020 with just over $9.8 billion or 83.6% in residential values and $1.9 billion or 16.39% in commercial, industrial and personal property. New growth represents a $4,265,743 increase.

The 2008 figures represent a shift in the city's total valuation from residential to commercial.

Opens School Committee Seat Koch Names Timmins New City Solicitor

Mayor-elect Tom Koch has named School Committeeman James Timmins as the new city solicitor when he takes office.

This will leave a vacancy on the School Committee which will be filled at a joint convention of the School Committee and the City Council in January.

Koch announced two other appointments which will complete his senior staff.

Helen Murphy, executive director of Elder Housing Corp., will be operations director and Chris Walker, former Patriot Ledger city hall reporter, will be policy director.

Koch last week named James Fatseas as chief of staff and head of his transition team.

JAMES TIMMINS

Timmins, 50, will succeed Monica Conyngham, a Mayor William Phelan appointee, as city solicitor.

Koch this week also started a restructuring plan, announcing that the Constituent Services Department, headed by former City Councillor Tom Fabrizio, will be moved in the mayor's office.

The joint convention of the City Council and the School Committee will be similar to the one held in 2002.

That one was called to fill a vacancy created when Phelan was elected mayor with two years left on his School Committee term.

The convention elected Elaine Dwyer from among 15 candidates, edging Atty. Jay Davis by an 8-7 margin.

Dwyer retained the seat in the 2003 city election and is now vice chairman. Davis went on to be elected Ward 4 city councillor and will become City Council president in January.

Koch called Timmins "a perfect fit" for the solicitor's role in his administration.

"Jim is a talented lawyer and has tremendous knowl-

Central Middle School Still In Line For State Funding

Whatever Quincy decides to do with its century-old Central Middle School, the State School Building Authority is willing to chip in its share for the cost of the study and the construction.

The Authority last week released a list of 83 schools across the state that are still in competition for a share in $500 million that is available for school building in 2008-09.

Who gets what and how much is all very uncertain at this point but Central was described as one of the state's three most deteriorated school buildings.

"There's no guarantee we'll get the money," said

Elaine Dwyer, the vice chair of the School Committee. "But I'm happy we made the first cut. At least we're on the list for this year."

The next move is up to the city — the appointment of a building committee, which may come as early as the next School Committee meeting, said Dwyer.

Then the city has to name a project manager to conduct the feasibility study required by the state, another uncertain proposition since the office of the mayor in Quincy is in transition.

"We have three options," said Dwyer. "We could build a new school on the same location. We could build it on a different location. Or we could renovate the old building.

"My preference would be to build a new one."

When the feasibility study is finished the city still has to reach agreement with the state on the scope of the project, the schedule and the cost sharing. State reimbursement ranges from 40 to 80 per cent of the cost.

Then the state will pick the projects to be funded out of the 83 survivors on the A-list for 2008-09. And, lastly, the City Council or local voters would have a chance to reject or approve the project.

Christmas Crafts For Kids At Quantum Fellowship

The Quantum Christian Fellowship will hold a Christmas craft show for youngsters ages 3 to 15 and their parents Saturday, Dec. 8, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at their venue, 50 Huckins Ave.

The morning will begin with some Christmas songs. The story of Jesus' birth will be retold. Each age group will then work on four crafts, including the popular cookie decorating.

The cost is $7 per child or $10 per family. Register by calling Helen at 617-328-8771 or visiting www.quantumcf.org.

ATTN: QUINCY RESIDENTS FEMA GRANT APPLICATION TO PREVENT FLOOD DAMAGE

The City of Quincy is in the process of preparing an application to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) for a Pre-Disaster Mitigation (PDM) and Flood Mitigation Assistance (FMA) grant. Residential projects may include, but are not limited to, elevating utilities, elevating entire residential structures, or constructing new utility rooms. If your property has suffered from repetitive flood losses, you may be eligible to apply for one of these FEMA grants.

For more information, please call the City's Office of Housing Rehabilitation at 617-376-1054 or email alosordo@ci.quincy.ma.us by Friday, Dec. 14, 2007.

Frank Connolly Will Attend Memorial Obervance Friday 66 Years Later He Vividly Remembers Pearl Harbor, 1941

By TOM HENSHAW

"There's only a few of them left," observed Tom Stansbury of Quincy Veterans Services.

And one of the last few will be on hand at 10 o'clock on the morning of Friday, Dec. 7, at the World War II Memorial in Mount Wollaston Cemetery when Quincy observes the 66th anniversary of Pearl Harbor Day.

Frank Connolly of Wollaston was a seaman, a range finder operator, aboard the heavy cruiser USS St. Louis that Sunday morning in 1941 when the Japanese launched their surprise attack on the American base in the Pacific.

"I was all dressed up, ready to go ashore," he recalled the other day. "I was talking to an ensign when a lot of planes started zooming in a few feet over the water. I said to the ensign, 'What, another drill? And on Sunday morning!'"

"Just then two of them peeled off and dropped torpedoes. Then they started coming in three breast, dropping their torpedoes. I said to him, 'They're Japanese!' He said, 'Everyone go to your battle stations.'"

This was early Sunday morning in the peacetime Navy. The ships in Pearl were at colors and the bands were playing on the rear decks. None of them had power up and it took a while to get the boilers up to steam.

"It was almost 11 o'clock before we got out of the harbor. We started out in the channel behind the battleship Nevada," said Connolly. "One of those two-man submarines hit the Nevada with a torpedo and it was beached off Hickam Field so it wouldn't block the channel."

"The St. Louis got strafed a couple of times but we didn't suffer any serious hits.

FRANK CONNOLLY

My gun didn't fire a shot but our five-inch batteries shot off all their ammunition. We were the first major ship to get out of the harbor."

The St. Louis and its crew spent the next three days looking for the Japanese fleet without success.

"Three days later we came back into Pearl Harbor," said Connolly. "You would not believe the carnage. Small boats were still going around the harbor picking up the dead. I was assigned to a motor launch to pick up bodies. It was gruesome."

"Half of our crew was sent to San Diego to bring back a company of Marines. Everybody thought we were going to be invaded."

Connolly, who joined the Navy in 1940, later served in 12 different campaigns during the war in the Pacific. He was chief master at arms stationed at Alameda Naval Air Station in California when he was discharged in November, 1946.

Three years later, he joined the Boston Police Department and served for 32 years, mostly on beats in the South End and Back Bay, until he retired in 1981. Born and raised in Dorchester Lower Mills, he moved to Quincy in 1980.

Connolly will join the commander of the Quincy Veterans Council in placing a wreath on the World War II Memorial during the brief ceremony in Mount Wollaston Cemetery Friday and then the group will retire to the George F. Bryan VFW Post at 24 Broad St. for coffee and donuts.

In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held in the lower hall of the Bryan Post.

Pageant Field Track Plan Put On Hold

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The Pageant Field track construction plans have been put on hold, according to David Murphy, Executive Secretary to Mayor William Phelan.

At Monday's City Council meeting, Murphy responded to questions from Councillor Joseph Finn regarding changes in the track site location.

Finn cited letters from 37 Quincy student track competitors asking that the track be completed.

Phelan decided to hold off on plans for the Pageant Field track after discussions with Mayor-elect Thomas Koch, according to Murphy who said the mayor decided not "to begin a project that has been clearly opposed by the incoming mayor-elect," Murphy said, referring to the Pageant Field track.

Councillors approved a $1 million bond issue for the Pageant Field track site in May after months of review and discussion. However, the Pageant Field track site was an issue in the recent mayoral campaign.

"In fairness to the mayor-elect, he's made no secret of (his opposition) to the track being located there," Finn said, but added, "We risk the possibility of losing one of Quincy's finest programs."

"To date, we've already spent $108,000," said Finn, before suggesting there is a point at which opponents should accept that certain decisions did not go their way.

"That would be our fourth site," City Council President Douglas Gutro said of the prospect of reopening the issue.

Community Meeting Held On Nut Island Wind Turbines

Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Stephen Tobin were scheduled to hold a community meeting on the proposed Nut Island Wind Turbine Project last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the Quincy Yacht Club.

The meeting was held to allow the technical staff of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and the Massachusetts Technology Collaborative to answer any questions or concerns of any residents.

Questions about the meeting should have been directed to Morrissey's office at 617-722-1494.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Dec. 6, 1865, the 13th Amendment to the Constitution, officially ending the institution of slavery, is ratified, the single greatest change wrought by the Civil War.

• On Dec. 4, 1921, the manslaughter trial for actor and director Fatty Arbuckle ends in a hung jury. Arbuckle — nicknamed "Fatty" for his generous physique — was accused of manslaughter in the death of Virginia Rappe. The starlet died of a ruptured bladder several days after an alleged sexual assault by the 350-pound Arbuckle at a wild drinking party in San Francisco. After two hung juries, he was acquitted in 1922.

• On Dec. 2, 1932, Bing Crosby and Bob Hope appear together for the first time onstage in a show at the Paramount Theater, where "The Mask of Fu Manchu" opens. The duo would become two of Hollywood's best-paid actors thanks to their comic rapport.

• On Dec. 5, 1952, comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello launch their TV show. They made only 52 episodes, but the show appeared in reruns for decades. Abbott and Costello made their first film in 1940, "One Night in the Tropics," followed by the hit "Buck Privates" (1941).

• On Dec. 7, 1965, Chevrolet produced its 3,000,000th car for the year. It was the first time Chevrolet had produced an annual total surpassing 3 million vehicles.

• On Dec. 3, 1979, nearly a dozen young people are killed at concert by the rock band The Who in Cincinnati. Eleven victims were trampled to death during a stampede for seats at the Riverfront Coliseum. The band was not told of the deaths until after the show.

• On Dec. 8, 1980, John Lennon, a founding member of the Beatles and one of rock's most influential musicians, is murdered by a deranged fan in front of Lennon's New York City apartment building. The Beatles scored several U.K. hits in 1963, launching the "Beatlemania" tidal wave that hit the United States in 1964.

Dave And Rose

School Committeeman Dave McCarthy has two good reasons to look forward to the New Year. First, he has the votes to be elected vice-chairman in January.

Second, he and his wife, Rose, are eagerly awaiting the arrival of a new member of their growing family.

They are in the process of adopting a two-year old special needs boy in Vietnam.

He will be their sixth adopted child, five with special needs. They have two children of their own.

McCarthy will be going to Vietnam in February as part of the adoption procedure.

The family already has an international look.

The present adopted children are from the United States, the Philippines and Hong Kong.

The children, including their own two, range in age from eight to 15 and attend Quincy public schools: two at Quincy High School, three at Broad Meadows Middle and two at the Marshall School.

"They're all healthy," says McCarthy. "You should see them take care of a 25-pound turkey on Thanksgiving Day."

"We go through 14 gallons of milk a week-two a day. When I tell them at the supermarket that I'll be back, I am. Usually the next day."

McCarthy is Security Manager for General Dynamics' Navy-Air Force Division in Needham.

He will be starting his second four-year term on the School Committee as vice-chairman in January.

With seven children—and an eighth in the near future—in the Quincy public schools McCarthy knows firsthand the needs of students.

He and Rose shy from credit but deserve a lot of it for opening their home to children in need and making it a happy, loving one for them and the entire family.

And for giving the adopted children a much better life with love and opportunities.

If there is a "Parents Of The Year Award," I would like to nominate them.

FAITHFUL QUINCY FANS Mike Magerlund (1935 class), and George Burke (1950), kept their attendance streaks going at this year's 75th Quincy-North Quincy football game.

For Magerlund, retired Board of Assessors chairman, it was his 71st game. He missed four during World War II while serving with the Yankee Division with whom he saw action in the Battle of the Bulge.

For Burke, former state representative and city councillor, it was his 64th consecutive.

The pair sat together, enjoying the 75th and looking forward to the 76th.

Although the 75-year rivalry is now a Thanksgiving Day must for fans and grads of both schools, the game was not always played on that day.

The early ones, starting in 1933, were played on Armistice Day (Veterans Day) and a couple on Saturdays.

The first on Thanksgiving Day was in 1938. It was also the first played at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

A NOTE FROM Ruth Scanlan, former School Committee member now living in Randleman, NC:

"Several people sent me an issue of The Quincy Sun that had the recent election results. As you know, I have been closely affiliated with the Koch family and am delighted with the results of the election.

"After reading all the news on the election, I read the rest of the paper. Congratulations on continuing to publish a paper that is filled with important information for the people in the community."

Thanks for the kind words, Ruth.

She was elected to the School Committee in 1967 in her first try, with an impressive vote of 12,939, taking second place behind James McCormick in a field of six candidates.

It looked like a new political star was born but she stepped down after serving only one four-year term.

Some observers thought she might go on to become that first woman Quincy mayor.

AND ANOTHER ONE from John Vallier of Wesson Avenue:

"I was reading your column in the Nov. 21 Quincy Sun and I noticed that Frank McCauley corrected you on the vote in Ward 1.

"You stated that some day you would get one on him. I believe he made a mistake in his Quincy's Yesterdays column.

"It stated that Captain Anthony Capenci was treasurer of the Quincy Police Mutual Aid Association.

"I believe that in 1953, Mr. Capenci was a lieutenant at the same time as my Dad, Frank Vallier.

"I think you have Frank McCauley on this one."

See, Frank, they're watching you.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1930 postcard showing scenes at the Quincy Girl Scouts camp on what today is known as Great Herring Pond in Plymouth. The camp was established in 1928 through the gift of $4,000 from an anonymous donor who wanted it named for his mother, Mary Whit- ing. The camp opened with several new buildings on seven acres of land. It has 420 feet of water frontage on what was known then as Manomet Lake. Additional Quincy donations allowed the camp to be fully equipped and staffed to provide all sorts of outdoor activities as seen on the postcard. But, then in 1938, the Quincy Girl Scouts Council suddenly sold the camp. The sale occurred in a period when the Girl Scout movement was redirecting its programs from outdoors to indoors in order that girls could learn the responsibilities of creating and maintaining a home. The same family that bought it in 1938 has owned the camp now known as Camp Bourne Dale for boys. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Concourse: 'An Urban Renewal Boondoggle'

I read with interest the article in Saturday's Patriot Ledger, in which Mayor Phelan admitted that the "unexpected" increase in residential property taxes was due in part to the fact that "the loss of taxes from certain commercial properties, such as those the city acquired for its downtown Concourse project... appear to be greater than calculated."

Unexpected?

Hardly.

During my recent campaign for Quincy City Council, I noted repeatedly that the Concourse project would result in an increase in property taxes for homeowners, who would be forced to make up the tax revenue lost from the two dozen businesses the city planned to bulldoze to make way for this costly and unnecessary road. It was a position that was dismissed derisively by city officials—including my opponents for councilor-at-large—who insisted that the Concourse would be an economic boon for taxpayers, and that any loss in commercial tax revenue would be minimal and short-lived.

That was before the election, of course.

Now that the election is over and the tax assessments are in, city officials are finally being forced to acknowledge what many residents have known all along:

that far from being the economic savior of Quincy Center, the Concourse is an urban renewal boondoggle that in its earliest stages is already proving to be a drain on the pocketbooks of Quincy homeowners.

And this is just the beginning.

Keep in mind that the city has only begun its scorched-earth plan to demolish some of downtown Quincy's most vibrant businesses. If Quincy homeowners are already being forced to make up the tax revenue lost from a handful of demolished buildings, how much are we going to have to kick in when the bulldozers start obliterating the other 20 businesses marked for the wrecking ball?

One thing is certain: Now that the tax assessments are in, Quincy leaders can no longer feign ignorance of the Concourse's negative impact on Quincy taxpayers. As we head into a new mayoral administration, let's hope that Mayor-Elect Koch and the City Council receive this wake-up call loud and clear, and that they take the necessary steps to stop this ill-conceived project before it causes irreparable harm to our downtown and to the financial security of struggling homeowners.

Gentlemen, we'll be watching.

Urges Long-Term Solution To Long Island Use

Perhaps, Quincy with a new mayor can find a way to find a solution between Quincy and Boston over access to underused and quite beautiful Long Island.

Rather than turn it into a turf battle, let us find a way to find a long-term solution. Right now, Boston Harbor has become little more than a homeless shelter and social services Mecca.

Someday, it would be nice to make this island a place to summer at. To do so requires a re-location of all the services now provided on the island.

People from Boston, as well as Quincy, should have an opportunity to use Long Island as a recreational spot. The first step is for both mayors to actually sit down and workout an outline for future use.

Perhaps, it would be beneficial to set up a joint commission to create a future in which Long Island is no longer a piece of land to fight over.

She Thought Sal Said Goodbye

As a Quincy resident and a subscriber to The Patriot Ledger and The Quincy Sun, I would like to know why letters from Sal Giarratani are still being published.

He moved out of the city and wrote a goodbye letter, yet now he is still bothering us with his rambling opinions. Who cares if he looks forward to the Koch administration, it won't affect him in his new home in Dorchester.

I for one was looking forward to being done with his constant chirping.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Eggplant Cacciatore

One of our family favorites is eggplant, not only in parmesan style, but in other ways as well.

Today's recipe is for eggplant cacciatore. It's easy to prepare and doesn't have a ton of ingredients. I like to keep the skin on the eggplant, since this recipe calls for it to be cubed with an option to remove the skin or keep it natural. They say that most of the vitamins comes from the skin anyway.

EGGPLANT CACCIATORE

- 1 medium sized eggplant (cubed)
- 1 small onion (chopped)
- 2 cloves garlic (minced)
- 1 green pepper
- 1 red pepper
- 1/2 to 3/4 teaspoon basil or a favorite herb herb

- 1 16-ounce can tomatoes salt and pepper to taste
- 1/2 pound linguine (or a favorite pasta)
- 2 tablespoons olive for sauteing

In the hot oil, add the onions, garlic, peppers and saute for about five minutes. Add the tomatoes and cook for 15 minutes.

Now at this point, you can either saute the eggplant in another skillet, and then put it in the tomatoe mixture, or place them right in the mixture. I've done both-cook until the eggplant is tender.

Cook the pasta according to directions, and then in a serving bowl, place the eggplant mixture on top with 1/2 cup parmesan cheese sprinkled on top. It is a delicious way to serve this wonderful vegetable.

Following A Family Tradition

Beechwood Knoll Pupil Selected For 'The Nutcracker'

Eight-year old Bridget Durgin of Wollaston is following in her mother's footsteps or dance-steps as she was chosen from hundreds of contestants to perform in this year's Boston Ballet production of "The Nutcracker."

Bridget is following the family tradition as the three Gralton sisters, Bridget's mother Maureen and aunts Kathryn Hobin and Karen Hickey, all of Quincy, also won spots as young dancers in "The Nutcracker" in the late 1970's and 1980's.

Maureen Durgin said "Between the three of us, we performed for 10 years of so."

Now Bridget, a Grade 3 student at Beechwood Knoll School, will dance the part of a lamb in selected performances of the holiday show playing through Saturday, Dec. 29, at The Boston Opera House.

"She's thrilled. She is so enjoying it," her mother said.

As one of the hundred young dancers, Bridget performs with Cast B of the show this season. Since BALLET DANCER Bridget Durgin, 8, of Wollaston won a spot dancing as a lamb in this year's Boston Ballet production of "The Nutcracker." Bridget stands beside a sculpture of Clara, the key figure in the holiday story. Her mother Maureen and two aunts also danced for the Boston Ballet "Nutcracker" production.

October, she has been rehearsing with the cast on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

A student of the Boston School of Ballet for the past four years, Bridget also competes in Irish Step Dancing. She studied with the Forbes School of Irish Step.

Bridget competed in the New England Regionals

Competition (Irish Step) in Stamford, CT. She is also a member of the Quincy Youth Soccer Under 10 Girls Travel Team.

Her parents are John and Maureen Durgin of Quincy. She is the sister of Timothy and Eileen Durgin. Her grandparents are James and Mary Gralton of Quincy and Bert Durgin of Lowell.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL seniors Ricky Salvucci and Marybeth Torpey, both members of the QHS National Honor Society, have been nominated to compete in the National Honor Society's scholarship program organizations and clubs, achievements in the arts and sciences, employment experience, and academic record. They were also required to write an essay.

"Students nominated for the NHS Scholarship not only demonstrate academic excellence, but also excel in the areas of service, leadership, and character," said Rocco Marano, director, NHS. "In recognizing leadership in co-curricular activities as well as academic performance, the NHS scholarship recognizes the importance of a well-rounded education. Co-curricular activities are an essential part of the school curriculum."

Women's Fitness Course At Fore River Clubhouse Starts This Week

The Quincy Recreation Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation in cooperation with the Mayor's Commission on Woman have begun registration for two Women's Fitness classes, which began at the Fore River Clubhouse on Dec. 3.

Both programs are being held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at 8:15 a.m. or 9:15 a.m. The instructor is Mrs. Karen Gaughan.

Each class includes exercises to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness. Adaptations in the exercise allow each participant to work at their own pace.

The cost of the program is $60. The sessions began on Dec. 3 and will conclude on Feb. 15, 2008. Registration, which is still open, is on a first-come-first-serve basis.

Persons who did not register before the Dec. 3 class, may register weekdays at the main office of the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway, or online at QuincyRec.com.

Lunar New Year Festival Kickoff Meeting Tonight

Sponsors of the annual Lunar New Year Festival will hold their kickoff meeting tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the Atlantic Middle School, 96 Hollis Ave. North Quincy. The festival itself will be held Sunday, Feb. 17, from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at North Quincy High School.

Those attending tonight's meeting will meet with committee leaders, find out what they are doing this year, sign up to volunteer and meet other volunteers. There will be no "day of" volunteering.

For those who can't make the kickoff meeting, there will be a make up Monday, Dec. 10, at 2:45 p.m. at Quincy High School.

Monoprints Shown At Library

Oil paintings and monoprints by the Scituate artist Deanne Noiseux depicting the theme of Summer Dreams will be exhibited through the month of December at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

A public reception with light refreshments will be held tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 8 p.m.

While considered a painted, Noiseux recently turned to print-making, which allows her to combine a serious theme with a collection of artistic moments and explore the textures, colors and images created with ink, press and plate.

She has a masters in art education from the Massachusetts College of Art and currently teaches art at Norwell High School.

Dedicated In Memory Of Henry Dell

Bells Are Ringing Again For First Presbyterian Church And Neighborhood

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The bells are ringing again from the stately 60-foot church spire on Penn's Hill.

If you haven't heard the bells, there's a sign in front of First Presbyterian United Church on Franklin Street that says it all.

"The bells are back. Alleluia."

Last Sunday, the bells rang again from the church steeple for the first time since the funeral of Henry Dell on Dec. 19, 2004.

Now the bells are back, played through a brand new digital system installed last week and dedicated in memory of Dell.

Some 150 congregants, including Dell's widow Charlotte attended Sunday's special service and enjoyed the return of the bells.

Henry Dell was remembered as the state-of-the-art technology equipment was demonstrated.

"They were the joy of his life," Charlotte Dell said of the old bells. She recalling her late husband who joined the First Church choir at 12 and sang for the church for 69 years. Friends said Dell kept the old bells ringing by keeping tapes together with glue and rubber bands and love.

She and her husband were "Depression babies," Charlotte Dell said. Her husband served in World War II, then worked for the telephone company for 38 years before his retirement. Their two children are Elizabeth Smith of Middleboro and Douglas Dell of Holbrook.

"He took care of the bells," said Charlotte Dell, recalling letters from the original tape company, which said, "They had never seen tapes that lasted so long and were kept so beautifully."

When Dell died at 83, one of the congregants told his widow, there would be no matter what, for his funeral. The woman told her, "If they can't ring for his funeral, I will ring them by hand. That was the last time they were rung."

"Henry is really smiling down from heaven," she said of Sunday's dedication. "I am so excited."

The new system, a Millennium Carillon with a 900-song selection and 99 year setting, provides the music of carillon bells for the church and the neighborhood through the four speakers peaking through the four side windows of the wooden steeple.

The digital machine housed in a box about the size of a small refrigerator replaces the old standing tape unit that shut down years ago. Music can be changed by remote control and seasonally adjusted for hymns and daylight savings time.

Once again, the music is back to mark the days of joy, of sorrow, and of celebration. The bells again signal the hours of each day and call congregants to worship.

According to Ron Del Pino, Worship Committee Chairman, the bells will ring on the hour during the daytime and a hymn will play at noon and 6 p.m. as well as for special celebrations and occasions.

"I'm sure Henry's looking down and he's very pleased," said Bill Horte, volunteer and president of the church corporation.

Horte stopped raking leaves long enough last week to recall Henry Dell as "a fixture of the church. He'd rather be here but he's happy."

During those months and years of silence, the bells were missed not only by congregants, but also throughout the neighborhood.

Rev. Dr. Stan Johnson, pastor, said that the church neighbors missed the music and their interest was an important reason for the revival of the bells.

Del Pino said that when the church's carolers visited the neighbors last year, they were repeatedly asked,

"What happened to your bells?"

Shortly thereafter, the Worship Committee began a fund drive and raised some of the $10,000 needed for the new system. The drive is still underway.

About 250 persons are members of the church, which dates back to 1884. The Franklin Street brick church opened in 1962 when the congregation relocated from its original site on Water Street.

and the South Shore.

Delivery help is needed particularly on Saturday, Dec. 15, Monday through Friday, Dec. 17-21, and Saturday, Dec. 22.

The Crisis Center made a record number of home deliveries for Thanksgiving and is anticipating to match, or even exceed, that figure at Christmastime.

Those interested in volunteering their "Help for the Holidays" are invited to call 617-847-6967 to schedule a delivery time. It's an ideal event for families and friends to participate in together.

The Crisis Center is also short of certain foods that make up the holiday meal, things like cranberry sauce, gravy and stuffing. Donations can be dropped off at 282 Billings Rd., Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sponsors are also needed to "adopt" children of needy families requesting help with Christmas gifts.

John Murphy III Graduates Coast Guard Recruit Training

Coast Guard Seaman John C. Murphy III, grandson of John C. Murphy Sr. of Quincy, recently graduated from the U.S. Coast Guard Recruit Training Center in Cape May, N.J.

During the eight-week training program, Murphy completed a training curriculum consisting of academics and practical instruction on water safety and survival, military customs and courtesies, seamanship skills, first aid, firefighting, and marksmanship. A major emphasis is also placed on physical fitness, health and wellness.

Murphy and other recruits also received instruction of the Coast Guard's core values—honor, respect, and devotion to duty—and how to apply them in their military performance and personal conduct.

Help With Simple Wills Monthly

Atty. Ed Conroy will be at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy, every third Friday of the month to assist the elderly with a free explanation of simple wills.

Call 617-376-1506 for an appointment.

Murphy will join 36,000 other men and women who comprise Coast Guard's force.

Murphy is a 2007 graduate of Weymouth High School.

Dr. Lu-ann Papile Receives Landmark Award

Dr. Lu-ann Papile, FAAP, was recently awarded the Neonatal Landmark Award in recognition of her contributions to neonatal medicine.

The Landmark Award presented annually by the Section on Perinatal Pediatrics of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), honors individuals for their outstanding contribution in a specific area of neonatology.

Dr. Papile, honored at a ceremony in San Francisco, is internationally recognized for her contributions and commitment to improving neonatal care and outcomes.

A Quincy native, Dr. Papile is the daughter of Madeline Papile and the late John Papile.

Thanks to you, we're now helping more of your neighbors fight cancer.

Thanks to the 1500 walkers, plus hundreds of businesses and other groups, who participated in the 10th Annual Quincy Medical Center Cancer Walk, we raised a record-breaking $200,000 this year.

The Walk supports the Marie A. Curry Fund, which fights cancer right here in the Quincy area by providing neighbors with screenings, education, and diagnostic services. But it only happens with support we get from the business community, volunteers, walkers, donors and the Walk committee.

A special thank you to the Durkin family, whose "Positive Thinkers" team walked with us despite having just found out that their sister Ciara Durkin had been killed while serving in Afghanistan. This on top of also raising $7,000 for the Fund. Words cannot say enough.

City Ownership Of Bryan Post Needs Council Approval

City Councillors Monday tabled a proposal that would allow the city to take ownership of the George F. Bryan VFW Post, 24 Broad St.

Under the Dec. 3 order prepared for council action this week, the city would accept the ownership deed in lieu of foreclosure on the land and building.

The official order states that the property is owned by George F. Bryan VFW Post Building Association, Inc.

However, there are questions regarding the ownership of the property which is located near Father Bill's Place, a shelter for homeless persons.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi objected to any action on the issue this week. He stated that he wanted to see a copy of the property's ownership deed as well as a statement signed by the post's members stating they understood and voted for the action.

The post building was constructed in 1956 when the post had about 800 members in contrast to its current 300 members.

Raymondi said the issue would have to be taken up at the Dec. 17 meeting or refilled in January.

QHS Journalism Students Attend 'Media Matters'

Five journalism and creative writing students and their mentors from Quincy High School attended the third annual Media Matters Conference at UMass-Boston.

Both students and teachers audited seminars and workshops on different forms of writing and how to improve it, starting with finding the angles fans want to read in sports writing.

A second seminar heard Eric Sherman, the producer of the popular television show "Phantom Gourmet," expound on the ingredients that go into producing a television show.

After lunch, the presenter, Arthur Collins, gave a seminar entitled "Scribbling in the Dark," starting with poetry and leading to a creative piece, focused on the subject of "Unlocking Doors."

Students attending included Amanda Donell, Shu Wang, Alyssa Mullen, Vivian Pham and Richard Ash, members of a 16-student honors elective class in journalism taught by Sandy McNeice.

Donell and Wang also are part of the creative writing class taught by Christopher Natalizia, who attended the conference along with McNeice.

The conference was sponsored by The Boston Globe and Project: Think Different.

After School, Evening Programs Begin This Week At 14 Local Gyms

The Quincy Recreation Department's after school and evening gym programs are underway and began the week of Dec. 3 in neighborhood gyms throughout Quincy.

The free programs are conducted for boys and girls ages 8-high school at fourteen school locations. Members of the Recreation Department staff supervise all of the programs and the staff oversees a variety of gym activities, games and sports, which are appropriate to the age group of the participants.

Programs are offered on a variety of days and times depending on the location, availability of the gyms and number of participants. Quincy residents are eligible to register at the location of their choice and can attend different locations if they choose.

The programs are open to students from private and parochial schools, as well as public school students. Equipment is supplied by the QRD and all participants are requested to wear sneakers at gym locations.

The schedule of gyms is as follows:

7 Deadly Mistakes That Will Cost You Thousands When You Sell Your Home

Quincy - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. Most homesellers don't get what they want for their home.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that will cost them literally thousands of dollars.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-611-0351 and enter ID # 1000, call anytime. 24 hours a day 7 days a week. Call NOW to find out how you can get the most money for your home.

Eight Stolen Quilts Now Recovered

The last two of eight stolen quilts have been recovered, according to Pat Fay of Quilters Compass whose patrons had their prize quilts stolen last August from an exhibit at the Thomas Crane main library.

"They were turned in at the Pine Street Inn in Boston," Fay said of the stolen quilts. The quilts were returned after Fay sent pictures of the missing items to all of the Pine Street Inns.

"It's the best Christmas present I could have given anybody," Fay said, noting that it has been a tremendous relief to her as she has felt so badly for her clients.

Each of the stolen quilts had considerable personal history, according to Fay. The quilts were all created by in Fay's shop which serves 500 quilting students at 27 Cottage Ave., Quincy Center. Last summer, Fay arranged for an exhibit of 37 quilts on the library walls but the eight quilts were stolen before the exhibit reception. Fay had to tell the owners and their families at the reception that their artwork had been stolen.

Quincy police investigated the theft and were able to locate a witness who identified a suspect and helped retrieve six of the eight pocket and picture-size quilts. That witness will be rewarded with a personally designed patriotic quilt, said Fay.

The suspect, a homeless woman in her mid-30's who lives in a halfway house was charged in October, according to Fay who has been at Quincy District Court a number of times as the case unfolded.

"She admits to taking them," said Fay.

The judge told the suspect that "She had a month to get them (the last two quilts) back," said Fay who sent pictures of the quilts to all the Pine Street Inn shelters in early November.

With the return of the quilts, Fay said she believes the thief should be punished in some way with community service or oversight.

Bohan Liu Semifinalist In Merit Competition

Bohan Liu of Quincy, a senior at Boston College High School, has been named a Semifinalist in the 2007 National Merit Scholarship Competition.

Liu and 16,000 other Semifinalists throughout the nation, all academically talented high school seniors, have an opportunity to continue in the competition for some 8,200 Merit Scholarship awards, worth $33.9 million, that will be offered next spring.

More than 1.3 million students in over 21,000 U.S. high schools entered the 2007 Merit Program when they were juniors by taking the 2005 Preliminary SAT/ National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/ NMSQT), which served as an initial screen of program entrants.

Fewer than one percent of the nation's high school seniors were named Semifinalists. The Semifinalist talent pool is designated on a state representational basis, and the number of Semifinalists in each state is proportional to its percentage of the national total of graduating seniors.

Boston College High School is a Jesuit, Catholic, college-preparatory school for young men founded in 1863. The school enrolls approximately 1500 students from some 100 communities in eastern Massachusetts.

$65 Average Tax Bill Hike Seen For Homeowners

The 2007 valuations placed residential property at $10.1 billion or 84.9% and commercial, industrial and personal property at $1.8 billion or 15%.

In order to maintain the tax rate projections, Phelan requested a transfer of $2 million from the Stabilization Fund. His original request filed on Dec. 3 was for a $4 million transfer.

According to Fantucchio, the average residential tax increase would jump to $118, rather than $65, if the council rejected the $2 million transfer.

City Councillors debated, then approved by a 6-2 vote, the $2 million transfer from the Stabilization Fund. Both Councillor John Keenan, Chairman of the Finance Committee and Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis opposed the transfer.

"It is a short term fix," said Keenan who urged councillors to reject the transfer. "It becomes a bit of a shell game."

Keenan outlined thousands of dollars in unpaid contract agreements, insurance, energy bond obligations, potential deficits in current budgets, the snow and ice budget, and the looming costs of school building construction.

"We haven't received an appropriation for the (new) contracts," Keenan said, adding, "Even with the transfer of $2 million, we're still looking at a shortfall."

Keenan said the current levy "does not meet our obligations this year." He cited several departments that are already over budgets and many departments which have expended more 60% of their budgets halfway through the year.

"We've got the high school," Keenan said, noting that construction bills will come due in 2009-2010 and run through 2015. "We want to be able to draw from the savings account... smooth off those tax rates during those years. We're going to need $13 million."

"We can't be pennywise and pound foolish. We need to put more money back in the bank," Davis said that building up the cash reserves represented good money management strategies.

Davis said Quincy a great city to live in and offers many amenities, including all-day kindergarten which he said saves parents about $3000 a year on childcare.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro supported the $2 million transfer describing the vote as a compromise between voting for no transfer and a even higher tax increase, or the mayor's original plan to transfer $4 million.

Coughlin said he'd heard from "constituents gravely concerned by the rise in their tax bills."

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said he supported the transfer in order to return the money to the taxpayers "where the money came from."

Executive Secretary David Murphy described the mayor's decision to use the money saved in the current budget to maintain the tax rate.

Asked for his opinion, City Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick told councillors that he didn't recommend a regular dependence on free cash but he did support the transfer.

"I don't think it's something you should show a pattern on," Fitzpatrick said, after stating it's important to keep "tax rate at something that's affordable."

For most people, Fitzpatrick said they are "more concerned about how I'm going to pay my bills today."

"If they're unexpended, they have to go back to the taxpayer," Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said, citing bloated budget figures that were "...purposely intended to arrive at a surplus. It's being generated off the backs of taxpayer."

Raymondi praised the mayor for returning the funds, but repeatedly asked Fantucchio why Phelan had promised a $40 real estate tax decrease during the recent mayoral campaign.

"How could he come out with a $100 difference?" Raymondi asked, adding the $40 reduction to the $65 increase. He asked how much in additional funds the city would need to reduce the average residential tax bill by $40.

"You'd need about $6 or $7 million," Fantucchio estimated in order to meet the $40 reduction.

"What's troubling is the chief executive could be that far off. It was somewhat reckless," Raymondi charged.

Only one resident Carol Fischer of Haviland Street, spoke at the hearing. She said, "I feel like the system is broken. My taxes have gone up 58% in eight years."

Fischer told councillors that the time to worry about taxes is during budget preparation. She asked councillors to view the city as a corporation and the taxpayers as stockholders.

"Stand up again in April and May. Say, 'We want the average tax bill to come down X amount of dollars.'"

"We can't keep continuing at 7.2% increases," Fischer said, adding, "We're all hurting, gas bills, oil bills. What happens when the high school bills start rolling in?"

During the tax rate discussion, several councillors referred to Fischer strategy.

After the meeting, Fischer said she enjoyed hearing the councillors use her corporation analogy. She said she is a stay-at-home mother of two children, and, "It just goes to show one person can make a difference."

WALK FOR HEALTH AND HEALTHY FEET

Walking has become a hugely popular activity for fitness, weight loss, and general health. Since walking is basic to our lives, it is easy to forget that it is a form of exercise and that we should treat it as such by having the right equipment. If you are walking for fitness, be sure your shoes will protect your feet. Running and walking shoes have various levels of cushioning, so be sure to figure out how much is right for you. Since running/walking shoes do not generally have arch supports, put arch support inserts in if that is what you need. Arch pain, heel pain, and sore ankles can all be corrected with the right orthotic or insole.

For those who participate in exercise and sports activities of any kind, professional attention and guidance can help reduce the potential for discomfort and injury. And since difficulties with your feet can adversely affect your comfort and lifestyle, we invite you to call us for an appointment at 781-986-3668 to receive comprehensive podiatric care geared to your individual footcare needs. Sports medicine is one of our specialties here at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

P.S.: Before spending money on foot inserts, see your podiatrist to see what approach is best for your feet

Koch Names Timmins New City Solicitor

edge of municipal law," he said. "But just as important he has a great passion for Quincy that shows in all the ways he is involved in the community."

A Montclair native and a lifelong Quincy resident, Timmins has coached youth soccer in his hometown for 17 years and also has coached high school basketball and youth baseball and basketball. He taught school before turning to law.

The solicitor-select is a graduate of Brown University and Suffolk Law School. He has headed his own law firm since 1994 and served as assistant city solicitor for 12 years.

He is a member of Quincy Access Television Board of Trustees and provides color commentary for a number of sporting events broadcast by QATV.

"The decision to accept this job was difficult only because I have found my work with the School Committee so enjoyable and fulfilling," said Timmins.

"I regret having to leave the committee but I feel very grateful that Tom has offered me the opportunity to serve as the city's legal counsel and I look forward to the work ahead."

Murphy, a Wollaston resident, was for seven years executive director of the Elder Housing Corp., where she oversaw the development of the Squantum Gardens senior housing complex.

As operations director, she will focus on coordinating the day-to-day operations of city hall.

Walker, 30, who lives in Adams Shore, was a Ledger reporter for eight years before leaving the paper last January to volunteer on Koch's campaign.

As policy director, he will work on the administration's policy initiatives and direct communications from the mayor's office.

Under Koch, the current Constituent Services Department will move into the mayor's third floor suite at city hall, fulfilling a pledge Koch made during the campaign.

The move, said Koch, is to streamline day-to-day government services requested by residents and marks the first step in a broader government reorganization plan to make city hall more "cost-effective, responsive and efficient."

The mayor-elect said his staff will put together a new system to track constituent requests and keep track of their progress.

"We're going to take a hard look at every area of government and this is a great first step," said Koch.

"The goal is to have constituent services run directly out of the mayor's office and this plan accomplishes that."

Michael O'Mahony Graduates Air Force Basic Training

Air Force Airman Michael J. O'Mahony has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and military customs and courtesies; performed drill and ceremony marches, and received physical training, rifle marksmanship, field training exercises,

Ayers Speaker At Montclair/Wollaston Meeting

State Rep. Bruce Ayers will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum Streets.

Ayers will update the members regarding current quality of life issues which members of the community have a great interest in. He will address current events, accomplishments and future plans.

The association will conduct a short business meeting allowing members the opportunity to meet the new officers and thank the outgoing officers for their efforts on behalf of the association. Refreshments will be served.

The following officers were elected: President Mike Covais, Vice President Barbara Lok, Secretary Steve Greene, and Treasurer Janet Crowley.

All meetings are open to the public.

Quincy Community Action Programs Receives $15,600 From Project Bread

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) has received a $15,600 grant from Project Bread to help hungry families apply for food stamps.

QCAP is provided application assistance to clients using the state's Virtual Gateway online food stamp application. This program, in partnership with the Department of Transitional Assistance (DTA), gives eligible applicants a convenient, supportive, and secure way to access benefits online at their local community-based organization.

The electronic process provides greater convenience: applicants can apply right in their own neighborhood; they can work with a counselor who speaks their language and who coaches them through the process; and the program gives applicants a unique tracking number and a confirmed time and date of submission, eliminating the guesswork about when the application has arrived for processing.

"The funding that Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. has received for the Food Stamp Program has enabled us to hire staff dedicated to assisting clients with the on-line application process," said Beth Ann Strollo, executive director of Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc.

"At QCAP, our clients include individuals and families who do not have transportation to a Department of Transitional Assistance (DTA) office, elders with mobility restrictions, and single moms with small children. The online application provides easy access to food stamp benefits for a population who otherwise would be left out," Strollo added.

QCAP staff assist applications with the entire application process, Strollo said. They educate applicants on the follow-up process, fax documentation to DTA, and facilitate communication with caseworkers.

"As a result," Strollo said, "people who are eligible for food stamps, but who may have 'fallen through the cracks,' receive the benefits because they have access and support from an agency in their community."

For more information on applying for food stamps, call 617-479-8181 ext. 100. Appointments are scheduled Tuesday, 10 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 2 p.m.; Wednesday, 10 to 11 a.m. and Thursday, 1 to 2 p.m.

Potential applicants can also log on to www.qcap.org or visit Learning Links, 1511 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

REAL ESTATE

QCAP Offering Mortgage Foreclosure Counseling

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) announces it is offering counseling to help mortgagors who are in financial trouble find a way to stay in their home.

If that is not possible, QCAP tries to help mortgagors get the best possible result from a foreclosure. Because mortgagors threatened with foreclosure are very vulnerable, QCAP also gives mortgagors advice about possible scams.

In addition, QCAP advises mortgagors of their rights before and after the foreclosure process.

QCAP is not a lender and does not provide funds to borrowers to prevent foreclosure except small amounts in very limited circumstances.

QCAP is a non-profit agency serving the South Shore area. The office, located at 1509 Hancock St., Quincy Center, provides free mortgage foreclosure counseling under a grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

For more information, contact Deirdre Jacobs Hall, homeownership coordinator, at 617-479-8181 ext. 115.

JACK CONWAY and Co. agents and families rode the Conway float in the 55th annual Quincy Christmas parade.

Jack Conway Co. Float Featured In Christmas Parade

Quincy-Jack Conway and Co. agents and families rode the Conway float in the 55th annual Quincy Christmas parade.

The parade theme this year was Christmas Celebrations, so the Conway float and passengers were decked out in international costumes.

"It was a great time as always," said Conway-Quincy manager Diane Furness. "We had different costumes for different countries and a blow up Earth Ball on the front of the float."

The float also had a Christmas tree with tags wishing the crowds Merry Christmas from different countries and presents with tags of various foreign names.

The Conway entry won a trophy for the best Specialty Category float.

Red Sox pitcher Curt Schilling and his family lead the parade which stepped off just after noon, and included more than a dozen floats, 11 bands, color guards, antique cars and high school beauty queens.

But of course the highlight of day was Santa's arrival by parachute at Pageant Field.

The participants on the Conway float were Diane Furness, Karen Boisson, her daughter Montanna and friend Cassidy, Olivia King, her daughter Breeah and niece Caia, Jennifer Kern, Alex Miraldo, Rose Kelley and her two granddaughters Samantha and Kayleigh Devorak. Ed Corbo drove the float and Bill Furness helped with the decoration.

Jack Conway Co. is celebrating its 51st Anniversary as the largest independently owned real estate company in Massachusetts. There are 43 sales offices from Boston to Cape Cod. The firm also operates its own mortgage company, Conway Financial Services.

New and Improved

by Rob & Feryal

We knew we wanted a home close to Boston that we could make our own. With our CENTURY 21 Annex Realty agent Maryellen Riley's help, we were able to buy a great fixer-upper that was within our budget and ability to renovate. Our kitchen is the first room on the list and we look forward to having our families over for dinner!

Three Quincy Students Honored At Choir School

Three Quincy students were recently invested into full membership into the Boston Archdiocesan Choir School.

They are: Matthew Hannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Hannon; Ciarnan O'Farrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Desmond O'Farrell; and Devon Yu, son of Ms. Wendy Mui.

Matthew's brother, Sean Patrick Hannon, and four other boys received honors in the first term.

Second Honors were earned by Peter Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jensen, and Steven Huynh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Huynh.

Sean Patrick Hannon received Honorable Mention, as did Timothy Keenan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Keenan and Brendan Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Murray.

Also attending the school from Quincy are Rory Lavin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lavin, and Justin Au, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Au.

At Investiture, which is the culmination of over two months of musical and academic preparation on the part of all incoming fifth grade boys, each student/chorister recites a pledge, promising to use his musical talents for the greater honor and glory of God.

The Choir School, home of the Boston Boy Choir, is a full-time day school for vocally talented boys in grades five through eight.

Ways To Reduce Junk Mail And Telephone Calls

National Do Not Call Registry: www.donotcall.gov or call toll free 1-888-382-1222, sponsored by the Federal Trade Commission of the United States Government. Register your home, office and cell phones.

Junk Mail - www.privacyrights.org/Letters/jm1a.htm to get the mail in form. Send $1.00 in check or money order to Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, P.O. Box 643, Carmel, NY 10512. This will reduce sweepstakes and junk mail. Include the name and address of others living with you so that they don't start getting the junk mail that you once received.

Reduce catalog deliveries - Email optout@abacus-us.com to reduce mail deliveries.

Credit Card Offers - go to www.opoutprescreen.com to opt out for five years or forever.

"Privacy Policies" - when you get mail from companies that you have credit cards or financials with, watch out for their letters, often labeled "Privacy Policy," seeking permission to sell your name to others. Be sure to send the form back with no permission granted.

Product Warranties/Rebate forms - always write "no mailing lists" across the form you mail back.

Telemarketing - if a caller slips through the "do not call list" you signed up for, tell them to take your name off their list, or you will never send a donation or buy from them again.

Non-profit agencies and companies you have conducted business with in the past may still call you. If you no longer want them to call, tell them to remove your name and number from the list.

As always, do not give out your Social Security number and/or date of birth.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, Nov. 27, at approximately 9:35 p.m., Officers Tim Moran and Dave Zupkofska were dispatched to the "Lil' Brazil" store on Washington Street to investigate an activated burglar alarm.

Upon arrival, Officer Moran notified headquarters that the glass of the front door had been shattered. Sgt. Mike O'Shea, Officer Matt Patten and K-9 Officer Scott Smith responded to the scene. After searching the building to no avail, the owner was contacted. The officers noted a large glass jewelry display had been opened and it appeared most of the jewelry was missing. Officer Moran also noted the cash register drawer was open and there were a few dollars on the ground.

The owner arrived on scene and Officer Moran inquired about the surveillance monitoring system she had installed. The owner first confirmed that $25 was missing from the cash register drawer and approximately $15,000 of gold jewelry was missing from the display case.

The officers on scene reviewed the video of the break-in and observed a male smash the front door, jump over the jewelry display case, take the jewelry, and then go to the register. The video also shows a second male standing at the front door. Based on the video, a description was given out of the suspect's physical description and of the items stolen. Detective Tom Cleary took photos and fingerprints.

At approximately 11 p.m., Detectives Brian Coen and Bill O'Brien were in the area of the Tedeschi's store because some youths were acting suspiciously and they were watching for drug activity. Detective O'Brien informed dispatch that one of the males was flashing gold jewelry around in the parking lot.

As additional units were responding to the area, Det. O'Brien approached the group, identified himself as a police officer and showed them his badge. He told the group he was investigating an incident of stolen gold jewelry and asked if anyone had any on them.

One male spoke up and said he did. Now, with plenty of officers on scene, Det. O'Brien read and explained Miranda rights to this suspect (#1), who stated he brought it from another male, (Suspect #2) pointing to him, adding he paid him half the money for three gold chains.

Det. O'Brien then interrogated suspect #2 and found 8 gold chains in the suspect's pocket, along with jewelry on his neck and wrist. Officer Chris McDermott observed that suspect #3 was wearing three gold necklaces and two bracelets. The owner was transported to the suspect's location, where she identified the jewelry from each suspect as being stolen from her store.

Det. Coen looked inside the suspect's car and saw a broken gold chain, which was also identified by the victim. Officer Zupkofska checked the area and found a small plastic bag containing what appeared to be cocaine, but could not be linked to the suspects.

Because the officers were able to review the surveillance tapes, they were able to match up the suspect in the store as well as the suspect waiting at the door. The suspects were still wearing the same clothing at the time of the arrest that they were wearing on the videotape.

Suspect #1, a 25-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with receiving stolen property over $250. Suspect #2, a 47-year-old Quincy resident, and Suspect #3, a 43-year-old Quincy resident, were both charged with breaking and entering in the nighttime to commit a felony, willful/malicious destruction of property over $250 (forced entry into Lil' Brazil, breaking glass in a building, larceny over $250 and receiving stolen property over $250).

BEWARE OF TELEPHONE SCAM: Calls to certain area codes located outside of the United States can be very costly to you. This is how the scam works:

Victims will receive a telephone message instructing them to call a number with an "809," "284" or "876" area code to collect a prize or learn about a family member who is in trouble or sick. The victim makes the call, not aware that the number is outside of the United States, resulting in expensive international call rates.

The calls often originate from Canada or the Caribbean. The victim learns of the high rates when they receive their telephone bill.

How do you prevent this from happening to you?
• Check the area code to be sure you recognize it as a place that you have called before. If you have suspicious about the call, spend a few minutes researching where the area code is located.

• As always, keep in mind that any sweepstakes prize via the telephone should be approached with extreme caution, especially if you do not recall even entering the contest or playing the particular lottery.

• If you are victimized by this scam, contact your telephone service provider for assistance. Your bill should also state who the carrier was that charged the high "scam" prices.

By working with your telephone company, the charges can often be removed.

SPORTS

Regular Season Begins Soon,
Coaching Changes At Both High Schools

'Tis The Season . . . For Winter Sports

By SEAN BRENNAN

With Thanksgiving having come and gone and the first snowfall of the year now upon us, you can put away those football pads, soccer cleats, and volleyball nets, and start to get ready for the 2007-2008 winter high school sports season.

Last week and this week, Quincy and North Quincy High Schools have been in the process of holding tryouts, scrimmages and pre-season games in preparation for the beginning of the regular season, which begins sometime in the next 10 days.

Since the end of last year's winter sports season, there have been coaching changes at both high schools.

Long-time North Quincy girls' basketball coach Doug MacFarlane stepped down and has been replaced by assistant coach Michael Jorgenson, a teacher at North Quincy. James Scott, also a teacher at North, has taken over the reins as the boys' wrestling head coach. Scott takes the place of Dan Regan who stepped down after the conclusion of the 2006-2007 season.

Also, Michael Ciarletta has taken over as head coach of the North Quincy boys' ice hockey team, replacing long-time head coach Bob Doyle behind the bench.

Quincy had one coaching change. Last year's boys' wrestling coach, Patrick Lane, has handed the controls over to assistant head coach Elliott Columb this winter.

Full previews for all winter sports teams will be appearing in the coming issues of The Quincy Sun, but until then, here is a list of the early season games for all of the teams.

QUINCY

Boys' Basketball

The Quincy President boys' basketball team will open its regular season with back-to-back games against Silver Lake Regional High School on Dec. 14 (home) and Dec. 18 (away).

The Presidents and Lakers met last year in the first round of the Division II South Sectionals. Quincy defeated Silver Lake, 62-48, before knocking off Sharon HS, 73-52, in the quarterfinals.

Quincy's magical post-season run ended with a 75-66 loss to Catholic Memorial in the South Sectional semifinals. It was the farthest a Quincy team had gone in the tournament in 30 years.

The 2006-2007 team finished with a 17-6 overall record, and their record since head coach Bob Fisher took over in '04-'05 is 51-14.

This year's team will need to replace seven seniors who graduated last spring, including captains Steve Connolly, Wendell Cosgrove and regular rotation players Matt Boyle and Jared Tucker. Key returning players to keep an eye out for this winter include DeShawn Matthews, Paris Amado and Doug Scott.

Girls' Basketball

The Quincy President girls' basketball team is scheduled to open its regular season on the road Dec. 14 against Hanover High School. They will next play on the road against Norwell HS on Dec. 19 and in an ACL road game against Nauset HS on Dec. 21.

The Presidents will not play a home game until after the New Year (Jan. 8 vs. Whitman-Hanson HS).

Last year, Quincy finished with an 11-11 record. They entered the Division II South Sectionals as the #20 seed, and preceded to defeat Silver Lake, 46-41, in a preliminary round game, before losing to #4 Hingham HS, 55-41 in the first round.

This year's team will return four out of five starters from the 2006-2007 team. Head coach Jeff Bretsch will lean on senior captains Megan Tobin and Marybeth Torpey, senior Liz Bock and sophomore Leslie Campbell. Also returning will be seniors Kathryn Carella, Julie Kisielius, Kerri Ryan and underclassmen Hilary Mills and Alyssa Mullen.

Boys' Ice Hockey

The Quincy President boys' ice hockey program will drop the puck on the 2006-2007 season at home (3 p.m., Quincy Youth Arena) on Dec. 10 against Silver Lake HS. The team will then play against Plymouth South HS at home on Dec. 12 (game time 7:10 p.m.).

Head coach Bob Sylvia's team will be looking to get back to the post season this

Quincy's George Regan Receives Rose Pessin Memorial Award

The Arc of Greater Boston recently presented the first Rose Pessin Memorial Award to George K. Regan Jr. of Regan Communications at the nonprofit's annual Red & White Ball at the Seaport Hotel.

The award honors a dedicated citizen for their exceptional effort and contributions within the community.

The award is named in memory of the organization's matriarch Rose Pessin, who passed away last year, after dedicating 37 memorable years as The Arc's Director of Development. The Arc of Greater Boston (GB) is the Boston area's local chapter of the oldest and largest national advocacy organization (Arc of the US) advocating on behalf of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities in the world.

Boston Mayor Thomas M. Menino, Cong. William Delahunt and Cong. Stephen Lynch were among the invited guests.

Also in attendance were Arc supporters and Red Sox

Lessons Starts Jan. 8 At Blue Hills Ski Area Ski, Snowboarding Instruction Registration Begins Dec. 11

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch announces the Quincy Recreation Department will conduct registration beginning Tuesday, Dec. 11 at 9 a.m. for a program of ski instruction and snowboard lessons, to be held at the Blue Hills Ski Area.

This program is open to Quincy youngsters age 8 through high school and features a one-hour and thirty-minute lesson for beginners to advanced, use of the ski tow and transportation to and from the Blue Hills Ski Area.

The staff at the QRD supervises the transportation and certified instructors of the Blue Hills Ski School provide the lesson instruction.

The program will begin on Jan. 8 and will continue for five weekly lessons. The cost of the program is $168 and is payable at the time of registration. The ski area can provide rental equipment at an additional cost.

The QRD staff will do arrangements for rentals at the time of registration.

The program leaves from the QRD office, One Merrymount Parkway, at 3:15 p.m. and returns at 6:30 p.m.

The registration will continue at the QRD as long as openings exist. There is limited enrollment available and registration can be done online at QuincyRec.com.

The Blue Hills Ski Area is re-opening this year under new management. The always-popular program should be even better with the Division of Recreation and Conservation committed to making the unique facility into a first-class ski center for the area.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the QRD at (617) 376-1394.

Youth Group 'Drop-In' Program At St. Joseph's Friday

St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, will be continuing their Youth Group program for junior high school students this Friday night (Dec. 7) from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Students in grades 6-8 are encouraged to join in the fun at the school gymnasium. This will be the fourth monthly event held at the church. The first three programs were well attended, with students enjoying relay games, pizza, ice cream and other activities.

For the past eighteen months, many adults at St. Joseph's have been working hard to formulate a plan for the program. Under the leadership of Father Vinnie Doolan, the parish has adopted a model called 'Sparking Youth Ministry,' provided by the Archdiocese of Boston.

Recently, Fr. Doolan commented, "We're really excited because we finally have a long-term plan and an active adult participation in place to make this program successful. I want to thank these folks who have worked long and hard to prepare for year after finishing the 2006-2007 campaign with a 10-7-4 overall record.

The Presidents lost a historic game against city rival North Quincy, 2-1 in overtime, in last year's Division II South Sectional first round game. It marked the first-ever matchup with the Raiders in MIAA tournament play.

Wrestling

The Quincy Presidents start their 2007-2008 season by hosting a Tri-Quad meet this Saturday (Dec. 8) at the East Gym at QHS. The meet begins at 9 a.m.

The team will play host to Whitman-Hanson on Dec. 12 (7 p.m.) before hosting a Wrestling Quad at East Gym on Dec. 15 beginning at 9 a.m.

New head coach Elliot Columbe takes over for Pat Lane.

The Presidents biggest win last year was a 40-32 decision over North Quincy. The victory marked the first time in three seasons that Quincy had gotten the better of the Raiders.

NORTH QUINCY

Boys' Basketball

The Red Raiders start their 2007-2008 season with three consecutive home games.

North will play host to Barnstable HS on Dec. 11 (6:30 p.m.), Bridgewater-Raynham HS on Dec. 14 (6:30 p.m.) and Whitman-Hanson HS on Dec. 18 (6:30 p.m.).

North started last year with high hopes (the 2005-2006 team won 17 games and shared the league title), but in the end, head coach Kevin Barrett's team finished with a 5-13 overall record. Their year ended with a 60-38 loss to rival Quincy.

North will be looking to replace the leadership of graduated senior captains John Huerth, Terrell Johnson and Matt Edgerly, but they will return seniors Dennis Martin, Marcellus Lee, Alex Tragellis, Sean Clifford, Mike Horgan, Matt O'Neill and Phuoc Nguyen.

Girls' Basketball

The Red Raiders open the 2007-2008 season as defending co-champions of the ACL North Division with Whitman-Hanson HS.

The team will tip-off the winter season versus Brockton HS at home on Dec. 10 (6:30 p.m.), followed by an away game against Wellesley HS on Dec. 12, before playing on the road against W-H on Dec. 18.

North, which finished last season with a 16-5 record, entered the Division I South Sectional tournament as the #4 seed. The Raiders were upset in the first round by #13 Dufree HS, 62-50.

New head coach Michael Jorgenson replaces nine-year head coach Doug MacFarlane on the sidelines this year, but MacFarlane left the cupboard stocked for another run at a league title.

The Raiders graduated senior captains Megan Therrien and Lauren Stille, and seniors Danielle Kelly, Shannon Malone and Caroline Cunningham, but this year's team returns Rebecca Goreham, who broke the school rebounding record last year, Kasey O'Connell, Brianne Carnell, Paige Bonanni, Mary Kate Stille, Jess Howlett, Siobhan Carnell, Catherine O'Connell and Rushri Wijesundera.

Boys' Ice Hockey

The North Quincy boys' hockey team opens its season on Dec. 17 at home against Hanover HS (3 p.m., Quincy Youth Arena). The Raiders play versus W-H HS at home on Dec. 19 (7:10 p.m.) before playing four road games in a row at the end of the month.

Last year, North Quincy finished with a 11-8-3 record, including a thrilling 2-1 overtime win over Quincy HS in the first round of the Division II South Sectional tournament. The Raiders, the #9 seed, lost to #1 seeded Franklin HS, 4-2, in the South

Sectional quarterfinals.

Long time head coach Bob Doyle stepped down after the season ended and Michael Ciarletta has taken over.

Ciarletta will miss the leadership and experience of graduated seniors Chris Burke, Jim Fitzpatrick, Josh McKeon, Mike Griffin, Ted Finnegan, Ken Patey, Eric Moreschi, Matt Martin, Joe Canavan, Max Adams, Nash Winters and Matt Connors, but returning players Brian McLean, Joe Morris, Zac Deegan, Matt Rodriguez, Joe Vailpando, Derek Scott, Chris Hunter, Matt Furey, Brandon Gilmore and Steve Barresi should help North get back to the post-season this year.

Wrestling

The Red Raiders hit the mats to begin their 2007-2008

season on Dec. 12 at home against Marshfield HS (7 p.m.). The team will participate in a Tri-Meet at Sandwich HS on Dec. 15, before traveling to Woburn HS on Dec. 19.

The Raiders will host a Tri-Meet in the NQHS Gym on Dec. 22 beginning at (9 a.m.).

New head coach James Scott, who is replacing Dan Regan this winter, will look to build on last year's success, but will have to find a way to replace the efforts of graduated seniors Phil Kelly, Jon Tan, Jack Leung, Kenny Xu, Kenny Lok, Louis Chen and Dewar Tan.

Both Kelly (sectional, state and New England champion in the heavyweight class) and Tan (119 lb.-class) won their respective weight classes at the Metro Sectionals last year.

Q-NQ Coed Track

The Quincy-North Quincy High School coed track teams will open their winter season with two consecutive meets at the Reggie Lewis Center, Boston.

The first meet against Plymouth North is scheduled for Dec. 12 at 5 p.m. and the second, a meet against Plymouth South, is scheduled for Dec. 17 at 5 p.m.

The team will compete in the ACL Carnival (at the Reggie Lewis Center) on Dec. 27 and the Freshmen-Sophomore team will kick off the New Year at the Auerbach Freshmen-Sophomore Meet on Jan. 5.

The team is coached by Geoff Hennessey.

Senior Vice President Larry Cancro and Greater Boston Convention & Visitors Bureau President Pat Moscaritolo.

"George Regan has been a longtime supporter of The Arc and has personally worked with Rose Pessin," said Arc CEO Terri Angelone. "Rose had asked George to be Man of the Year last year, shortly after the 2006 Ball, and he agreed whole-heartedly, without hesitation. After Rose's passing Pat Moscaritolo suggested to The Arc's Board of Directors that the annual award should be renamed the Rose Pessin Memorial Award in her memory. I cannot think of a more fitting title for this distinguished award."

"It was a privilege to be considered a friend by Rose and I am honored to receive the first ever Rose Pessin Memorial Award from the

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Gym Phobia

Q. A new fitness club has opened in my neighborhood that offers great classes and a beautiful building. Several of my friends have already joined, and I would really like to join too. The problem is that I am overweight. I feel self-conscious and am afraid that everyone will look at me. I know the classes and other equipment at the gym will help me lose weight and feel better, but how can I get over my fear and begin doing something to help myself?

A. You're not alone — there are many people who share your fear. A fitness facility, although full of opportunity, also can be filled with people who are nervous about who is watching, what they look like and if they will fit in with other members. The key is to not let this fear keep you from working toward your fitness goals and creating a healthier you.

Take a tour of the new club and learn what programs it has to offer. Go with a friend you feel comfortable around and ask questions. Try to tour the facility at the time of day you're most likely to attend, and also look around at the other members' interaction with each other and the staff.

Ask the club's sales adviser for a trial membership. Many facilities will offer you the chance to work out for free for three to seven days so you can find out if you're comfortable there. Take advantage of this trial time to check out classes and programs while seeing how you would feel as a member. This can be a great way to begin to get over your fears.

If you decide to join the new fitness facility, meet with a fitness professional to get acquainted with the gym's features and overall layout. Most clubs offer initial orientation sessions with an on-staff personal trainer to help you get started. These sessions are designed to review your medical and activity background, design a basic workout program based on your fitness goals, and demonstrate the proper use of exercise equipment.

Working one-on-one with a fitness professional also can help you gain confidence in your abilities. After your initial orientation sessions, you can always continue working with your personal trainer, who will help you stay accountable and work with you until you feel confident and comfortable enough to work out on your own.

Remember that you're not alone. Almost everyone at a fitness facility has a common goal, and that is to get healthy or remain healthy. You owe it to yourself to not let fear keep you from reaching your goals.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, write Andrea in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Healthy Holiday Helpings

Dana-Farber Experts Offer Eating Tips This Holiday Season

The holidays are in full swing and festive food is everywhere.

While these foods are delicious to eat, some have an added bonus of containing cancer-preventing nutrients, says Stephanie Meyers, MS, RD/LDN, a nutritionist at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

Pumpkin isn't just for pie

Pumpkin can be a holiday staple for many families. And for some, it may be one of the tastiest ways to enhance the body's natural cancer fighting ability, says Meyers. Pumpkins are packed with cancer fighting nutrients called carotenoids, which have been linked to the prevention of colon, prostate, breast, and lung cancer.

Although many people only think of eating pumpkin when it is made into a pie, it also can be consumed in a variety of other ways, including roasted pumpkin, pumpkin soup and high fiber pumpkin muffins or bread.

Other orange vegetables, including sweet potatoes, carrots and squash, such as acorn and butternut, also are rich in carotenoids.

Meyers stresses that it is more beneficial to consume carotenoids from whole foods rather than from supplements, as the carotenoids in the pill-form do not appear to have the same protective properties. In fact, that is true of many of the nutrients in foods. Eating whole foods typically provides greater health benefits than taking a dietary supplement.

An Apple a Day

Apples are another food with cancer preventing properties, thanks to the nutrient quercetin, which protects DNA in the cell from damage that could lead to the development of cancer.

Meyers points out, however, that apples provide the most protection against cancer when eaten with the skin on and not combined with sugar and fats, such as in a pie.

Not Just For the Holidays

Cranberries also offer nutritional protection against cancer. Cranberries contain benzoic acid, which has been shown to inhibit the growth of lung cancer, colon cancer, and some forms of leukemia.

Meyers reminds her patients that cranberries aren't just for the holidays and encourages them to eat cranberries year-round. She says that buying bags of cranberries now, while they are at their nutritional best, and popping them in the freezer for later will help ensure that the berries provide the highest level of cancer protection all year long.

Color your world

The overall key to finding cancer fighting foods is to look for a lot of color. The brighter and richer the pigment, the higher the level of nutrients.

"You want to load up your plate with as much colorful plant-based foods as you can, such as tomatoes, carrots, and sweet potatoes," explains Meyers. "Eating a plant-based diet all year long is the best way to help lower your risk of cancer."

Dana-Farber Cancer Institute (www.dana-farber.org) is a principal teaching affiliate of the Harvard Medical School and is among the leading cancer research and care centers in the United States. It is a founding member of the Dana-Farber/Harvard Cancer Center (DF/HCC), designated a comprehensive cancer center by the National Cancer Institute.

EMPLOYEES AND DOCTORS AT Orthopedic Surgery of QuinCY, Inc., donated a complete Thanksgiving dinner which included a 25-pound turkey and $120 gift certificate to a DOVE Shelter in QuinCY. DOVE shelters women and their children who are victims of domestic violence. Kathy Norris (right) of DOVE, Inc. told Marisa Heller, the practice's organizer, that the meal would feed the 18 people expected at the shelter on Thanksgiving.

Two QuinCY Physicians Named 'Best Doctors'

Two physicians in the QuinCY office of Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology (CHO) recently received the distinctions of "Best Doctors in America" in Medical Oncology and Hematology for 2007-2008.

They are:

Theresa M. Mulvey, M.D. and Paul C. Musto, M.D. CHO is the largest community-based private cancer care group in New England.

Compiled by Boston-based Best Doctors, Inc., the Best Doctors in America is derived from a peer-reviewed survey of more than 40,000 physicians in the United States.

The survey asked which specialists they would choose for care of themselves or a loved one. Only those doctors recognized in the top 3%-5% of their specialty earn this honor.

Dr. Mulvey, honored with this distinction for the fourth time, is board certified in Hematology, Medical Oncology, and Internal Medicine, and has hospital appointments at Caritas Carney Hospital, Milton Hospital, QuinCY Medical Center, and South Shore Hospital.

Dr. Mulvey received her M.D. from Tufts University School of Medicine and her B.A. from College of the Holy Cross.

Dr. Musto is board certified in Hematology, Medical Oncology, and Internal Medicine, and has hospital appointments at QuinCY Medical Center, Caritas Carney Hospital, Milton Hospital, and South Shore Hospital.

Dr. Musto received his M.D. from Michigan State University College of Human Medicine and his B.S. from Michigan State University Honors College.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

OTHER FACTORS THAT CONTRIBUTE TO GUM DISEASE

You should know that there are factors other than brushing and flossing that affect your oral health. In fact, research shows that smoking is the leading factor independently associated with the progression of gum disease. According to one study, more than 41% of the study subjects with progressive periodontal (gum) disease were smokers. You may also be interested to know that the second most important factor is sleep. Researchers found that subjects who got seven to eight hours of sleep per night, had less progressive periodontal disease than those who got less than six hours of sleep nightly. It was also found that high stress levels and daily alcohol consumption had a significant impact on the progression of gum disease.

The goal of periodontal treatment is to control any infection that exists and to halt progression of the disease. It makes good sense to start preventive measures against dental disease as soon as possible. When was the last time you had a complete dental exam? We make a thorough evaluation of existing and potential problems. Nothing is more economical than regular checkups. Small developing problems can be corrected before they become serious problems. Call us today at 617-479-6220 to schedule a convenient appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If you are diabetic, you are at increased risk for developing periodontal infections.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You've let yourself be distracted from what's really important. But love finally gets your attention this week. However, it comes with a challenge that could create a problem.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Be careful not to bully others into following your lead. Best advice: Persuade, don't push, and you'll get the cooperation you need to move forward with your plans.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Resist the urge to gloat now that you've proved your detractors wrong. Instead, charm them back into your circle. Remember: A former foe can become your best ally.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might want to claim all the credit for making this holiday season special. But it is worth producing a lot of hurt feelings by rejecting offers of help? Think about it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Ignore a co-worker's questionable behavior. Instead, put your energy into making your own project special. Then sit back and purr over your well-deserved applause.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might not want to accept those suggested changes in your workplace. But don't chuck them out before you check them out. You could be happily surprised.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your holiday planning might have to take a back seat for a bit so that you can handle a problem with a friend or family member. Your schedule resumes by the 8th.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Relationships in general benefit during the early part of the week, including in the workplace. Also expect some overdue changes in a personal situation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) "Prudence" should be your watchword this week. Best not to be too open about some of the things that are currently happening in your life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Money is on your mind, so you'd best mind how you're spending it. Take another look at that holiday budget and see where you can make adjustments.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Resolving to revive an old friendship could open some old wounds. Are you sure you want to risk that? Think this through before making a commitment.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your need to know more about a new friend could lead to some startling revelations. Best advice: Keep an open mind about what you learn until all the facts are in.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your loyalty to friends makes you a very special person to those whose lives you've touched.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

"A pessimist sees only the dark side of the clouds, and mopes; a philosopher sees both sides and shrugs; an optimist doesn't see the clouds at all - he's walking on them." D.O. Flynn

"Your morning thoughts may determine your conduct for the day. Optimistic thoughts will make your day bright and productive, while pessimistic thinking will make it dull and wasteful. Face each day cheerfully, smilingly and courageously, and it will naturally follow that your work will be a delightful accomplishment." - William M. Peck

Don't have an attitude of accepting life as it is... Be optimistic - and further develop what is good and eliminate what is bad; and for the really good life, dream on with the intentions of making them come true...

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Much has been written and said about optimism and pessimism. Here are a few that we especially like:

"An optimist laughs to forget; a pessimist forgets to laugh."

"The optimist proclaims that we live in the best of all possible worlds; the pessimist fears that is true." - James attend.

There will be a time of punch and cookies following the concert.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church To Present 'In Bethlehem Inn' Dec. 15

Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy, will present "In Bethlehem Inn," a combined Christmas play and church supper, Saturday, Dec. 15 at 5 p.m. at the church.

The play will be performed by members of the congregation. "In Bethlehem Inn" is a humorous play set inside the famous inn in Bethlehem where Mary and Joseph sought shelter some 2,000 years ago.

Attendees play the role of guests at the overcrowded inn; while they enjoy the church supper, attendees watch as the harried innkeeper and his wife and servants attempt to deal with the arrival of an unexpected young couple, several shepherds and an amazing star that seems to hang directly over the inn's stable.

The pageant concludes with a tableau of the nativity scene presented by the students of the church's Sunday school.

Admission to the play and supper is free; reservations are recommended.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church is handicapped accessible.

For reservations, directions or more information, call 617-328-1384.

Squad Places Second In N.E. Competition

Point Panthers Cheerleaders Honored By City Council

The Quincy Point Panthers, a 12-member cheerleading squad, were presented with commendations from Councillor Dan Raymond and state representative Ron Mariano at Tuesday night's City Council meeting.

The Panthers recently competed in the New England cheerleading competition on Nov. 10 at the Reggie Lewis Track Center where they placed second in their division-three points out of first place-and, as a result, have qualified to take part in the United Cheerleading Association finals in Orlando, FL on Feb. 9.

But to get there, the team needs to raise $15,000 for airfare, hotel and competition fees.

"We are very proud of these girls and they deserve it more than anyone," said coaches Colleen Reid and Lisa Robertson, both Quincy Point residents and alumni of the Panther program. "Our headquarters" are in the Fore River Clubhouse, we practice on Fore River Field, and when it is really cold we go inside to practice.

"Sometimes we cannot even get in the Clubhouse, as it is used for other scheduled activities. Gym space has been a huge issue, and we have had to rent gym space for the Quincy Public Schools, but it is pricey and we cannot afford to rent space, as we need to raise $15,000 for nationals.

"If anyone is willing to offer gym space, we would be grateful. The girls have been practicing five days a week and it has been about 15 years since we have made it to nationals. This is a very good experience for the girls and we would like them to be able to represent Quincy Point in this nationwide competition."

After performing in front of the City Council, the Point Panthers were presented a handful of checks, including some from City Council members, by Raymond, and at this moment the team is close to reaching its down payment goal of $4,000.

The team needs to reach its set goal of $15,000 by January 7. There will be a fundraiser for the Panthers on Dec. 8 (Saturday) at Coop's Bar & Grill on Washington Street. Admission is $10, and there will be raffles and other prizes given out at the event.

Reid noted that many local businesses and supporters have already contributed money and time to help their cause. She wanted to thank Williams Printing, Sprague Energy, The Fours, Rocco's Barbershop, Reebok, Pure Chocolate, CVS, Coops Bar of the team include Katie Burns, Laura Donahue, Taylor Johnson, Annie Macconochie, Rachel Murphy, Rachel Roache, Alex Coscia, Ashley Ferola, Mersadyse Rodrigues, Marianne Reardon and Shauna Mendall.

& Grill, the Quincy Fire Department, St. Joseph's School, Beechwood on the Bay, Dan Quirk of Quirk, Richie Berry of Berry & Loud, Raymond, Mariano, Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, state Sen. Mike Morrissey and the dedicated time of families and friends of the Panthers.

"We are in desperate need to raise this money and gym space," stated Reid. "We would like to thank everyone who has already contributed, but we still need help."

The members of the 2007 Panthers are Katie Burns, Laura Donahue, Taylor Johnson, Annie Macconochie, Rachel Murphy, Rachel Roache, Alex Coscia, Ashley Ferola, Mersadyse Rodrigues, Marianne Reardon and Shauna Mendall.

If you would like to donate money or gym space to the Quincy Point Panthers, email Colleen Reid at creid@stonehedgerehab.com.

THE UNITED STATES FLAG was placed on the left pole in this photo taken last Saturday by Henry Fisher of Quincy. On Sunday and earlier this week, the flag flew from the right pole. On all days, the other flags, one for Massachusetts and one for the Department of Conservation and Recreation, were lower.

Veteran Takes Issue With Display

Old Glory Needs More Respect At Wollaston Beach

By LAURA GRIFFIN

State officials aren't giving Old Glory the proper respect at Wollaston Beach, according to Manna Drive resident Henry Fisher.

Fisher described the entrance to Wollaston Beach at the crossroads of East Squantum Street and Quincy Shore Drive where three flags wave in the sea breezes.

One flag is the United States flag, another honors the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the third is a pennant for the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR), the state agency which oversees beaches and parkland.

On many days, the American flag has been displayed 24-hours a day without illumination, according to Fisher who has contacted state and federal officials for support. The issue he said is respect for all that the American flag symbolizes.

"Flags are supposed to be illuminated at night or taken down at sunset. These are public officials. They should know better," said Fisher.

Last Saturday, Old Glory hung from the top of the three flagpoles, an

Will Take Oath As City's 33rd Mayor Koch Inaugural Jan. 7 At Marriott

Tom Koch, the 33rd mayor of Quincy in 119 years, will be sworn in Tuesday, Jan. 7, at 10 a.m. in the ballroom of the Marriott Hotel, moving the ceremony out of a municipal building in modern memory.

The usual inaugural sites, Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and the Vocational Technical School gym, are unavailable.

Quincy is undergoing reconstruction, parking is a problem at the Voc-Tech gym, and North Quincy is deemed to be already overburdened with parking problems and a hall that seats only 500.

The City Council Chamber at City Hall has been used in the past but that was some 50 years ago in the days of Mayors Amelio Della Chiesa and Tom Burgin. Now the Chamber packs them in for the mayor's mid-term address only.

Mayor-elect

Koch said about 300 to 400 people may be expected to see him sworn in by City Clerk Joe Spea and attend the reception in the same ballroom at the Marriott at 7 p.m. on the same evening.

Jack Nigro and Linda Blakes are heading the committee that is winding up final plans for the day.

The City Council and the School Committee will reorganize for the 2008-09 year at the same inaugural meeting.

Ward 4 Councilor Jay Davis is expected to be elected president of the Council, succeeding Ward 5 Councilor Doug Gutz.

Koch will be chairman of the School Committee in virtue of his office but David McCarthy is expected to become vice chairman, succeeding Elaine Dwyer.

The 44-year-old Koch, an architect and insurance broker, was elected to the City Council in 2005. He has been a member of the Quincy City Council since 2005. He has been a member of the Quincy City Council since 2005. He has been a member of the Quincy City Council since 2005.

He will be sworn in at the Marriott at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 7.

Council Approval Sought For $3.3 Million 13-Acre Land Purchase

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The Community Preservation Committee (CPC), will seek City Council approval Monday of a $3.3 million bond issue for the purchase of 13.75 acres off Circuit and Bower Road in Quincy known as the "Hazelton" property.

The property was previously owned by AvalonBay Communities, Inc. which had proposed a 146-unit development on the site located off Falls Boulevard, Quincy Point. The project raised considerable opposition and controversy in that area.

This purchase is the last of the three major acquisitions recommended this year by the CPC.

The City has already approved the purchase of the 3.5 acres on Sea Street known as Cobblestone property for $1.2 million and a small property known the Turning Mill Estate property on Forest Avenue for $990,000, near the Milton line.

Vice Chairman Steve

Perdios noted that the purchases will be paid for through bonds issued for four to five years. This will reduce the amount of funds available for preservation projects for the next few years.

In this the first year of CPA expenditures, Perdios said the CPC had $2.2 million to allocate for purchases, historic preservation and affordable housing. Of that sum, $1.1 million was raised through real estate taxes and the state contributed a 100% match of the city's $1 million.

At this time, the state matches all preservation money raised by a city or town.

"It's not whether or not, they will (reduce) the match; it's by how much," said Perdios who said that the committee expects either a 75% match next year or 60%.

"Even in the worst case, we'll get a 30 to 35% match," Perdios said. Quincy is one of 120 communities in which residents voted to contribute funds to preservation and affordable housing projects.

In addition to the land acquisitions, the CPC this year has funded such areas as affordable housing in North Quincy, improvements to the Houghs Neck boardwalk and set aside $100,000 for Southern Tidal Mill.

At their most recent meeting, the CPC voted to approve emergency funding for urgent repairs to protect the Souther Tidal Mill off Southern Artery. The old mill building is considered the oldest surviving grist and saw mill in America.

Perdios said this week that the committee is filing a request for an emergency designation by the Massachusetts Historical Commission which will speed up the repairs to the mill.

The work can and will still be done without the MHC declaration, said Perdios, "It will just get done faster (with approval)."

Both Davis and Perdios said the CPC efforts this year have been wonderful. Perdios said members met every week for three to four hours to review projects.

The Committee will reopen the CPC list in February after a public hearing.

Davis said that he intends to step down from the CPC once the City Council leadership election is concluded. Davis is expected to be elected council president. Under council rules, Davis will select his own successor on the CPC.

Other committee members are Maureen Mazrimas, Paul Kodad, Kevin Cotter, Housing Authority, Martha King, Conservation committee, Connie Driscoll, Park and Recreation, Sue Canavan, Historic commission and P.J. Foley of the Planning Board.

Phelan, Koch Volunteer As Team 49 Community Leaders To Ring Bell For Quincy Salvation Army

Forty-nine community leaders, including Mayor William Phelan and Mayor-elect Tom Koch, will ring the bell for the Salvation Army for three days to help those in need this holiday season.

They will man a kettle outside City Hall on one-hour shifts beginning this Friday and again Thursday, Dec. 20 and Friday, Dec. 21.

Phelan and Koch will team Thursday, Dec. 20 from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Phelan has proclaimed December as "Salvation Army Month" in Quincy.

He noted that the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps was founded in 1895 and:

"Continues the compassionate tradition of helping wherever there is hunger, disease and spiritual need.

"And is dedicated to the citizens of Quincy in raising much needed funds this holiday season."

Majors Doug and Linda Jones, co-commanders of the Quincy Temple Corps, expressed their gratitude to the community leaders and to all the other volunteers manning kettles at other locations.

"We are extremely grateful for the tremendous support we receive from so many volunteers," they said.

Individuals and groups who would like to volunteer are asked to contact the Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., or by calling 617-472-2345.

The community leaders ask colleagues, friends and others to stop by the kettle in front of City Hall to help make the holiday season brighter for local needy families.

The kettle schedule:
Friday, Dec. 14

9 A.M. - Former Mayor Frank McCauley and City Councillor Michael McFarland.

10 A.M. - Robert Guarnieri, president, Colonial Federal Savings Bank, Robert Curry, chairman Quincy Medical Center Board of Directors and owner Curry Hardware stores, and John O'Connor, president and CEO South Coastal Bank.

11 A.M. - Police Chief Robert Crowley and Fire Chief Timothy Pettinelli.

12 Noon - School Committee-woman Linda Stice, Jo-Ann Bragg, School Committee-elect and Kathy McCluskey, president Quincy Teen Mothers Program.

1 P.M. - John (Jake) Comer, past National Commander American Legion, City Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Atty. George Burke, former city councillor, state representative and district attorney.

2 P.M. - Chazy Dowaliby, editor The Patriot Ledger, and Henry Bosworth, publisher The Quincy Sun.

3 P.M. - City Councillors John Keenan and Brian McNamee and Anthony Agnitti, chairman Quincy

Koch Asks Residents 'To Get Involved'

Mayor-elect Tom Koch Wednesday issued a public invitation to Quincy residents to apply for open seats on a number of boards and commissions that manage a wide range of issues facing the city.

"We have so many talented people in Quincy, and we want to do everything possible to harness that talent in a way that makes our city a better place," said Koch. "Everybody has something to offer the community, and I'm asking people to get involved."

There will be a number of open seats on boards such as the Zoning Board of Appeals, the Conversation Commission, and the Park and Recreation Board when Koch takes office in January.

In some cases, Koch said he would be looking for candidates with specific skills and experience, such as engineers or planners for the Zoning Board of Appeals. But he added there are many positions available where the only qualification is "the desire to be involved with the

Puleo Appears To Have The Votes

The Joint Convention isn't until January but Nick Puleo appears to already have the necessary votes to fill the upcoming vacancy on the School Committee.

One of those votes is that of Mayor-elect Tom Koch who will chair the convention as chairman of the School Committee.

"Nick's appointment will most closely reflect the will of the voters," Koch says. "And I firmly believe it is the fairest way for us to proceed."

Puleo was the runner-up in the November city election for three school committee seats.

Incumbent James Timmins will be leaving to become city solicitor under Koch.

A Joint Convention of the City Council and School Committee will be held in January to fill the vacancy.

Nine councillors, six members of the school committee and Koch as chairman by virtue of his office as mayor will vote on Timmins' replacement.

Puleo reportedly has already lined up a majority of those votes.

Eileen Mullen who finished only 160 votes behind Puleo can enter a challenge to try to cut into those Puleo votes. So can others as candidates.

The last Joint Convention was held in 2002, called to fill the vacancy created when William Phelan was elected mayor with two years left on his school committee term.

There were something like 15 candidates and after several rounds of voting, Elaine Dwyer emerged as winner by an 8-to-7 margin over Jay Davis who went on to become Ward 4 councillor and is expected to be the new city council president.

Dwyer retained the seat in the 2003 election and was re-elected in November. She is currently vice-chairwoman.

Puleo's vote in November was 7,296 with Mullen right behind with 7,136.

Top vote getter was former School Committeewoman with 12,430. She won the seat vacated by Linda Stice.

Dave McCarthy took the second spot with 11,915 and will be the new vice-chairman. Dwyer was third with a vote of 10,897.

Puleo, former president of the Ward 5 Community Association was making his political debut as a candidate this year.

But he is no stranger on the political scene. He was Councillor Joseph Finn's campaign manager two years ago. Finn, no doubt, will be one of Puleo's votes as the Joint Convention.

Puleo is senior budget analyst for the state Senate Ways and Means Committee.

He was born and raised in Quincy. His wife, Sarah, is from Dallas, Texas. They met while attending Northeastern University and bought their first home on Acton Street, Wollaston earlier this year.

LAST NIGHT (Wednesday) was Linda Stice's last meeting as a member of the School Committee.

And, she bid a sentimental farewell to her colleagues, school officials and others who helped make her 16 years on the board so meaningful.

Sixteen years of distinguished service and dedication to children.

She decided not to seek re-election so she would have the time to enter a doctorate program at Lesley University in Cambridge.

She is attending night classes at Lesley, which will take longer than the traditional four years to complete requirements for the doctorate.

Purpose of the doctorate is to qualify her to spread her dedication to children—especially orphans and abandoned youngsters around the world.

It was during a trip to Cuzco, Peru last December that made her want to do more for children.

She spent 15 days volunteering at a girls' orphanage. She also submitted a proposal for a new orphanage. She paid for the trip herself and took it on her vacation time.

When she returned, she said: "It made me realize that as many things as I would like to do in my life, working with children is what I am called to do."

And she'll do a lot more for them with that doctorate.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD from the 1930's shows the main office of the old Quincy Trust Company at 1486 Hancock St. at the corner of Cottage Avenue. The bank, which was founded by a group of Quincy businessmen in 1915, built this granite building in 1918 at a cost of $40,000. It is of Classical Greek Revival styling with a pointed Greek pediment facing the corner and two Doric columns one on each side of the handsome double wooden doors. In the early 1980's, the bank moved across the street to a larger building at number 1495 and became the Hancock Bank. Tag's Furniture and Sleep Shop then occupied this building until 1988 when it became home to Quincy Jade, a Chinese restaurant. Recently, new management relocated Quincy Jade around the corner and this building was sold. It has now been completely gutted and is being rebuilt to open in the spring as an upscale dining and nightlife destination. In addition to its main-floor dining room and lounge, it will have a function room on the lower level and indoor/outdoor rooftop seating. Both will be accessible by an open stairway and an elevator. When this postcard was published, the store on the left was the Massik dry goods store. It is now a Thai restaurant. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Build The Approved Track At Pageant Field

There is only one location for a new track facility in Quincy — the approved location at Pageant Field. This location has received all required approvals from the Quincy Park and Recreation Board and the Quincy City Council.

Mayor-Elect Koch had the opportunity to select a track location four years ago when he was the Parks Commissioner for the City of Quincy and he failed to select an appropriate site which has led the city to the present situation.

The approved track facility at Pageant Field will be a multi purpose use facility which will benefit the track programs, other sports, and all residents of the city.

Mayor-Elect Koch needs to place his personal preferences aside and do what is right for the student track athletes and all residents: build the approved track at Pageant Field.

Mr. Koch, this is an opportunity for you to show true leadership as the Mayor-Elect. Please begin construction of the approved track facility at Pageant Field immediately!

A 'Thank You' From Morrisette Legion Post

To the Citizens of Quincy:

The Officers and members of Quincy's Cyril P. Morrisette Post #294, The American Legion and its Auxiliary would like to take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks and gratitude to the good people of Quincy for making our recent Poppy Drive such a successful undertaking.

Your generosity has insured that our hospitalized veterans and our troops on current active duty will continue to receive the special and personal care items that they need. They will learn from us that the citizens of Quincy continue to keep them foremost in their hearts and prayers.

They will know that the true "Spirit of America" and the total support of our troops are very much alive and thriving in the City of Presidents. Your support of our efforts provides just one more example of why we are so proud to have such a long and close relationship with this community and why there continues to be no better place in which to live and work and be associated with than the City of Quincy.

Clear Sidewalks, Walkways And Stairs For Letter Carriers

On behalf of all the Letter Carriers in the city of Quincy, the members of the Wollaston Post Office Safety Committee would like to remind all Quincy residents to make sure that your sidewalk, walkway and stairs are kept clear of snow and ice this winter season.

Every year many Letter Carriers are injured falling on ice forming on customer's walkways and stairs. We ask for your cooperation in keeping your property shoveled and treated for ice to help reduce these injuries and maintain consistent mail delivery.

Any conditions that could effect the safe delivery of mail to your address should be brought to the attention of your local Post Office.

All of the Post members who worked this drive are, of course, veterans ourselves. We also wanted you all to know how honored and humbled we were to have heard so many "Thank you for your service" and similar expressions of gratitude from so many of you as you made your donations.

Quincy continues to prove that every sacrifice we made during our service was time and effort truly well invested. God bless you all.

City Ready To Do Part After Pearl Harbor Attack

By FRANK MCAULEY

"The nation is at war.

"America has been called to defend its home and institutions. The City of Quincy as a community rich in historic traditions, is ready to do its part in national defense. Our 80,000 men, women and children will be in the service of our country for the duration of the war and will be prepared to join in the fruits of another glorious victory."

This Week

66 Years Ago

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin added that "Quincy has always measured up to its responsibilities in the time of national crisis. The courage and patriotism of the Adams's and John Hancock left an indelible impression on this community. It still lives where independence began."

BURGIN PLACES POLICE, FIRE DEPTS. ON ALERT

Mayor Burgin has ordered members of the Quincy Police and Fire Departments not to leave the city without special permission. The activities of the city will be conducted on a wartime basis. The mayor called upon the citizens of Quincy to fall in line behind their city officials in every step in support of the President as Commander in Chief.

RAID ALERT CLOSES SHIPYARD

Mayor Burgin asked that all industrial plants close (Tuesday, Dec. 9) until 7 a.m. (Wednesday, Dec. 10).

Reports that unidentified planes were sweeping down the coast early afternoon (Dec. 9) caused the Fore River Shipyard to be closed due to the threat of an air raid. Police ordered all people off the streets and school children were ordered home at once.

The city was alive with excitement as reports spread that "enemy bombers were approaching the coast." Fore River heard that an enemy aircraft carrier was approaching and men were sent home from the yard. (Editor's note: the reports of an air attack were a false alarm.)

QUINCY-ISM

Irving L. Shaw, vice president of Rotary, and vice president and trust officer of the Granite Trust Co. spoke to members of the Rotary Club on taxes... Mr. Wollaston Lodge, I.O.O.F. held a supper at the Quincy Odd Fellow Hall, Adams Building. Bert Spooner prepared the meal assisted by a group of Odd Fellows... Camel Cigarettes was advertising that "Camels contained 28% less Nicotine" than other brands. Mrs. Harry F. Sinclair, Jr., daughter-in-law of Henry F. Sinclair, the president of Consolidated Oil Corporation, christened the SS Flagship Sunco at the Fore River Shipyard. Construction of the 529-foot tanker took 99 days. Michael J. Mahoney was in charge of securing entertainment for the Quincy Lions Club's first annual ladies night at U.S.W.V. Memorial Hall.

Vic DiGravio scored a touchdown and kicked a point after as the Quincy Point Warriors defeated the Fratus Club in a city game played at Municipal Stadium. Acting Captain William Ferrazzi was named by Police Chief John Avery as the war duty officer for the Quincy Police Department.

Bette Davis was starring in the film "The Little Foxes" along with Herbert Marshall, Theresa Wright and Richard Carlson. The film was playing at the Strand Theater, Chestnut St.

Quincy Charles Tilden Crooker, year-old son of Quincy police officer Tilden Crooker and Mrs. Crooker, was christened at Christ Church. The "Businessmen's Special" for Dec. 10 at Howard Johnson's Restaurant in the Granite Trust Building, was "Hungarian Goulash, Creamy Whipped Potatoes and Squash," price 45 cents. Sheridan's Department Store in downtown Quincy was offering "Velvet or Wool Evening Wraps for $12.95 to $19.95." The A & P Super Markets in Wollaston and South Quincy were offering "Fresh Mackerel" for 8 cents a pound. Peter G. Ruscitto was named president of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Assn. Ruscitto at age 27 was the youngest man ever elected to this position. Ruth Gordon, Quincy born actress, will be the star of a new play "Portrait of a Lady" to open in Boston, Dec. 29. Quincy High School football coach Munroe MacLean was a head table guest at the annual Weymouth athletic banquet. The Boston Red Sox announced that they had released left-handed pitcher, all-star Robert Moses "Lefty" Grove. Grove won his 300th game as a member of the Red July 25, 1941.

Breakfast Frittata For Dinner

Doesn't it sometime become a chore to think about what to cook for dinner each night? At our house, we sometimes have breakfast for dinner.

When we were kids our mother made a "frittata," a mixture of eggs mixed with onion mostly. Now we usually call it an omelet and has many fillings to go with the eggs.

Today's recipe is for a "frittata" made with bacon, eggs, and potatoes mainly. And one in which can be either for breakfast or dinner. I made it recently for dinner and with some fresh crusty bread, it was delicious! This recipe is for two, but can be adjusted accordingly.

BACON AND POTATO FRITTATA
 2 slices of bacon (cut in 1 inch pieces)
 1 small potatoes (cut in cubes)
 1 small onion (chopped)
 3 eggs
 1/2 cup frozen broccoli florets (cooked) shredded favorite cheese for the top
 Cook bacon in a skillet stirring until brown. Add the potatoes and onion and cook covered until tender. Beat the eggs, add salt and pepper and stir in the broccoli. Top with shredded cheese.
 When I cooked this, I kept it on low and it cooked slowly.

Dinosaurs Topic Of Library Program

Youngsters ages 4-8 will have a chance to learn all about dinosaurs Saturday, Dec. 22, at 10 a.m. in the large meeting room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The children will examine real fossil casts, explore the difference between plant-eating and meat-eating dinosaurs and participate in a mini-dinosaur excavation.

The program is limited to Quincy residents. Registration may be made by calling 617-376-2411 or by stopping by the Children's Room at the main library.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

QHS Parents Meet Dec. 13

The Quincy High School Parent Advisory Council will meet Thursday, Dec. 13, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Pride Room at Quincy High School, 52 Coddington St. For more information, call 617-984-8754.

Point Webster Readers Enjoy Police Boat Cruise Offshore

More than 30 students in grade 6, 7 and 8 at Point Webster Middle School accepted Principle James P. McGuire's challenge and read more than 10 books each over the summer.

Now they are collecting their prizes.

Thirty of them took the first of two trips on the Quincy Police boat the other day, accompanied by teachers Barbara Driscoll, Julianne Gilbert, Patricia O'Brien and Meghan Sullivan.

Many of the students had never been on a boat before and enjoyed the pleasant cruise along Quincy's coastline, George's Island, Castle Island, Logan Airport and the Black Falcon Cruise Terminal.

Community Police Officers James Dentremon and

Matthew Miller, along with Officers James Curran and Michael Foley of the Marine Unit explained how they keep the coasts safe.

Students fired questions at the officers about the speed of the boat, the equipment, duties and any rescues in which they have taken part. Students noted how different Quincy looked from the water.

Chanticleer Breakfast Club Welcomes New Members

The Chanticleer Men's Breakfast Club, which meets each Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. in the top floor function room of the Red Parrot Restaurant on Nantasket Beach, is seeking to welcome new members.

The requirements for membership are simple — any retired male who would enjoy fellowship and a breakfast buffet with multiple choices. There are no dues and transportation is available for those who need it.

Cost of the breakfast is $12. For that, members get to exchange jokes and stories, take part in light-hearted discussions and, from time to time, entertain outside speakers.

The Chanticleers started 18 years ago to give retired men a chance to meet new friends. Membership now includes men from Quincy, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Hull, Scituate, Norwell and Marshfield. For more information, call Lloyd Prescott at 781-544-3626.

Nine From Quincy High Earn AP Scholar Awards

Nine students at Quincy High School have earned the designation of AP Scholar by the College Board in recognition of their exceptional achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement Program Exams.

The Advanced Placement Program offers high school students an opportunity to take college level courses and receive college credit, advanced placement or both for a successful performance on the AP Exams.

The nine from Quincy High School and their achievements included:

- Paige Neumann, the AP Scholar with Distinction Award by earning an average grade of at least 3.5 on all AP Exams taken, and a grade of 3 or higher on four or more of these exams.

- Kshitij Nagpal and Judy Ngai, the AP Scholar with Honor Award by earning an average grade of at least 3.25 on all AP Exams taken and grades of 3 or higher on four or more of these exams.

- Jiawei Chen, June Dandhanin, Wu Xi He, Tina Hicks, Ralfi Kondili and Jinlong Tan, the AP Scholar Award by completing three or more AP Exams with grade of 3 or higher.

Wu Xi He is a junior at Quincy High School and has at least one more year to earn another AP Scholar Award.

The students took AP Exams in May, 2007, after completing challenging college-level courses at their high schools. About 18 per cent of the more than 1.4 million students who took the exams achieved the rank of AP Scholar.

Most of the nation's colleges award credit, advanced placement or both based on a successful performance on the AP Exams. Many award a full year's credit to students presenting a sufficient number of qualifying grades.

The College Board, founded in 1900, is a not-for-profit membership organization of more than 5,200 schools and educational groups whose mission is to connect students to college success and opportunity.

Each year, the College Board serves seven million students and their parents, 23,000 high schools and 3,500 college through programs and services in admissions, guidance, assessment, financial aid, enrollment and teaching.

Sterling Auditorium To Be Named For George DePaulo

At their meeting tonight (Wednesday), the School Committee is expected to rename the Sterling Middle School auditorium in honor of George DePaulo who was the school's maintenance person for 50 years.

DePaulo retired last January after working as a city employee for Quincy for 60 years. His lengthy employment was considered a record for any city employee at any time in the city's history.

However, it was DePaulo's dedication and expertise, rather than his longevity that won him lifelong fans at Sterling and all over the city, according to Sterling principal Christine Barrett.

"This man is just incredible," said Barrett, adding he has a "tremendous way, and a wonderful dedication to the children. He always puts others before himself."

Even today, nearly a year after his official retirement, DePaulo still checks in at Sterling to make sure the heat is operating properly, according to his daughter, Kathy Scribi.

Barrett said that Sterling staff members, family and friends who had joined in the petition to rename the school auditorium, the George H. DePaulo Auditorium.

Scribi said her father considers Sterling "a second home. He just doesn't like a lot of attention."

Sgt. Matthew Menz Serving Second Tour In Iraq

Little things have a big impact on soldiers stationed far from home, says Doug Menz of Quincy, whose 26-year-old cousin, Sgt. Matthew Menz, is serving in Iraq.

There's nearly 6,000 miles between the two cousins now, but Menz and other family members try to keep in touch and try to send whatever is needed or enjoyed throughout the year, whether it is popcorn, candy or the sergeant's laptop.

In addition, he gave Sgt. Menz's name to a support group, which ships off toiletries and grooming aides.

Menz said his cousin told him, "There are some soldiers that don't get anything. It's so sad." Now, of course, there are holiday packages, said Menz. "Everyone in the family is sending something."

This is Sgt. Menz's second tour in Iraq, according to his cousin. "He enlisted because of what happened 9-11. I remember him telling me that was why he enlisted."

"He served 12 months in Iraq in 2004 and 2005 as a medic and EMT with the 118th Medic Battalion. He worked in a combat hospital," said Menz.

After his first tour, Sgt. Menz was hired by the Weymouth Fire Department. He studied fire science at Quincy Community College.

During his high school years at Braintree High School, Sgt. Menz won The Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic Award and the Bay State

SGT. MATTHEW MENZ

Sgt. Menz trained at Camp Shelby, MS with the Delta Co. 1/181 before being deployed to Iraq.

Last summer Sgt. Menz returned to the Middle East. He landed in Kuwait on his 26th birthday in the middle of a sandstorm with outdoor temperature reading of 120 degrees.

Born in Quincy, Sgt. Menz is a firefighter on leave from the Weymouth Fire Department. He studied fire science at Quincy Community College.

During his high school years at Braintree High School, Sgt. Menz won The Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic Award and the Bay State League all-star award in wrestling.

The Menz family is well known in the Quincy Fire Department where his great uncle was the late Deputy Fire Chief John R. Menz and his uncles are (Ret.) Lt. John R. Menz, Jr., and Firefighter George Menz.

Sgt. Menz's mother Margaret Calabro and his stepfather, William, live in Quincy. His father, Alan Menz and his stepmother, Denise, live in Weymouth.

His siblings are Timothy Menz, a student in Worcester, Kelly Nurjynski of Billerica, Judith Killion of Abington and Michaeline Menz of Quincy.

Holbrow's Flowers & Gifts
Monday through Saturday 9a.m. to 5 p.m.

The scent of pine and balsam and the sight of crisp, fresh holly greet visitors now at Holbrow's Flowers on Billings Road, along with greens and wreaths, centerpieces, novelties and table trees to fill all your holiday needs.

And that is the way it's been for over 100 years. Holbrow's Flowers, now at 60 Billings Rd., North Quincy, has served its Boston and South Shore clients since 1896.

The Holbrow tradition of top quality, top service and timely delivery still continues uninterrupted for the fourth generation of Holbrow's with Patty Holbrow Long.

Patty grew up in the flower business and has owned and operated Holbrow's Flowers at Boston City Hall Plaza for the past 20 years.

A few months ago, Patty expanded her business when she opened her new sunny shop at the corner of Billings Road and Pierce St.

"I love it," Patty said of the Norfolk Downs shopping area. "Quincy's a beautiful city and I'm surrounded by top quality shops just like mine, and there's such a variety here."

"I've been living in Quincy for 25 years and I decided it would be nice to have a business in Quincy," she said.

Holbrow's offers quality and service. The firm belongs to a regional flower delivery cooperative that offers daily stops at all Boston hospitals, as well as 20 cities and towns in the metropolitan area.

In addition, Holbrow's wire services provide instant access to quality florists all over the country and all over the world.

"You know we'll stand behind every item we sell because we have for generations. It's ingrained in us, back to my grandfather," said Patty.

"That's so important today. You really have to know and trust your florist."

Holbrow's Flowers offers quality year-round for all occasions from births, birthdays to get-well arrangements, funeral designs and sympathy bouquets.

"Actually, people love and need flowers for every day. Whether it's just to say hi, offer good wishes or sympathy," Patty said, promising her best efforts to meet every request.

Patty is excited about being here and welcomes all to her bright airy store in North Quincy where an array of poinsettias, Christmas centerpieces, wooden trains, and cheery Norfolk pines, along with exotic phalaenopsis and bromeliad, knick knacks and wall plaques, fascinate the visitor.

Now, access for Holbrow's Quincy customers is so easy, she said, describing the easy on-street parking on Billings Road and the 80-spot Vane Street public parking right across from her new shop.

Call Holbrow's Flowers at 617-328-1730 or 1-800-273-8057 or visit the website www.holbrows.com Ask for the holiday or everyday selection brochure.

Exodus Beginning From Phelan Administration

The exodus in the final days of Mayor William Phelan's administration has begun with the resignation Monday of Stephen O'Donnell, the commissioner of public works.

O'Donnell, 45, quit the $94,000 a year job to return to a post with the Massachusetts Highway Department where he worked for 20 years when Phelan tapped him for the DPW job in 2004.

He'll be director of highway maintenance with responsibility for road maintenance across the state. He will also be involved in the department's energy conservation efforts.

O'Donnell, who lives in Weymouth, submitted his resignation effective Friday, Dec. 14, and took his final week off as vacation time. He plans to start his new job Monday.

Mayor Phelan was not available for comment on an acting director for the final weeks of his term. A permanent successor will be appointed by the new Mayor Tom Koch in February.

ELEMENTARY LUNCH MENU

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons

Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Mercantile Storage And Public Safety

We were talking amongst ourselves in the office looking for other proactive ways to prevent fire, to minimize its impact if it occurs and to improve on overall public safety within buildings.

One lieutenant suggested that we attempt to convey the importance of proper combustible storage within mercantile occupancies, especially during the holiday season.

Therefore, where education is such an important aspect of our proactive attempts toward fire safety let me take this opportunity to convey some regulations as they apply to department stores, egress access and storage within them.

Within stores, "Displays, aisles, passageways or stairways in any building shall not be obstructed with tables, showcases, Christmas trees, vending machines or other obstructions during hours when the building is open to the public...A minimum unobstructed aisle width of 44 inches shall be maintained. Good housekeeping shall be maintained at all times."

In other words these two regulations emphasize keeping exit access unobstructed, free and accessible for patron use and employees in the event of an emergency.

A large loss fire within Quincy in 1994 within a bulk merchandising retail store indicated how little time patrons and employees can have to exit a building under the duress of a rapidly building fire. Surveillance video of the incident indicated rapid visual obscuration by smoke, and rapid flame spread. Unobstructed exit access was essential for survival in that building, at that moment.

"Storage within these stores, buildings and structures shall be orderly, shall not be within two feet of the ceiling..." In those buildings with a sprinkler system, storage must be kept a minimum 18 inches below the sprinkler heads as well.

We discussed the meaning of the former regulation where it emphasizes the importance of the two-foot clearance from the ceiling. We concluded the imporance of that open space comes into play should the fire department have to extinguish a fire within stacked storage. Hose streams would be ineffective if a fire cannot be reached while proper spacing can allow water stream across.

The same holds true of the 18-inch clearance below sprinkler heads. When activated, sprinkler heads with their deflectors are designed to form a spray pattern assuring effectiveness and sufficient coverage within a room. They are specifically spaced for this reason. The clearance allows the pattern to form as designed to affect maximum sprinkler head effectiveness.

This article is written to inform owners and managers of the regulations storage within stores, to attain compliance and maintain a safe premise for employees and patrons. There are many such retail stores inspected by us on a quarterly basis while this December our efforts will expand to smaller locations as well. As always we are available to discuss any questions you may have regarding storage within your building or the regulations referred to here.

Have a safe and prosperous holiday season.

Raymond Pratt Graduates Army Basic Training

Raymond Pratt, son of Stanley and Janet Pratt of Quincy and a 2007 graduate of Quincy High School where he was an ROTC cadet for four years, has graduated from Army basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C.

He is now stationed in Pensacola, Fla., where he is undergoing an additional six months training.

Pratt is also an Eagle Scout with Troop 5 at St.

RAYMOND PRATT

Agatha's Church in Milton. While he was reporting for duty in Florida, his brother Chris stood in for him at the Eagle Court of Honor with five others.

Long active in the community, Pratt devoted 100 hours of volunteer work during four years of high school football games and wrestling matches as well as the USS Salem museum.

Friendly Visitors Sought At COA

(Cont'd From Page 1)

Tuesday, the same flag was hung from the right of the three flagpoles.

On some days, they've raised the other two flags to full height with the United States flag and on other days, they placed the other flags lower as if they were at half staff.

They switch the flags from pole to pole but can't seem to get the symmetry, height, or lighting decided, Fischer said.

"It's a matter of respect to get it right," Fischer said, adding that if this were a private group, he wouldn't comment. Part of the protocol for flag display on government properties follows:

"The flag of the United States of America should be at center and on the highest point of the group when a number of flags of states or localities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs."

(adopted by the National Flag Conference)

Fisher said the problem is that the three flagpoles stand at exactly the same height behind the short wall of sparkling rough granite blocks engraved, "Entrance to Quincy Shore Reservation, Wollaston Beach." The DCR insignia and a leafy symbol are engraved twice, once on each side of the wall.

Beyond the wall, the tercentenary sign describes the nearby historic area, the Moswetuset Hummocks. A tiny park with pine trees and new plantings offers visitors benches and a magnificent view of the ocean, Squantum Point, and the Weymouth shoreline across the bay.

But if visitors look up, they'll also glimpse the DCR snafu on the flagpoles.

DCR spokeswoman Wendy Fox said the agency will consider the lighting of the flags at the site, "We are looking at whether to take them down at night or illuminate them."

However, she had no additional information on correcting the heights of the flagpoles.

Senator Michael Morrissey said Tuesday that his office did ask the DCR in September to address the issue, "Ideally, I'd like to see the DCR change over the poles. We've asked them to consider changing the way that it's mounted."

"There are additional configurations," said Morrissey, noting that placing the American flag in different positions can be correct protocol. However, he added that most people prefer the traditional observance with the Stars and Stripes placed in the center on the highest pole.

"We've asked the DCR to raise the center pole," Morrissey said.

"I'm not a flag-waver, but this is public property. These are public officials; they should know better," said Fisher. "The flagpoles are ordered wrong."

As for respect for the flag, Fisher said, "We were drilled when we were kids. They don't teach it today."

Fisher offered pictures of three flags flying correctly at the Boston Scientific building not far from the Wollaston Beach location.

"This is done right by a commercial organization, not the state. They did a beautiful job," said Fisher of the private company.

A lifelong resident, Fisher served in Japan with the Army in World War II. To date, he has also contacted Congressman William Delahunt's office, and other state and local officials for support.

He said he's not giving up on his project.

Bank Of Canton Quincy Branch Collecting Hats And Mittens

The Bank of Canton announces its Quincy branch, located at 275 Quincy Ave., is collecting hats and mittens for donation to the Salvation Army in Quincy.

This year, the Bank of Canton is asking local patrons to decorate the bank's Christmas tree with hats and mittens in lieu of ornaments.

During the holidays, the Salvation Army provides food, gifts, toys and clothing to needy families. Its Quincy Corps offers services in adult healthcare, emergency assistance, holiday assistance and senior vacations, as well as youth programs such as Camp Wonderland and SunShine Pre-School.

"The Salvation Army is an outstanding organization that has been helping the community for decades," said Ken Anderson, assistant vice president and branch manager of Bank of Canton's Quincy branch. "We're happy to help further its cause and help those in the community stay warm this winter."

Quincy residents are encouraged to bring hats and mittens to Bank of Canton's Quincy branch. For more information on how to make a donation, call Ken Anderson at 617-770-4222.

Prepping Your Home's Heating System

Q. Last year, you published a list of steps to ready a home heating system for the winter. Can you print that list again?
—Norma S., Birmingham, Ala.

A. Sure. A little maintenance of your home heating system goes a long way in terms of efficiency and the lifespan of the unit, so taking these few steps at the beginning of the heating season will save you money in the long run.

Forced-air systems generally run on oil or natural gas, though some are all-electric. They work by heating air in a furnace chamber and then distributing it throughout the house via a blower or fan and an air-duct system. Maintaining this kind of system is as simple as keeping certain parts dust and debris-free. At the start of the season, do the following:

- Clean the blower/fan by turning the unit off completely, opening the fan compartment (through an access door, or by removing the nearest furnace panel) and cleaning the fan blades with a bottle brush. Vacuum the compartment if possible.
- Inspect the fan belt on the blower motor, if the unit has one. Replace a worn belt. If the belt gives more than 1/3 inch when pressed, tighten or loosen the bolt to increase tension.

- Lubricate the blower motor, unless the unit is self-lubricating. Non-self-lubricating motors have oil ports at one or both ends; squirt four to six drops of SAE 10W30 oil into the ports.

- Inspect all visible air ducts, checking for visible damage and loose connections. Patch or replace damaged sections.

- Remove the grill covers from air registers and vacuum the interior to remove household dust.

- Most importantly, change the air filter. This should be done every month during the season to minimize dust and allergens entering your home's living spaces.

In addition to this seasonal maintenance, a system check by a professional service should be done about every two years, or annually if you cannot access the blower compartment.

How To Appeal To The Buyer's Market

Getting Your Home Ready To Sell

As we all know, "first impressions are lasting impressions," but this tried and proven maxim has become essential when it comes to selling a home.

It's a buyer's market. According to a recent release from the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, a detached single-family home stayed on the market an average of 127 days in August 2007 compared to an average of 114 days in August 2006, while condos stayed on the market an average of 124 days compared to 106 days in August 2006.

That's an average of nearly two weeks longer to sell a home. To help combat this rising time on the market, Realtors are increasing the use of staging to help make the sale.

In a buyer's market sellers are constantly looking for ways to make their homes stand out from the competition and make that great first impression.

"Staging" is preparing a house to sell by highlighting its best features and maximizing the impact it has on potential buyers. According to a recent study from stagedhomes.com, homes that are staged before being listed were on the market for half the time as those that were not.

"One of the most common places you may see staging is in model homes," said Phyllis Rudnick, owner/broker at Century 21 Annex Realty. "For years, developers have been utilizing fresh paint and neutral décor in model homes to help potential customers imagine what their home would look like. We are now incorporating that technique into the presentation of existing homes."

Giving a home that "model" look may increase the selling price or even decrease the amount of time it spends on the market.

According to Jo Remillard, staging specialist and owner of Jo Remillard Interior Design, the most important part of staging a home is to de-personalize the space.

"Taking family photos, religious artifacts or knick-knacks off the shelves helps potential buyers envision their belongings in the space, thereby making the home more appealing. In today's market a home has to be in top condition, inside and out, in order to sell. Buyers are looking for properties that are move-in ready."

Sellers should budget one to three percent of the home's value towards staging it to sell, Remillard said. But, the reward is worth the effort. According to stagedhomes.com, a staged home can sell for nearly seven percent more than homes that are not staged.

If hiring a consultant is not in the budget, there are many things sellers can do to make their homes more attractive to buyers in addition to taking down photos and rearranging furniture.

Small changes can make a big difference:

Clean the house — Make sure your house is vacuumed, dusted and guest ready. Little things like washing your windows inside and out can make a big difference. Clean up the exterior of your home. A well kept lawn and new flowers can help increase curbside appeal.

Remove the clutter — Depersonalizing your space is essential. Remove clutter from countertops and bookshelves. Take down family photos...and those refrigerator tor magnets!

Give rooms a fresh look — Update rooms with a fresh coat of paint; neutral colors are best. Also, try removing furniture to make the rooms appear larger.

"The goal is to grab buyers' attention as soon as they walk in the door and hold on to it until the closing papers have been signed," Rudnick said. "One of the best ways to make your home unique is to employ the technique of staging. Our goal is to present our client's property in the best light in order to get them the best sale."

Century 21 Annex Realty Receives Pace Setter Award

Century 21 Annex Realty, with offices in Quincy and Hanover, has been awarded the Pace Setter Platinum Award, announces Broker/Owner Phyllis Rudnick.

This award is given to offices that reach $874,500 in adjusted gross commissions (AGC). Century 21 Annex Realty is on track to receive the Centurion Award, one of the highest honors given within the Century 21 system, as it marks an office's attainment of $1,749,000 to 3,497,999 in AGC.

Many individual agents were also recognized by the Century 21 system for their efforts for the first six months of the year.

Ged Phelan, based in the company's Quincy office, was awarded the Pace Setter Platinum Award, which is given to Century 21 agents who reach $104,000 in adjusted gross commissions or sold 30 units in a six-month period. Phelan is on pace to receive the prestigious Centurion Award.

John Balzano, Mary Collins, Maryellen Riley, Steve Downing, Theresa Repoff and Kenny Huang, all based in the Quincy office, were honored with the Pace Setter Gold Award. The award is given to agents who reach $55,000 to $104,000 in adjusted gross commissions or have sold 15 to 29 units in a six-month period.

These agents are all on pace to receive one of the three Masters Award. They are:

Masters Ruby $110,000 to $142,999 in AGC
Masters Emerald

$143,000 to $175,999 in AGC
Masters Diamond

$176,000 to $208,999 in AGC

"CENTURY 21 Annex Realty would like to congratulate each of these individuals for their outstanding performances so far this year," Rudnick said. "Our office received this honor thanks to the work of our agents. They are each a valuable part of our team and it is wonderful to see their efforts acknowledged as well."

For more information about Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., or its services, including sales, rentals, appraisals, property management, continuing education programs and free notary services, call the Quincy office at 617-472-4330.

Melissa Pillone Sales Associate At Century 21 Annex Realty

Melissa Pillone recently joined Century 21 Annex Realty as a sales associate in the company's Quincy office, announces Broker/Owner Phyllis Rudnick.

Pillone is serving the residential and commercial needs of customers throughout the South Shore and greater Boston area.

A graduate of Annex Real Estate School, she previously served as Milton Hospital's activity coordinator where she was in charge of planning events for the Transitional Care Unit patients.

MELISSA PILLONE

"Century 21 Annex Realty is excited to welcome Melissa to our team," Rudnick said. "She will be a valuable asset to us. Her love for working with others is evident in her work."

Originally from Hanover, she now lives in North Quincy with her husband, Jean-Philippe, and their three children: Kevin, Isabelle and Sarah. In addition to spending time with her family, she enjoys reading and traveling.

Free Booklet Helps Do-It-Yourselfers

(NAPS) - Whether you are a suburban soccer mom or an on-the-go urban professional, making your home comfortable and functional is a top priority. But shuttling kids in the minivan or making mad dashes to appointments leaves little time to think about decorating, much less take on a do-it-yourself project.

To help, experts in wood finishing have developed some fun and easy-to-do furniture projects that you can complete in a weekend and put them in a booklet called "Easy Weekend Projects."

The free, 10-page booklet opens with a warm welcome from master carpenter Norm Abram of PBS television's "The New Yankee Workshop" fame. It then guides do-it-yourselfers through a number of practical wood-finishing projects to add a personal touch to any room.

The Nice Accent project shows how an unfinished accent table can take on different roles once stained in sleek ebony or a traditional pecan shade. Combined with other pieces, such as a mirror or bookshelf, the same table will fit the need of any room.

Style Where You Sit takes unique flea market and tag sale chairs and turns them into colorful accent pieces with a selection of custom-mixed Water-Based Wood Stain choices. Sleep On It shows how a little creativity can render stylish under-the-bed storage solution for small living spaces. GoodToGrow shows how a timeworn dining table turns into a multi-purpose coffee table for an active family. Easy-to-do decorative diamond patterns embellish the wood tabletop, while pullout leaves allow the table to expand for a range of activities from quiet reading to a family board game.

To obtain a free copy of the Minwax "Easy Weekend Projects" booklet, visit minwax.com or write to "Easy Weekend Projects" Offer, P.O. Box 1211, Grand Rapids, MN 55745-1211.

Toys For Tots Drive At Registry Of Deeds

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is sponsoring a Toys for Tots drive at the Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, announces Register Bill O'Donnell.

Toys and games for children ranging up to age 10 are being accepted at the Registry until 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 19.

A donation bin has been set up in the lobby of the Registry building which is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The objective of Toys for Tots is to collect new, non-violent, unwrapped toys each year and distribute them as gifts to needy children throughout the community.

The Registry of Deeds is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry receives and records hundreds of thousands of documents each year and is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Tips For Parents To Reduce Holiday Stress And Enjoy The Season

To assist parents and families, the Massachusetts Children's Trust Fund (CTF) and its parenting website www.onecoughjob.org, extends these important tips to help ease holiday stress and promote a more enjoyable time of year.

- Make a holiday plan with your children. Gather the family and discuss all the upcoming school, church, community and other holiday activities.

Talk about what events mean the most to each family member. Schedule in the most important and cut back on the ones that will cause stress in terms of money, time, transportation and energy.

Let your kids be a part of the process. If something has to be missed, they are more likely to understand why.

- Relax with your family. Set aside "family time." Enjoy the season in a simple way. Go for a walk or drive and look at holiday decorations. Read a holiday classic or watch a holiday movie together. Spend time making holiday crafts that you and your children will all have fun creating.

- Learn to say "no." Set limits. Say "yes" to activities that matter but decline those that put you over the top.

Remember, you do not have to attend every party, volunteer at every function, and buy your kids every toy they want. Do what is important and realistic for you and your family.

- Be open to change. Keep in mind that life requires flexibility. Be prepared to change plans if something comes up. Be prepared for something new that may arise and that your family may want to do.

The holiday season is about making memories for you and your children, whether by celebrating a tradition or creating a new one.

- Give back to others. Include in your family plan an activity that gives back to others and involves your children.

As a family, donate holiday gifts, visit a nursing home, serve meals at a food bank, or join an event sponsored by your church, community center, place of work, or local family organization.

- Remember, you're not alone. Being a parent is tough. When you feel overwhelmed, it's important to remember that you are not alone. Talking to someone can make you feel better.

Parents Helping Parents offers a Parent Stress Line that you can call toll-free in Massachusetts at (800) 632-8188. Joining a parenting group for support also will help.

Also, consider contacting one of the 42 offices of the Massachusetts Family Network (visit www.mctf.org for a list) or a CTF-funded Massachusetts Family Center listed here:

- The Center for Families of North Cambridge, (617) 349-6385- Medford Family Network, (781) 393-2106- Cape Cod Children's Place, (508) 240-3310- Martha's Vineyard Family Center, (508) 693-7900- Valuing Our Children, Franklin County/Northern Worcester, (978) 249-8467- Northern Berkshire Family Net, (413) 664-4821

The Massachusetts Children's Trust Fund (CTF) leads statewide efforts to prevent child abuse and neglect by supporting parents and strengthening families. As an umbrella organization, it funds, evaluates, and promotes the work of over 100 agencies.

Supported by private, state, and federal funding, the Children's Trust Fund invests in Massachusetts' most precious resource - children and their families.

Stroke, Osteoporosis Screening Here Dec. 18

Life Line Screening will conduct screenings to reduce the risk of stroke or a serious bone fracture Tuesday, Dec. 18 at the River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St., Quincy.

Appointments will begin at 9 a.m.

A stroke, also known as a "brain attack," is ranked as the third leading killer in the world, and the leading cause of nursing home admissions.

Stroke often occurs without warning. A painless screening can help identify problems that can lead to stroke before it is too late.

Screenings are fast, painless and low cost. The screenings test for blocked carotid arteries, abdominal aortic aneurysms, and hardening of the arteries in the legs.

Bone density screening is also offered to assess the risk of osteoporosis.

Screenings are important because of the silent and often debilitating nature of the conditions. The majority of strokes are caused by plaque build up in the carotid arteries.

The abdominal aorta is the largest artery in the body, and a weakness in the walls of the artery can cause a ballooning called an aneurysm, which can rupture. A ruptured aneurysm is generally fatal.

Peripheral arterial disease or PAD is also known as "hardening of the arteries." Sufferers have a 4-6 fold increased risk of cardiovascular disease.

Risk is evaluated through a measurement called the "Ankle-Brachial Index," which is obtained by reading the systolic pressure in the ankle and arm.

All four screenings take less than an hour to complete. The cost for all four screenings including free osteoporosis screening is $149.

For more information regarding the screening or to schedule an appointment, call 1-877-237-1287 or visit www.lifelinescreening.com.

Pre-registration is required.

Harvard Vanguard Medical Physician Honored For Excellence In Adult, Pediatric Patient Care

Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates, a multi-specialty physician practice with practices across eastern Massachusetts and an affiliate of Atrius Health, announces its Quincy practice has been named to the annual Harvard Pilgrim Health Care Honor Roll for excellence in adult and pediatric patient care.

The Honor Roll highlights adult and pediatric physician groups that have achieved exceptional results in their approach to disease prevention and the treatment of chronic illness.

Harvard Pilgrim selected the Honor Roll physician groups based on clinical performance measured against national standards set by HEDIS® (Health Plan Employer Data and Information Set), a tool developed for the National Committee for Quality Assurance (NCQA) to enhance the clinical performance of doctors and other medical professionals.

For adult patient care, Harvard Vanguard Quincy internal medicine physicians exceeded the national 90th percentile in the majority of preventive and chronic care measures for breast and cervical cancer screening, asthma management, and diabetic testing and management.

For pediatric care, Harvard Vanguard Quincy pediatricians exceeded the national 90th percentile in a majority of selected preventive and chronic care measures including well-child and well-adolescent visits, chlamydia screening, treatment for upper respiratory infection, and asthma management.

The Harvard Vanguard Quincy practice is located at Presidents Place - South Tower 1250 Hancock St. in Quincy, telephone (617) 774-0600.

MAKING THE WHITE IMPRESSION

When it comes to knowing the value of an attractive smile, men are certainly no different from women. In fact, according to one recent survey, about seven out of ten men indicated that white teeth and a good hair style are their two most important facial features. According to a majority of the men surveyed, having white teeth was a critical factor when trying to make a great impression on a client or a potential employer. This is quite understandable in light of the fact that eye contact and a pleasing smile are probably the first two things we notice about someone. Work aside, nearly half the men surveyed indicated that white teeth are a deciding factor for a second date. Everybody loves a bright white smile, and there are a variety of products and procedures to help you improve the look of yours. We pride ourselves on exceptional listening skills and keeping your best interests at heart. You can be sure that you will never be advised of, or supplied with, treatment that you don't want or need. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we take the time to answer all of your questions and explore every possible option. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. One in five men in the survey mentioned above said that he could not bring himself to kiss someone with yellow teeth.

North Hosts Bridgewater-Raynham Friday

High Expectations For Experienced Red Raiders

By SEAN BRENNAN

The North Quincy Red Raider boys' basketball team tipped-off their 2007-2008 winter season Tuesday night against Barnstable High School, but regardless of the result (the Quincy Sun went to press before the game was played), this year's Red Raider team is banking on the experience gained during last year's disappointing 5-13 campaign.

"The experience that was gained from last year will be invaluable to the success of the team going forward this season," said head coach Kevin Barrett. "We are bringing a lot of experience back from last year's squad and the players who have returned, bring with them game experience, and many of them contributed big minutes for us, and that should be a positive this season."

Barrett's team may have finished with a 5-13 record in 2006-2007, and may have graduated leadership in the form of John Huerth, Terrell Johnson and Matt Edgerly, but the 2007-2008 team does return a trifecta of senior captains who should help the Red Raiders get back into the post-season equation.

The tri-captains this season are seniors Dennis Martin, Phuoc Nguyen and Matt O'Neill.

"All three of these captains contributed to the team last year," added Barrett. "I am expecting all of them to lead us this season with the help of the rest of our senior class and the added depth of our bench."

Along with Martin, Nguyen and O'Neill, Barrett will lean heavily on the contributions of seniors Marcellus Lee, Alex Tragellis, Sean Clifford, Zack O'Hara, Cheng Zheng and transfer Jordan Thompson.

"Marcellus Lee gives us an option down in the paint and players like Clifford, Tragellis and O'Hara allows us to either play a quick, up-tempo game or we can switch to a slower paced game with our bigs getting some looks down low."

"A player like Matt O'Neill can play down low in the paint with his back to the basket, or he can step out and knock down a 15-footer. An option like that will keep opposing defenses honest. With Martin and Phuoc we have senior leadership in the back court and front court."

With the option of running a transition game or a half-court attack, this year's Red Raider team will have more than one way to expose its opponents' weakness, and this is something that Barrett sees as a strength.

"Being able to slow it down and go inside to Lee and O'Neill allows us to dictate the pace of each game. But with the returning starters we have and our bench, we can also get 'up-and-down' against teams that may not be able to run with us."

North Quincy may have finished last year with a 5-13 record, but as Barrett sees it, last year's team was just a few plays away from victories in most of their losses, and he feels that the lessons learned from those tough defeats will translate into wins this winter.

"We lost so many close games last year. In many of those losses, we compensated in some area and it cost us and we let some get away. But getting back to the learned game experience of many of these players, hopefully we can hurdle those issues and start to see the light and turn those tough defeats into wins."

After playing against Barnstable High School, North Quincy will play two straight home games.

The team will play host to Bridgewater-Raynham High School this Friday night at 6:30 p.m. (NQHS Gymnasium) and is scheduled to play its first Atlantic Coast League game next Tuesday night (6:30 p.m.) versus Whitman-Hanson High School.

Assistants In Running To Replace Bob Noble After 24 Years On Sidelines

QHS Seeking New Head Football Coach

With the departure of Bob Noble, the Quincy Presidents are in the market for a new head football coach.

Quincy Public Schools Athletic Director Jim Rendle said Monday that his department has begun the process of finding a replacement for Noble, who retired after 24 years of coaching, the last nine years as the team's head coach.

"(Bob) was a dedicated and hardworking coach," said Rendle. "You don't get it any better. He stood out when it came to being organized."

"But we have begun the process of finding and interviewing potential candidates for this open position. We have sent out the listing through the Quincy Public School system, but the position is not limited to just employees of the Quincy Public Schools. We are accepting applications from all interested parties."

Rendle did say that he has some very capable in-house candidates that he will be talking with about the job, but applications may still be sent to Jim Rendle at the Quincy Athletic Department, 34 Coddington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Noble, who is retiring after 24 years on the sidelines finished his nine-year head-coaching career with a 39-48-2 overall record. His team's best season statistically was in 2005 when the Presidents finished with a 7-2-1 record and advanced to the Eastern Mass. playoffs for the first time.

Noble's 2007 team finished the year with a 4-6 record, which included a ninth straight Thanksgiving Day win over rival North Quincy, 28-7.

Noble finished his coaching career with a perfect 9-0 record on Thanksgiving. "After 24 years of coaching in one form or another, it was frankly time to move on," Noble said.

Noble, who will continue to teach history at Quincy High School, hopes one of his long-time assistant coaches succeeds him. Three of them, defensive coordinator Bill Reardon, line coach Dan Morrell and secondary/receivers coach Kevin Carey have been a part of his staff for ten or more seasons.

Noble may be finished coaching, but Rendle hopes to find a spot for him in the athletic department.

"I will do everything to keep him involved somehow in the athletic department. He has been and hopefully will continue to be part of our success."

Quincy Hockey Skates Past Silver Lake In Opener

The Quincy President boys' hockey team skated off with an opening season win over Silver Lake High School, 3-2, Monday night at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Juniour goalie Jeff Giordani stopped 39 shots (out of a possible 41) to earn the number one star of the game.

Senior forward Ted Walsh scored a goal and contributed two assists. Walsh connected with senior Nick Masone and sophomore Kevin Keith (one goal, one assist) on the other two Quincy goals. Casey Conley chipped in with a single assist.

The Presidents finished the game with 27 shots on net.

Quincy, which finished last season with a 10-7-4 overall record, plays against Atlantic Coast League foe Plymouth South tonight (Wednesday) at 7:10 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena and plays on the road on Saturday against Martha's Vineyard High School at 6 p.m.

The team's final home game before their holiday vacation begins is on Dec. 22 at 7:50 p.m. against Nauset High School.

Lifeguard Training Course Starts Dec. 26

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course at the Lincoln Hancock Community Pool, according to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation.

The course is open to participants who are at least 15-years of age and capable of passing a pre-requisite water skill test. The swim test will be given to all candidates on Wed., Dec. 26 at 6 p.m.

According to Welch, this program is offered on a condensed schedule that should allow college students an ideal opportunity to train while on school holiday. However, he noted, there would be a strict attendance policy for all participants.

The first class will immediately follow the test on Dec. 26 and will end at 9 p.m. The rest of the 6-9 p.m. classes are scheduled as follows: Dec. 27 and 28, Jan. 2, Jan. 7, Jan. 9, Jan. 14 and Jan. 16.

Registration for the course is limited and will be taken in person at the Quincy Recreation Department office, One Merrymount Parkway, beginning immediately. Quincy residents will be given preference for registration.

The cost of the program for Quincy residents is $125, which includes all books, supplies and Red Cross fees.

Upon successful completion of the course, and American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Certificate, CPR for the Professional Rescuer and First Aid Skills will be issued.

Quincy Recreation 'Hoop Shoot' Free Throw Contest Starts Dec. 15

The Quincy Recreation Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation announce that the QRD and the Quincy Lodge of Elks will once again co-sponsor the Elk's National "Hoop Shoot," Free Throw Contest.

The Quincy competition is the first step in a National Contest for boys and girls ages 8-13. Contestants are assigned to three separate categories in both a boys and girls division. Age groups are 8-9, 10-11 and 12-13. Each contestant's age is determined as of April 1, 2008.

Each participant is awarded points for successful free throws. The boys and girls in the 8-9 age group will shoot from four feet in front of the regulation foul line.

The Quincy Recreation leaders assigned their regular recreation programs in that area will supervise the program in neighborhood gymnasiums.

This program is free and contestants may participate even if not previously enrolled in the recreation program. Participants may choose any of the various times or sites to compete; however they may only compete in the Quincy qualifier.

Welch, Director of Recreation stated, "We are pleased that the Quincy Lodge of Elks has once again provided this program for the benefit of our participants. This is the 36th year and many Quincy residents have enjoyed the benefits of this activity at the local, regional and state level as well as the national championship.

"The Elks devote a great deal of attention to youth programs. Their commitment to our children help make Quincy a better place to live and over 50,000 children are expected to take part nationally."

The Quincy Lodge "Hoop Shoot" chairman is Ed Miller, former AD of the Quincy Public Schools.

The first round will be offered at the following gyms:

Dec. 15 (10 a.m.): Atherton Hough, Atlantic Middle, Bernazzani, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Monclair, Point Webster, Snug Harbor, Squantum and Wollaston.

Dec. 17 (3 p.m.): Marshall School.

All items collected will be donated to Interfaith Social Service food pantry.

Quincy's Jenny Hines Has Diving Success At UMass-Dartmouth

Jenny Hines, a Quincy resident and a 2007 graduate of Fontbonne Academy, recently finished up her first season as a member of the UMass-Dartmouth swimming/diving team.

Hines was a major contributor to her team's second place finish at the Little East Swimming Championships at the Tripp Athletic Center Pool on December 1. The Corsairs finished with 271 total points, 16.5 points ahead of third-place Eastern Connecticut State. Keene State finished in first place with a total of 605 points.

Hines earned her team's only victory, finishing first in the three-meter diving competition with 153.80 points. She was fourth in the one-meter competition with 175.20 points.

"To come in second is great, we swam well and had a great effort," said UMass-Dartmouth head coach Cathy Motta.

"Jenny worked very hard to prepare for the Little East meet," said Motta. "That was her first meet ever diving from the three-meter board. She really focused and stepped it up when we needed her to. Her performance helped us finish second, and is definitely commendable."

Hines' stellar performance at the Little East Swimming Championships comes on the heels of an impressive regular season that saw her named Little East Rookie Diver of the week twice. She was honored for the week of November 12th and December 5th.

Hines also won the one-meter competition against Babson College on Oct. 27 with a score of 175.20 points, and in a meet against Bridgewater State she finished third with 170.75 points. Hines also took second in the one-meter competition at the UMass-Dartmouth Invitational with 175.20 points.

"Jenny is a hard worker who is very enthusiastic," added Motta. "She is the first to practice and usually one of the last to leave. She's only been diving for two years, and we expect her to continue to improve."

The City of Quincy requests proposals from qualified persons or agencies to enter into a contract to lease a portion of the building together with the accompanying area for access and parking located at 24 Broad Street, Quincy, Massachusetts (the premises). The premises consist of approximately 5,100 square feet of building together with the right to use with others the paved area for vehicular access and parking. The property is to be utilized so as to provide services for military veterans. A copy of these specifications may be obtained at the Purchasing Department, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, on or after December 5, 2007, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Non-Price Proposals must be in a sealed envelope and price proposals must be in a separate sealed envelope. The outside of the sealed envelopes are to be clearly marked, "RFP - NON PRICE PROPOSAL ENCLOSED" with time/date of RFP and "RFP - PRICE PROPOSAL ENCLOSED" with time/date of RFP opening.

Proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent until the time and date stated above, at which time and date they will be opened and registered. Late proposals, delivered by mail or in person, will be rejected.

The right is reserved to reject any or all RFP's or to accept any part of an RFP or the one deemed best for the City, and waive any informalities in the bidding, if it is in the best interest of the City to do so.

SATURDAY, DEC. 1

A Job Well Done

On Friday, Nov. 30, Detectives Paul Pieper and Cindy Walsh were conducting "frequent checks" in the area of 123 Elm St. on complaints of suspicious people and motor vehicles believed to be involved in drug activity.

At approximately 2:10 p.m., an anonymous call came in stating a white male was sitting in a blue vehicle inside the adjacent parking garage. The detectives approached the vehicle and noticed in plain view $60 folded and lying on the dashboard.

Officer Mike Duran arrived on scene and checked the suspect for warrants to no avail. The suspect denied being involved in any drug transaction, so his information was taken for police files and he was sent on his way.

The detectives then continued driving through the parking garage in their unmarked cruiser and came upon a male leaning into an open driver's side window of a pick-up truck, which was occupied by a male sitting behind the wheel. When the suspect (#1) outside the truck saw the detectives, he pulled his hand out of the truck and started to run.

Detective Walsh gave chase. The driver (suspect #2) of the truck began backing up but couldn't get by the cruiser. Detective Pieper called for assistance, and then instructed the subject to step out.

After conducting a pat-frisk, Detective Pieper felt a hard metal object in the suspect's front pocket. He slowly put his hand inside the pocket and pulled out a metal spoon with residue, believed to be heroin, then removed a hypodermic syringe from the pocket.

Detective Pieper radioed Detective Walsh to warn her about the dangerous needles, which could be used as a weapon. Meanwhile, Detective Walsh chased the suspect onto Baxter Street, through iron steps, over a wooden fence and into a backyard, where she placed him in custody.

A quick search of the suspect produced a syringe and a small-knotted bag containing a substance appearing to be heroin. Both suspects were placed under arrest. Suspect #1, a 20-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with possession of class A drug with the intent to distribute and conspiracy to violate drug laws. Suspect #2, a 29-year-old Weymouth resident, was charged with possession of a class A (heroin residue on spoon) and conspiracy to violate drug laws."

Nice Work!

SAME SCAM - DIFFERENT VICTIM: Officer Paul Jackson recently investigated a case where the victim was scammed out of $4,000. The victim told the officer that she is a model and had a posting for employment on the Internet.

She said she received a call from a person claiming he wanted to use her in a photo shoot. He said he would send her a check for $3,000 as a down payment. A few days later a check arrived for $7,000 with instructions for her to deposit it in her account.

The next day, the victim received a call instructing her to send the extra $4,000 back to him so that he could pay for the studio and photographer. The victim sent the West Union money order to the address given - in Nigeria!

The victim is out $4,000.

To prevent being victimized by this increasingly used scam, heed the warning of your bank and wait for the check to clear.

By wary of anyone sending you a check worth more than what was agreed upon and lastly, be very cautious of sending money out of the country, especially Nigeria and Canada.

Ways To Reduce Junk Mail And Telephone Calls

National Do Not Call Registry: www.donotcall.gov or call toll free 1-888-382-1222, sponsored by the Federal Trade Commission of the United States Government. Register your home, office and cell phones.

Junk Mail - www.privacyrights.org/Letters/jmla.htm to get the mail in form. Send $1.00 in check or money order to Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, P.O. Box 643, Carmel, NY 10512. This will reduce sweepstakes and junk mail. Include the name and address of others living with you so that they don't start getting the junk mail that you once received.

Reduce catalog deliveries - Email optout@abacus-us.com to reduce mail deliveries.

Credit Card Offers - go to www.opoutprescreen.com to opt out for five years or forever.

"Privacy Policies" - when you get mail from companies that you have credit cards or financials with, watch out for their letters, often labeled "Privacy Policy," seeking permission to sell your name to others. Be sure to send the form back with no permission granted.

Product Warranties/Rebate forms - always write "no mailing lists" across the form you mail back.

Telemarketing - if a caller slips through the "do not call list" you signed up for, tell them to take your name off their list, or you will never send a donation or buy from them again.

Non-profit agencies and companies you have conducted business with in the past may still call you. If you no longer want them to call, tell them to remove your name and number from the list.

As always, do not give out your Social Security number and/or date of birth.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

W. Somerset Maugham wrote: "For the average man a sufficient role of life is to follow his instincts controlled by the moral standard of the society in which he lives."

Have you ever been caught in a horrible storm while driving a car? ... When your windshield wiper could hardly clear your window to give you a clear view of the road? Were not the yellow and white lines on the road helpful to you? Without them you probably would not have been able to continue driving. They protected you from going into the ditch.

Let's think about these questions in regard to our day-by-day living. ... Safety lines have been given to us. The lines are safety guides and common sense should tell us how important they are. ... Yet, some people continually ignore them. ...

The basic guides are in the Bible such as the Beatitudes, the Lord's Prayer and, of course, the all important Ten Commandments. Is it not true that if we follow these white lines carefully, we would avoid the many 'ditches' of difficulty in our daily living? ...

The play will be performed by members of the congregation. "In Bethlehem Inn" is a humorous play set inside the famous inn in Bethlehem where Mary and Joseph sought shelter some 2,000 years ago.

Attendees play the role of guests at the overcrowded inn; while they enjoy the church supper, attendees watch as the harried innkeeper and his wife and servants attempt to deal with the arrival of an unexpected young couple, several shepherds and an amazing star that seems to hang directly over the inn's stable.

The pageant concludes with a tableau of the nativity scene presented by the students of the church's Sunday school.

Admission to the play and supper is free; reservations are recommended.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church is handicapped accessible.

For reservations, directions or more information, call 617-328-1384.

St. Ann Parish

Pastor John Castricum will deliver his sermon "Gifts of Christmas: Gold." Waymon and Mary Giggey will serve for the Diaconate.

Paula Younie will read the scripture Isaiah 60: 1-7.

Fellowship coffee hour will follow the service.

The Church Post Office is open Sunday for parishioners to exchange Christmas cards with their friends at church and make a donation to the monthly newsletter.

On Saturday at 5 p.m., The Sunday School is sponsoring a new and innovative Christmas pageant "In Bethlehem Inn" with a spaghetti supper. There is no charge but reservations are requested.

The Mothers Club will host a Christmas Party Tuesday. Members are encouraged to bring a $7-$10 gift, something they would buy for themselves, for Yankee Swap.

E-Board meets at 6:45 p.m., business meeting at 7 p.m. and party at 7:30 p.m.

On Thursday, Dec. 20, church goes will go caroling in the neighborhood, followed by cider and doughnuts at the church.

Quincy Point Congregational Church

Poinsettia Sunday will be celebrated at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

The Rev. Ann G. Suzedell, pastor, will deliver the Angel's message "Give Him the name Jesus."

Deacon of the Day will be Sherri Pitts joined by lay reader Craig Jackson.

Following the service, there will be coffee and light refreshments in fellowship hall.

Catholic Women's Prayer Group

The Catholic Parishes of Quincy sponsor a monthly Catholic Women's Prayer Group as an opportunity to deepen one's relationship with Christ and be supported by the presence of other faith-filled women.

All are welcome.

The next meeting is Tuesday, Dec. 18 from 7 to 8:15 p.m. in St. Joseph's Rectory Conference Room.

For more information, contact Sister Pat Boyle at 617-479-5400 (St. Ann Parish).

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Start preparing now to make sure you get the credit you're due for all that effort you put in to get that project off the ground. A new challenge emerges after the 15th.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're still charging full steam ahead on the job — and that's fine. But take time to share the joy of preparing for the upcoming holidays with folks you love.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A former detractor resists joining your ranks just yet. Give him or her time to learn more about what you're doing. Meanwhile, devote more time to friends and family.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Be careful not to be goaded into a tiff by someone who might be looking for a fight. Remain cool as you make your exit. Be assured that others will rally to your support.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Kudos on getting the well-deserved Lion's share of the rewards for a job well-done. Now you can take a breather from your workaday duties and spend time with your family.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You enjoy a quick spurt of renewed energy just in time to meet that upcoming deadline. A potentially romantic situation looms. How it develops will be up to you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Watch out for distractions that could cause delays and leave you running twice as fast to finish your work by the 15th. Then go ahead and have fun.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might prefer to work on current tasks on your own. But be open to a potentially useful suggestion from someone who admires you and wants to help.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Avoid rushing full gallop into that volunteer project without knowing what's expected of you. Take things a step at a time as you begin to find your way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Good news: You should begin to feel more comfortable expressing your emotions. This will go a long way in helping you with that personal situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An old friend gives confusing signals. Best advice: Don't assume that things will necessarily work themselves out. Ask questions and demand straight answers.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A new relationship needs time to develop. Be careful not to let your emotions flood your natural sense of caution. Meanwhile, check out that new job offer.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of right and wrong sometimes causes you to come into conflict with others. But you invariably come out ahead.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Quincy High Competes In Third Academic Decathlon

Quincy High School was among the 25 schools that recently participated in the Massachusetts large-school regional scrimmage in preparation for the 2008 United States Academic Decathlon.

The competition was held at St. John's High School in Shrewsbury.

Local, regional and state competitions can lead to the national finals which this academic year will take place in Miami, Florida in April.

"Our team showed great improvement this year," said Coach Evelyn Ryan. "Our standings were higher and the team worked very hard. With one more round of competition, we have an excellent chance of making it to States."

The U.S. Academic Decathlon was created to provide opportunities for students to experience the challenges of rigorous team and individual competition.

Each team competes in ten events—economics, language and literature, art, music, mathematics, social science, science, essay, interview, and speech. Each year the science or social science is used as the Super Quiz topic.

A new theme of study is established every year with topics that are relevant, current and challenging. This year's science focus is infectious diseases. The social studies topic is the American Civil War. "The students gain a remarkable amount of knowledge in their daily preparation for competition. There's really no way to lose taking part in an event like this," Ryan said.

Ribbons as well as gold, silver and bronze medals are awarded for individual events and total scores. Overall individual winners are recognized, as are champion teams.

"On our team this year, the Coach's gold medal goes to Amanda Varraso, team captain," Ryan said. "She earned the team a Blue Ribbon in Art—our first award. I have no doubt her leadership will take the team to States."

Volunteers Needed At Beechwood Senior Center

Beechwood On The Bay is asking for volunteers to help with expanding activities according to the Senior Center Coordinator, Maryann Mahony.

There are many volunteer positions. Some work one day/week, some two hours, visit, and others more.

Volunteers are needed to assist with arts and crafts, the lunch program, outdoor recreation, knitting and crocheting instruction, help in the infant room, children's outdoor classrooms, and handyman tasks.

A volunteer orientation is being planned. Call Maryann for more information at 617-471-5712.

community," Koch said.

"We all have a role to play, and that's the tone we hope to set in our administration," Koch said. "A lot of people are ready and willing, they just need to be asked. So I am asking."

Koch's transition team is currently researching exactly how many seats on which boards and commissions will be open in the New Year. For a full list of boards, residents can visit the city's Web site at www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

Anyone interested in being considered for an appointment should send a letter of interest, including the specific board desired, to: Mayor-elect Tom Koch, c/o Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169. Residents may also e-mail Koch directly at tom@kochforquincy.com.

Familiar Faces Return

Koch Names 12 More To Top Posts

Mayor-elect Tom Koch named a dozen persons to leadership positions in his administration, including a veteran civil engineer to oversee major construction projects and a number of familiar faces from previous administrations.

Gary Cuniff, a Squantum resident, will become director of building, construction and maintenance after Koch is inaugurated Jan. 7, a post that will make him chief liaison for such projects as the new Quincy High School and the Central Middle School.

Cuniff, a structural engineer with nearly 30 years experience who currently runs his own consulting firm, will begin his job when he returns from a trip to Africa, where he was stationed in the Peace Corps in the 1980s as town engineer in Kisumu, Kenya.

"I am thrilled Gary has agreed to leave the private sector for this critical position," said Koch. "He is going to be our point man on the school projects and his knowledge and experience will help us make sure these projects are completed on time and on budget."

Koch also named Michael Coffey, a former senior manager at Verizon, as business manager in the Public Works Department.

Coffey will also undertake the management duties of the departed Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell until a new commissioner is named and he will begin reviewing operations as part of Koch's overall city restructuring plan.

Other appointments, many of them effective as of Feb. 4, announced by Koch included:

- Executive Director of Parks, Forestry and Cemetery (Koch's old job in the Phelan Administration) - Kristen Keolane Powers, the program manager in the department for the past four years and the first woman to hold the post.

- Health Commissioner - Andrew Scheele, who was first appointed by Phelan, now reappointed by Koch.

- Traffic Engineer - Jack Gillon, a traffic engineer with more than 30 years experience who served as Quincy traffic engineer from 1992 to 2002.

175% Classification Approved

New Tax Rates: Residential $10.83 Commercial $22.22

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The City Council Monday accepted the tax classification percentage of 175% for Fiscal Year 2008 as recommended by Mayor William Phelan and presented by Board of Assessors Chairwoman Marion Fantucchio.

This classification translates into a residential tax rate of $10.83 per $1000 valuation, a 1.69% increase over the 2007 rate of $10.44.

The commercial tax rate will decrease by less than one percent with the 2008 rate of $22.22 per $1000 value. Last year's rate was $22.40.

Fantucchio told councillors that the state's

Department of Revenue (DOR) had approved the recently completed revaluation data so the tax

EASTERN NAZARENE COLLEGE Choral Union, a 50-voice choir comprised of students and community members, recently presented selected choruses and arias from Handel's Messiah at Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston. Children and parents from the broader Quincy community enjoyed the performance. The outreach performance is part of a new arts partnership between the two institutions in which ENC music students perform after-school concerts to elementary school students on a monthly basis. The performance of Handel's Messiah featured acclaimed soprano soloist and ENC faculty member Gayle Berman. The Choral Union was accompanied by a string quartet. The group is conducted by Delyn Case, an associate professor of music at the college.

Cite Angry Calls About Streets, Sidewalks Councillors Blast Response To Snow, Ice Storm

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City councillors Monday blasted the city's response to Sunday's snow and ice storm, which left blocked hydrants, treacherous sidewalks, impassable streets, and angry residents in its wake, and especially dangerous situations for children and pedestrians.

Department of Public Works employees logged about 500 calls Sunday; another 50 residents called City Hall and four councillors reported 40 to 50 calls that day.

As a result, the Council passed a resolution aimed at clarifying Department of Works procedures, establishing performance standards for private contractors, and enforcing overnight parking restrictions.

Councillors indicated that response to the first storm of eight to 10 inches of light snow last Thursday was adequate but there was an abysmal response to Sunday's snow and ice Northeast.

Though 11 inches of snow fell on the city with the two storms.

Council President Douglas Gutro who reported at least 40 calls described irate parents whose children had to walk to school on city streets because the sidewalks weren't cleared.

"The sidewalks are what bother me," said Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly who described impassable sidewalks at three elementary schools in his district. "Those kids don't belong out on the street."

Snow and ice blocked access to main roads and Wollaston Station, said Gutro, adding "I can't remember this number of calls."

Gutro said that neither the city nor private contractors appeared to have a proper plan, describing clearing as a "patchwork with no rhyme or reason."

Contractors were ill prepared with their equipment, according to Gutro who described some plows as "too light to deal with it (the ice and snow)."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin waved three pages listing streets that were blocked or neglected during the city's plowing Sunday and still not up to par by Monday.

However, Coughlin cited one hero of the day in Department of Public Works (DPW) employee Rachel Picard who answered many of the 500 calls to the DPW.

"I talked to her so many times," Coughlin said that Picard finally said she'd run the plow the on a street reported as dangerous by Coughlin.

"And she did," said Coughlin.

Coughlin said that a major issue is that with cars parked on both sides of the street, fire trucks and ambulances could not access many streets.

Coughlin said that the police "don't enforce overnight parking rules in the city anymore."

"I was flabbergasted," said Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis who reported 45 calls Sunday and called for a council hearing on snow clearing procedures. He also commended Picard.

"We need to have the DPW committee hold a public hearing," said Davis, adding there should be a clear chain of command. "People should not have to call their city councillor."

"I had as many phone calls as everybody else," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi who described, "kids walking on roadways that were extremely narrow."

Councillors met with Acting DPW Director Brian Carlisle who was out of town during Sunday's storm. Mayor William Phelan appointed Carlisle to the position on Saturday.

Councillors welcomed Carlisle who will cover the DPW for Steve O'Donnell, Director of the DPW, who submitted his resignation last week.

Putting Merry In Christmas

Helping Hands Reach Out To Needy Families

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The early snows and ice and wind whipping through the city this year intensify the heartbreak facing many families and individuals that are struggling this year as Christmas approaches.

The need is great, as great as ever.

"Middle class people are really getting hit from all sides," said Major Linda Jones, co-commander of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps.

"What's different is we have a lot of new people, people who never applied for any kind of help before," said Kathy Quigley, Director at Germantown Neighborhood Center, of the Christmas list. "People are falling apart at the seams. Can't pay their bills, gas, oil, food. It's just too much."

The numbers of those in need may be surging at social agencies and charitable groups, this year, but, so too, are the many helping hands in Quincy aiming to ease the burdens and provide warmth and joy in the holiday season.

The bells are ringing for the Salvation Army kettles, donors are dropping dollars in red envelopes and mailing checks to the St. Vincent DePaul Society and Father Bill's Place.

Volunteers are wrapping new toys and packing hams for Interfaith Social Services and members of the Quincy Elks and Quincy City Club are quietly stepping up to the challenge.

Nothing warms the holidays more for youngsters and adults than being remembered and many recipients call or write back to say, "Thank you."

"I get beautiful letters; they make you cry," said Quigley who described special letters that said, "Angels really do exist." or "Nobody's ever been so nice to me."

Quigley emphasized that almost all city social service agencies belong to the five-year old Holiday Coalition which eliminates the duplication of requests for help. All recipients sign a paper that states, "We will share your name."

As a result, Quigley said there is rarely duplication on any list. She said agencies care deeply that donations are properly assigned and help different people.

Germantown Neighborhood Center

"We have a citywide program," said Quigley who reported that the center aided 1400 families and individuals last year and is expecting at least 1800 this year.

Referrals come from schools and other agencies, according to Quigley who said that gift deliveries keep going up "right up to Christmas Eve."

Households receive new clothing, towels, blankets, maybe a new pillow and kitchen utensils, said Quigley who recalled that one woman simply asked for a "new broom and laundry basket" for Christmas.

Quigley begins fundraising with a zero balance on the first day of October each year. The first mailing goes to about 700 previous donors and corporations. Private donations fund the Christmas program.

After the season, Quigley mails donors copies of the special letters from families and children who have received gifts and food, toys and clothes. The recipient's names are blacked out.

This is the first year the Center has occupied the new building opened last August at 366 Palmer St., Germantown.

The Salvation Army

"We've had an increase this year in requests for utility assistance," said Major Jones, co-commander of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps with her

A FOOD DRIVE by the Community Building Committee at St. Mary School in West Quincy raised 44 bags of canned and boxed food by students in grades K-8 for Interfaith Social Services. husband Major Doug Jones.

Christmas requests are also increasing, according to Major Jones who noted that there are already 409 families on the Christmas list. That's up from 391 last year.

According to Major Jones, these families have 295 children 12 years old and under. Each family will receive a food voucher for Stop and Shop and each child will receive toys.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Dec. 18, 1620, passengers on the British ship Mayflower come ashore at Plymouth, Mass., to begin their new settlement, Plymouth Colony. That winter of 1620-21 was brutal, and by spring, 50 of the original 102 Mayflower passengers were dead.
- On Dec. 16, 1811, in the Mississippi River Valley near New Madrid, Mo., an earthquake of an estimated 8.6 magnitude on the Richter scale slams the region. The quake raised and lowered parts of the Mississippi Valley by as much as 15 feet and changed the course of the Mississippi River.
- On Dec. 23, 1888, Dutch painter Vincent van Gogh, suffering from severe depression, cuts off the lower part of his left ear with a razor while staying in Arles, France. He later documented the event in a painting titled Self-Portrait with Bandaged Ear.
- On Dec. 22, 1939, two express trains collide in Magdeburg, Germany, killing 132 people. The accident was probably due to the fact that the country's best rail engineers had all been conscripted into the military.
- On Dec. 20, 1957, rock-and-roll star Elvis Presley receives his draft notice for the U.S. Army. Fans send tens of thousands of letters asking for him to be spared, but Elvis would have none of it. He was sworn in as an Army private in Memphis on March 24, 1958.
- On Dec. 17, 1963, the U.S. Congress passes the Clean Air Act, a sweeping set of laws designed to protect the environment from air pollution. It was the first legislation to place pollution controls on the auto industry.
- On Dec. 21, 1975, in Vienna, Austria, Carlos the Jackal leads a raid on a meeting of oil ministers from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, killing three people and taking 63 people hostage. OPEC did not hold another summit for 25 years.
- On Dec. 19, 1998, the House of Representatives approves two articles of impeachment against President Bill Clinton, charging him with lying under oath to a federal grand jury and obstructing justice. He eventually was acquitted on both counts.

Dear Santa

Dear Santa:

It's me again. Late again as usual.

I keep promising to write sooner to make it easier for you to pack your sleigh. No, last minute stuff.

I really tried to get my list in earlier this year. There are a lot of nice people on it.

Some of the gifts I'm asking are in a humorous vein-some in a serious one. I would really appreciate it if you could squeeze in as many of them as you can.

I don't want to be a pain, Santa. But just a reminder: we are the Quincy that pronounces it Quin-zee. We're a little fussy about that. Wouldn't want you to mix us up with those other Quincys that think it's Quin-see.

But you probably got to know it's pronounced Quin-zee years ago when you delivered toys to little Johnny Quincy Adams.

So, Santa, I would really appreciate it if you could drop the following off to the following:

Mayor WILLIAM PHELAN and Mayor-elect TOM KOCH, a friendly relationship. You know, Santa, I tried to get the outgoing mayor a gold mine under City Hall, an oil well near McIntyre Mall and a Megabucks jackpot during his administration to keep the tax rate down and for emergencies. Maybe you could do it for the incoming mayor...And speaking of them, how about getting them together with former Mayors WALTER HANNON, JOE LARIA, ARTHUR TOBIN, FRANK MC CAULEY and JIM SHEETS for a group photo. Seven living mayors, together is a photo for posterity...Happy Landing for City Hall's outgoing DAVE MURPHY, TOM LARGEY, LAURIE ALLEN, MONICA CONYNGHAM...Good luck to incoming JAMES FATSEAS, HELEN MURPHY, CHRIS WALKER, JIM TIMMINS...LINDA STICE, a big "Thank You" for her 16 years of dedication to children as a member of the School Committee. And success as she pursues that doctorate to enable her to expand that commitment to orphans and other children in need...JO-ANN BRAGG, a big "Welcome Back" to the School Committee after topping the field in this year's election...Police Chief ROBERT CROWLEY, a Christmas card from BRUCE TAIT...BRUCE TAIT, a Christmas card from ROBERT CROWLEY...Health Commissioner DREW SCHEELE, a stack of "Wash Your Hands" signs for posting around the city...School Supt. RICK DE CRISTOFARO, snow only on Saturdays and Sundays. And no more than an inch or two at a time, followed by bright sun...JAY DAVIS, a bell and timer to keep the speeches short when he takes over the gavel from DOUG GUTRO as city council president...JENNIFER LOGUE, VICTOR NG, EILEEN MULLEN, JIMMY LIANG, more votes next time...NICK PULEO, a firm grip on the Joint Convention votes he has lined up to fill the coming vacancy on the School Committee...City Clerk JOE SHEA, that miracle he keeps looking for. That election day when all the city's registered voters actually turn out to vote...DAVE and ROSE MC CARTHY, a speed-up in the process to adopt that two-year old special needs boy in Vietnam. And a special parents award to them for bringing together a loving family...Majors DOUG and LINDA JONES, commanding officers of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps, kettles filled to the brim to help make Christmas brighter for local needy families...Fire Chief TIM PETTINELLI a gift he would cherish: the New Year without a fatal fire and false alarms...Fr. BILL MC CARTHY and JOHN YAZWINSKI, the day they can lock the door at Father Bill's Place because it and other shelters for the homeless are no longer needed because there are no more homeless...ED KEOHANE, a new civic project for his Quincy Partnership...TOM GALVIN, a stocking full of newly discovered old Quincy postcards to keep his "Scenes From Yesterday" fans happy. (He's been keeping them happy for going on 15 years)...Senator MIKE MORRISSEY and Reps. BRUCE AYERS, RON MARIANO and STEVE TOBIN a bunch of Beacon Hill goodies to bring back to Quincy...Quincy 2000 Collaborative's PETER RACICOT and DEAN RIZZO, and Quincy Business Association's RICH GORMLEY and MARALIN MANNING, a vigorous united effort to bring new business to Quincy...Discover Quincy's MARK CAREY, a city full of tourists...JOHN (JAKE) COMER, past national commander of the American Legion, another key Congressional vote in his mission for a Constitutional amendment to protect Old Glory from abuse...MARTY FINNEGAN, former Quincy High School basketball coach and public schools athletics director, a new set of golf clubs. Living on a golf course in Desert Hot Springs, Calif. it's easy to wear out a set...A special Merry Christmas and Happy New Year for SHARON (PAOLUCCI) SWATEK, a genuine "Profile In Courage"...QBA's MARIE WATTS, happy retirement...DANA GAGNE of DG's Yard Maintenance, a sincere "Thank You" for being there when really needed...CYNTHIA MOLER and LISA MURPHY, another trip back to their Quincy roots...Former Quincy resident JOE "TEX" FASCI, now deep in the heart of Texas, a horse named Quincy...The Yakoo, a permanent pedestal at NQHS...All my love to DOROTHY, GAIL, LINDA, DONNA (D.J.), DOLLY, BOB, FREDDIE, JIM, AMY V., MICHELLE, KIM, BRIAN, KELLIE, LINDSAY, JAY N., MICHAEL, CAITLIN, SEAN, AMY B., JULIE, WENDY, DAVE, FRED, BEN, JAY V.

And, Santa, SHARRON BEALS will again be keeping a vigil this Christmas Eve at the Beechwood Community Center hoping to catch you coming down the chimney. As I've mentioned before, she has that copy of her favorite "Though For Christmas" she wants to personally give to you to take back to Mrs. Claus. She's pretty persistent. Santa. She'll be waiting for you. Her "Thought For Christmas":

"Do you know what would have happened if it had been the Three Wisewomen instead of the Three Wisemen? They would have asked directions, arrived on time, helped deliver the baby, cleaned the stable and made a casserole, brought practical gifts and there would be "Peace On Earth."

Well, so long Santa. I'm sure I've forgotten some people including good friends. But to all of them and all of you, Merry Christmas, Happy Chanukah and a Happy, Healthy New Year.

Scenes From Yesterday

MERRY CHRISTMAS from QUINCY, MASS.

Largest Christmas Tree in United States.
85 feet high contributed by Retail Merchants.

THIS 1934 POSTCARD is a view of the Christmas tree erected by the Retail Merchants Bureau of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. It was in front of the Granite Trust Bank building, now home to a branch of the Bank of America at 1400 Hancock St. Two weeks before this tree was lighted, a smaller tree was dedicated on the same spot, but it was toppled by a gale. MIT engineers brought in to prevent a recurrence claimed this new 85-foot tree could withstand winds to 240 mph. The first 60 feet of the trunk, set firmly into the ground, was the boom from a derrick donated by the Swingle Quarry Co. It was capable of lifting 20 tons of granite. On top of this boom was attached a 25-foot real tree. Three hundred and twenty smaller trees salvaged from the first disaster were inserted into holes drilled into the boom to serve as the lower branches. Six nearly one-inch thick cables secured the tree from all sides, and some 600 lights accompanied a large and small star that flashed alternately at the top. On the occasion of the tree lighting, a spectacular scintillator on top of the bank building threw a great fan of light in all colors more than a mile into the sky. Howard Johnson's Restaurant was the store on the left at One Chestnut St. On the right was Homer's Jewelry Store, now Rogers Jewelry at 1402 Hancock St. This postcard has become a tradition for Sun readers and is appearing for the 13th year. Quincy's Yesterdays

Sheets Wins House Seat In Special Election

By FRANK McCAULEY

City Councillor James A. Sheets easily won Quincy's Fourth Norfolk District State Representative seat in the (Dec. 16) special election.

Sheets, the Democratic nominee, polled 2,727 votes to top American Party candidate Joseph Killian who had 1,149 votes. The margin of victory was 1,578 votes. Councillor John Lydon, running as an independent candidate, was third with 1,109. Marilyn Hanabury, another independent candidate, polled 246 votes.

The vacancy was created when Rep. William D. Delahunt was appointed Norfolk County District Attorney by Governor Michael Dukakis.

HANNON TAKES SOUTH CHAMBER JOB

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, who lost his bid for re-election to a third term in November, will begin a new career in January, heading up the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Economic Development Group.

Hannon will succeed Atty. Harold Davis, a school committee member who made an unsuccessful bid for councillor-at-large.

Eric Swider, executive vice-president of the Chamber, made the appointment of Hannon and in-coming Chamber president Jack Conway made the formal announcement.

LAIRAIA MAY REMOVE SOME DOWNTOWN PARKING METERS

Mayor-elect Joseph J. LaRaia said that his administration will investigate the possibility of removing some of the parking meters in Quincy Square to entice more shoppers to the business district.

Speaking at a special South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting, LaRaia pledged to maintain "a constant concern with the business community, in an effort to represent that community, 'as fairly and equitably as possible.'"

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

"SOUNDS OF THE SEASON" could be heard from the lobby of Quincy Credit Union Monday as students from Point Webster Middle School Chorus performed a variety of traditional holiday songs for members and staff. Adorned with holiday antlers, the chorus was led by Amy Rogers, Point Webster's music teacher, and accompanied by instrumental teacher, David Buckley. This was the fourth annual performance at QCU for the students. Quincy Credit Union is located at 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

Friendly Visitors Sought At COA

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with Lena Trough, the friendly visitor coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

At Eastern Nazarene College Opera Transforms Anti-Semitic Tale Into Plea For Tolerance

Quincy composer Delvyn Case's "The Prioress's Tale," which will make its world premiere Thursday, Jan. 17, at Eastern Nazarene College, is an opera with a twist.

It takes one of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," the one with decidedly anti-Semitic overtones, and converts it into a musical plea for religious tolerance.

The result is a one-act chamber opera which will be performed at 7 p.m. in the Cover Fine Arts Center at the college. A panel discussion of Christian and Jewish clergy will follow.

The performance is directed by Andrew Ryker and features three of Boston's best young opera singers.

Admission is $10 for adults and $5 for seniors. Students of all ages are admitted free.

Case, an assistant professor of music at ENC, reached out to the South Shore's Jewish community for input on the best way to turn Chaucer's tale into a plea for cultural understanding.

"As a Christian, I'm saddened by the long history of intolerance that has been manifested by some Christians, and the deep rifts between Christians and Jews that still exist due to this deplorable past," he said.

"I felt that, as a composer, I could contribute positively to our public dialogue about these issues."

Working with librettist

Christopher Hood, Case recast Chaucer's original story of violence perpetrated against Christians by a Jewish man into a one-act opera focused on forgiveness, redemption and reconciliation.

"Our story is a tragic parable in which the reality of violence serves as an overall message about the power of forgiveness and peace," said Case.

"We hope our opera communicates a deep respect for victims of religious violence while also dramatically illustrating the terrible consequences of bigotry and hatred."

Quincy H.S. Journalists Hear Sports Writer Mike Fine

Mike Fine, the veteran sports writer for the Patriot Ledger, recently described his work as a beat writer for the Boston Celtics and the Boston Red Sox to Sam McNeice's journalism class at Quincy High School.

Fine captured their attention with personal stories of his meetings with Larry Bird, Mike Lowell and Curt Schilling while providing insight into the demands of news writing and the problems facing print media today.

He told how he began working as a co-op student in 1971 and worked his way up to be one of the premier beat writers in the Boston area.

The class held a mock news conference, firing questions at Fine about his job and how he felt about his position on the Patriot Ledger.

"On the heels of our study of sports writing in journalism class, Mike Fine was a great asset," said McNeice. "Mike Fine is a senior beat sports writer in Boston. It was an honor to have him share his experience and time."

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Stuffing For Roast Or Ham

Every holiday I try to think of a different kind of roast to serve, and sometimes I end up by cooking two entrees to satisfy so many family members.

This year, in addition to making a roast stuffed pork, I am also planning a ham with a different way of stuffing it..

Oyster or Chestnut Stuffing Pork

- 1 can of oysters (fresh if you can get them prepared)
- or 1/2 pound of boiled chestnuts
- 4 slices of bread (cut in cubes)
- 2 tablespoons fresh parsley (chopped)
- 1 small onion (chopped)
- 2 stalks chopped celery
- 1 cup chicken stock
- 1/2 cup seasoned bread crumbs
- 1/4 cup white wine (optional)
- salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tablespoons oil and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine for sauteing.

If you use the chestnuts, slit each one before boiling them. Test if they are tender enough to cut and put in the stuffing.

Saute the onion and celery. Add the oysters (or chestnuts), the chicken stock, the wine and parsley. Then add the bread and blend well, then add the bread crumbs. It should be dry enough to stuff the meat, otherwise, add a bit more crumbs or a smidgen of water or stock if too liquidy.

Slit the top part of the roast and place the stuffing. If need be, I cover the stuffing with some aluminum foil. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 20 minutes to the pound. If you use a thermometer, follow those directions.

I have also used this stuffing for lamb, veal and turkey. And if you use pork tenderloin, just cut in half but not clear to the bottom and tie.

Stuffed Baked Ham

- a 5-7 pound ham (or any size preferred)
- 1 medium sized onion
- 1 stalk of chopped celery
- 1 cup of apple juice
- 1/2 cup of pineapple juice
- 1/2 cup honey
- 2 tablespoons dijon mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves (optional)
- 2 tablespoons olive oil and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Saute the onion and celery in the hot oil and butter. Add the dijon mustard and stir until blended. Then add the apple and pineapple juice and honey. Cook uncovered until reduced. Set aside.

Slit the ham about every 2 inches or so. Bake in a 325 degree oven uncovered for about 40 minutes depending on the size of the ham. Remove from oven which by now the slits have opened enough to place the mixture into each slit as well as the top. Return to the oven and bake until done. It will be brown on top and so moist.. Merry Christmas!

Most of the Army's funds are raised through the kettle drive. Gifts are also donated and, just recently, parents picked out special items for their children at Quincy Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St.

In addition to toys and gift cards, the Salvation Army is distributing mittens, hats, scarves and afghans knitted and donated by Weymouth's Naughty Knitters.

Like most of the agencies, the Salvation Army answers needs year round. At this time, over 100 families a month visit the food pantry. That number is also increasing, according to Major Jones.

Volunteers and donors may contact the agency at 617-472-2345.

Quincy Crisis Center

Kathi Garrison of the Quincy Crisis Center said her agency has been providing holiday help for 26 years. Baskets are filled with food and household items for families and gifts for youngsters up to the age of 16 years old.

"We do need gifts for older children," Garrison said, adding that donations can be dropped off at 282 Billings Rd, North Quincy.

Like most other agencies, the center reports increased numbers this year.

"We did hit a record for Thanksgiving. We've never had that high a number," said Garrison.

"We already expect to exceed that number now. The numbers are high because of the economic situation, high cost of food and gas and oil."

"The need is greater. That means that our needs are greater," said Garrison, referring to increased expenditures.

Interested volunteers can call the center at 617-847-6967. Donations may be mailed to Quincy Crisis Center, P.O. Box 31, Quincy, MA 02170.

Interfaith Social Services

Volunteers, known as Santa's Helpers participate in the agency's 16-year-old Adopt A Family Program through Interfaith Social Services, according to Betty Ann Lang, the agency's Manager of Material Assistance.

Santa's Helpers tell Lang what size family they can help. Then, Lang and her staff match the helper with a family. To date, the agency has a list of 155 families this season.

"That's about 350 youngsters," said Lang who said that sometimes the families meet. Sometimes, they remain anonymous. "Everybody is just so grateful."

Lang described one mother of a boy and a girl, five and seven years old, who said she'd lost her job last fall and planned to give her children crocheted mittens. That was all she had.

"Now, she'll have something under the tree," said Lang who noted that the agency pantry is open every day. At Christmas, "We provide extra food."

Interfaith Social Services is located at 105 Adams St., Quincy. The telephone number is 617-773-6203.

Father Bill's Place

"We're very lucky. The community responds," said John Yazwinski, Executive Director at Father Bill's Place at 40 Broad St., and Quincy.

Yazwinski said church parsonages, companies and individuals are always helping with holiday donations and for regular programs. He cited St. Agatha Church, Milton which recently conducted a gift drive.

Thanks to The Giving Trees at St. Ann's Church, Quincy and St. Claire's Church, Braintree, shelter residents and families get presents of hats, mittens and clothes. Special attention is given to fulfilling children's wishes.

"The Spirit of State Street" is a unique group of about 15 of Father Bill's friends, according to Yazwinski. Members are retired employees of State Street Bank who sort donations and pack the Christmas treasure bags and help with the distribution.

Father Bill's corporate friends include South Shore Savings which collected blankets, Triangle Foods of Norwell distributed sets of pots and pans to 30 families for Christmas, and Boston Financial Data Service, Inc., sent a cash contribution raised by employees.

Even with such help, more is needed as shelter numbers increase and more people are stressed. Until recently, the shelter figures were decreasing as placement efforts now emphasize long-term housing. That changed recently.

Yazwinski said that, now, more persons are seeking help at the shelter due to the weather and economic factors.

Normally, the center sleeps 75 persons. On a recent night, 126 persons needed a bed. That night, the staff had to round up 30 cots and blankets. In fact, staff members had to go out and buy extra blankets to cover the extra visitors.

"We didn't have enough cots," said Yazwinski, said referring to the previous night. "We're really in need of blankets. We need Army cots."

The number of families in need is also increasing as Christmas approaches. For Christmas, the shelter gives gift cards to their residents but Yazwinski said they need many more donations of gift cards to continue the program.

For more information on Father Bill's Place or to make a contribution, visit fatherbillsmainsspring.org.

Quincy Lodge of Elks

The Quincy Lodge of Elks distributes about 200 holiday baskets with turkeys and all the trimmings to local families at Christmas and Thanksgiving.

Exalted Ruler Paul Tracey is chairman of this year's holiday basket program. In addition, Steve and Cindy Mignosa coordinate the program from their store, the Fruit Basket on Granite Street.

The Elks' motto is "Elks Care. Elks Share," and Lodge member Rep. Bruce Ayers. The Elks do their own outreach and members donate the needed funds.

Each basket contains all that is needed for a Christmas dinner, according to Lodge member Rep. Bruce Ayers. The Elks do their own outreach and members donate the needed funds.

Next Sunday, 30-35 Elks will gather at the Lodge at 7 a.m. and begin delivering this year's Christmas basket.

St. Vincent DePaul Society

St. John's Church, Quincy

More families are seeking help this Christmas from the St. Vincent DePaul Society at St. John's Church on School St., Quincy, according to Director Bill Lawless.

Last Christmas, 103 requests were filled through the Society while this year, 150 individuals and families are already on the list.

Lawless cites economic condition; "A lot of people are out of work." In addition, he said that a lot of elderly are living on a fixed income.

Parishioners at St. John's Church participate in The Giving Tree Program by choosing a paper tag from the tree on the altar. The tag tells the person what a recipient might need or if a child is involved, wish for a Christmas present.

Over 3000 persons are members of St. John's Parish and a good number help the Christmas giving program through the red envelopes distributed for donations to persons and families in need.

Lawless said they might find four quarters or a check for $500 in a red envelope. All of the funds support the program, the 60 plus gift baskets and the food program.

"The people are very supportive," said Lawless who also described the Christmas giving by Friends of the Unborn who buy gifts for mothers and their children.

Lawless said the support and aid provided by Rev. Richard Cannon, the pastor at St. John's Church, helps the Society reach its goals.

Quincy City Club, Inc.

The 100 members of the Quincy City Club spread cheer and good-will with gifts and Christmas baskets while maintaining a low-key presence in the city, according to Joe Donovan, a member of the club's Board of Directors.

"The club's mission is to help those who have less than we have," said Donovan who described hundreds who are given gifts of clothing and personal items at nursing homes, the Long Island shelter, and DOVE.

"We raise funds in the month of December," said Donovan, adding everything is done anonymously.

"We know who needs it," said Donovan of the club's list compiled by the membership. Members gather and deliver Christmas baskets "very quietly" outside doors and recipients never know the source.

The 100 members only meet three or four times a year, according to Donovan who described Sunday morning meetings at Adams Inn or Quantum Yacht Club.

In the beginning, Donovan said the late Rev. Cornelius J. Heerey, then pastor of Sacred Heart Church offered blessings and a homily at the group's meetings.

The late Richard Koch founded the Quincy City Club. His son, Mayor-elect Thomas Koch, is current president.

Morrissey Suggests Display Flag On Raised Center Pole

Sen. Michael Morrissey has suggested a permanent solution to the problems that have been raised over the display of the American flag at the north entrance to Wollaston Beach.

Simply raise the center pole higher than the others and fly Old Glory there, above the flags of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the Department of Conservation & Recreation (DCR).

The controversy erupted on Page 1 of The Quincy Star last week when Henry Fisher of Marina Drive, a World War II veteran, complained that the banners were being flown all wrong.

The DCR, which manages Wollaston Beach, disrespected the American flag, he said, by flying it sometimes on the right pole, sometimes on the left, sometimes in the middle.

And, said Fisher, the flag is flown 24 hours a day at the spot near the intersection of East Squantum Street and Quincy Shore Drive, when it should either be illuminated or taken down at night.

The last move by the DCR was to move the U. S. flag to the pole on the right, an accepted procedure for displaying the flag.

"Although I do not believe the current display is incorrect, I feel having the center flagpole raised and the U. S. flag moved to the center may clear up any confusion or questions of those who see it," said Morrissey in a letter to DCR Commissioner Richard Sullivan.

"Perhaps it would be possible to replace the center flagpole with a taller one or to somehow raise the base in a cost effective manner."

The senator, who lives in Squantum, across the bay from the flagpoles, had a solution to the question of flying the flag at night, too.

"Perhaps," he said, "the use of solar-powered lighting could be explored for the nighttime flying of the U. S. Flag."

To Benefit Quincy Youth

License Board Commissioners Join Dunkin' Donuts Shop Owners To Kick-Off Holiday Gift Drive

Local Dunkin' Donuts shop owners Victor and Octavio Carvalho have partnered with the Quincy Police and Fire Department to collect holiday gifts for disadvantaged youth in Quincy.

Now through Friday, Dec. 21, the Carvalhos will collect gifts for children of all ages at six of their shops located in Quincy. All donations will go towards boys and girls affiliated with the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

Non perishable food donations will also be accepted.

Dunkin' Donuts customers are invited to take an ornament from the shop's Christmas tree and return it with a new, unwrapped gift that is appropriate for a child of the age and gender that is specified on the back of the ornament. Dunkin' Donuts shops that are participating in this program are located at: 543 Southern Artery, 825 Southern Artery, 1250 Hancock Street and 1462 Hancock Street, 366 Centre Street and 100 Granite Street.

The Germantown Neighborhood Center is a private, non-profit organization. Their Annual Holiday Program supports families of low to moderate income who are in need by providing nutritious meals and gifts, as well as confidential advocacy, crisis intervention and counseling services to area residents.

BONE SPURS

Bone spurs are protrusions that grow along the edge of a bone. Although they can occur on any bone in the body, they often appear on the heels. They occur because they body creates calcium deposits as the plantar fascia pulls at the bottom of the foot. (The plantar fascia is a band of tissue that runs along the bottom of the foot.) Bone spurs can cause a lot of pain in the rear portion of the foot, especially when walking or standing. The podiatrist can help determine what is causing the strain, and he or she may recommend a prescription orthotic. Other treatments include stretching, weight loss, and wearing shoes with a supportive heel cup.

Most people suffer from some kind of foot disorder at some point in the lives, from bone spurs and bunions to nail problems and disease. Heredity, poor foot care, injuries, and medical conditions are often the culprits, but poorly fitting and/or inappropriate footwear can also cause problems. Whatever condition your feet are in, we will treat them with care and compassion to restore comfort and ease of movement. We're located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, with office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. PH: 781-986-3668. I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

P.S: Women have a higher incidence of heel spurs than men.

Council Rejects Zoning Change Near Waterfront

The City Council Monday rejected one proposed zoning change and tabled a zoning by-law revision that would have impacted two properties near the waterfront.

After considerable debate, efforts to rezone 10 acres of waterfront property at Follett Street, Quincy Point, from its current Industrial A designation to a Planned Unit Development (PUD) zone failed.

In addition, councillors rejected a one sentence change in the city's zoning bylaws which would have affected a proposal for 80 apartments on 1.5 acres at 260 Victory Road near Marina Bay.

The council majority did support the PUD designation by a 5-3 vote but rezoning requires a two-thirds vote or six votes in this case.

Councillors John Keenan and Joseph Finn, along with Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee voted against the zoning change. Councillor Michael McFarland was absent for the discussion and vote.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said that he proposed the PUD zoning in an effort to protect the area. With a PUD designation, Raymondi said that the City Council would have final control over any new project in the area.

The issue created controversy in the Quincy Point neighborhood off Washington Street. In October, dozens of neighbors, speaking on both sides of the issue, filled council chambers for a public hearing.

Opponents submitted a petition signed by 300 residents.

Keenan, Finn and McNamee cited that petition and the delicate environmental issues on the Follett Street property which currently houses a marina and a restaurant, The Inn At Bay Pointe.

The second zoning proposal, a bylaw revision, would have created a blanket change in the city's zoning allowing developers to construct apartment units with 325 square feet per unit in contrast to current provisions requiring 2,500 square feet.

The zoning change would support plans for an 80-unit apartment building at 260 Victory Road, a project proposed by Thomas O'Connell and 260 Victory Road, LLC.

In 2004, the Zoning Board of Appeals allowed a Special Permit for O'Connell's project. However, that permit is the subject of litigation instituted by his neighbors at Marina Bay in Seaport and Chapman's Point.

Opponents state that O'Connell can only build 25 units under the current zoning.

After the meeting, O'Connell said that he does not plan on changing his proposal for 80 units on the property.

No action was taken. City Council President Doug Couto said the council will revisit the issue in January.

Koch Names 12 More To Top Posts

(Cont'd From Page 1)

• Purchasing Agent - Rhonda Merrill, director of administrative services for Norfolk County who served in the administration of Mayor James Sheets.

• Director of Inspectional Services - Jay Duca, who was first appointed by Phelan, now reappointed by Koch.

• Director of Information Technology - Charles Phelan (no relation to the mayor), chief information officer for Norfolk County, who held the same job in Quincy for six years.

• Director of Recreation - Barry Welch, first named to the position by Mayor Frank McCauley.

• Executive Assistant, Office of the Mayor - Christopher Cassani, a recent Boston University graduate.

* Treasurer-Collector - Warren Sproul, former chief financial officer for the city of Salem and an accountant for the city of Quincy for 22 years, first appointed by Mayor McCauley.

• Human Resources Director - Stephen J. McGrath, a lawyer who served as Quincy City Solicitor from 1990 to 2002 and a city councillor before that.

Earlier, the new mayor named James Fatseas to be his chief of staff, James Timmins city solicitor, Helen Murphy operations director and Chris Walker policy director and director of communications.

"I believe we have put together a team that brings a great mix of fresh perspective from the private sector and a tremendous amount of government experience," said Koch.

"I have high expectations for this group and I believe our residents will be pleased with the results."

rate will be set.
Bills with the new rate will be mailed before December 31.

For FY2008, residents owning homes with an average valuation of $355,100 can expect a $65 increase over last year's real estate tax bill.

The 2008 levy limit, the total amount that the city could raise through real estate taxes in 2008, is $163,431,103.

However, the approved tax levy, the amount that will actually be raised through real estate taxes in 2008, will be $149,071,604 or $14,359,499 lower than the city's levy limit.

With over $14 million in untouched taxing capacity, Quincy is in excellent financial shape, according to Fantucchio, who said, "It's very good because we have stayed within our limitation."

Fantucchio noted that Quincy has such benefits as free trash pickup and all-day kindergarten while other cities and towns are closing schools and asking voters to approve Proposition 2 1/2 overrides. Last year's excess capacity was $8,696,104.

Councillors questioned Fantucchio regarding the recently completed real estate revaluations. Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond cited a two-family home in his ward which has increased in recent years from approximately $276,000 to the recent revaluation of $354,500.

Raymond said his constituent wanted to know how her home value could increase, and her tax bill increase by $352, in a depressed housing market.

Fantucchio said there are increases as well as decreases in values in a flat market. She cited tax and valuation data from Braintree, Milton and Randolph.

I'd love to see us get through this holiday season without a tragic fire incident.

Decorative lighting, candles, parties with drinking and smoking, and the start of the heating season all increase the probability of fire. Therefore, kindly adhere to the following safety recommendations:

Make certain that all lighting has been approved by a testing agency such as Underwriters Laboratory (UL). Do not overload electrical outlets or power strips. Discard any extension cord or lighting sets with frayed cords or broken plugs. Do not leave extension cords beneath rugs where they can fray resulting in a short circuit.

Unattended burning candles account for 60% of all candle fires. Statistically, December has almost twice the number of home candle fires compared to an average month. Stay in the room with burning candles. Be sure to snuff out candles before falling asleep, going out or leaving a room.

Burn candles inside a one-foot circle of safety giving them ample free space from combustibles that can come in contact with flame. Use candles out of the reach of children and pets. Burn candles on a noncombustible surface such as a ceramic saucer or plate.

If there must be smoking within the home, provide smokers with large, deep ashtrays. At the end of the party, I suggest that those ashtrays be collected and placed within the sink and not immediately discarded in the trash.

Meanwhile 33% of residential fire deaths are caused by carelessly disposed of smoking materials igniting upholstered furniture, mattresses or bedding while alcohol use is typically a contributing factor. Be mindful of discarding smoking material safely.

Cooking equipment is the leading cause of home fires. Unattended cooking is the principal behavioral factor behind these fires. It is too easy during the holiday season to begin cooking and become distracted with other holiday matters. If you must leave the kitchen, bring a potholder with you as a reminder of your efforts in the kitchen.

If you are using a live Christmas tree this year, install it away from fireplaces, heat sources and exits. You're all aware of the potential fire hazard with a dry tree while distance from heat sources will help retard the drying process. Make certain though that the stand contains water and is checked daily.

An ignited tree can become an immediate inferno so access to unobstructed exits is imperative. It is especially imperative to adhere to the recommendations above regarding electrical wiring and sets of lights on live trees. Make certain the potential for sparking or short circuits is eliminated.

I wish you all the best and happiest holidays yet. Please keep safety in mind during all your holiday efforts and celebrations. This article and others are my gift to you, while a season without the tragedy of a house fire during this special time of year will be your gift to us in return.

Thank you.

Rehired Police Officer To Sue City For Compensation

Counsel for Quincy Police Officer Timothy Kaes has filed notice that his client intends to sue Chief Robert Crowley and the city of Quincy for his losses when he was fired and humiliated for no just cause and rehired without recompense.

Attorney Richard C. Bardi said the price for Kaes' "severe emotional distress and anguish, lost wages and public humiliation" is $500,000 and he offered to discuss mediation, arbitration, compromise or settlement of the claim.

Chief Crowley declined to comment on the prospective suit.

The case began, according to Bardi, on Sept. 27, 2004, when Kaes was in an early morning auto accident and went to the emergency room at Quincy Medical Center where he was cited by Police Sgt. Patrick Flaherty for leaving the scene of an accident.

Bardi said Flaherty told Chief Crowley that Kaes was not driving under the influence of alcohol but Crowley told him to arrest Kaes on that charge anyway. However, a clerk magistrate in Dedham District Court dismissed all the charges.

Crowley then appealed the magistrate's ruling to the district attorney, Bardi said, and the charges were reinstated. Crowley requested that Kaes be dismissed from the force and Mayor William Phelan fired him. He was acquitted of all charges in Dedham court.

The city of Quincy still refused to rehire him, said Bardi, until an arbitrator ruled that he had been terminated without just cause. He was then reinstated, said his attorney, but the city failed to repay him for losses incurred as a result of his termination.

"It is our opinion," said Bardi in his notice of intent to file, "that Chief Crowley abused his power as Police Chief and maliciously prosecuted Officer Kaes.

"Further, we maintain that Chief Crowley intentionally inflicted emotional distress upon Officer Kaes, interfered with Officer Kaes' advantageous contractual relationship with the city of Quincy and violated Officer Kaes' constitutional rights."

Certified letters of intent were sent to Crowley, Phelan, City Clerk Joe Shea and City Council President Doug Gutro and referred to City Solicitor Monica Conygham.

A Job Well Done

(This suspect is just disgusting.) On Wednesday, Dec. 12, at approximately 2:15 a.m., Officer Chris Klier was on routine patrol in the area of the Hess gas station on Hancock Street in North Quincy when he heard the sound of a car crash. He turned around and observed that one vehicle had crashed into the rear of a second vehicle, which was now pulling into a parking area. The other vehicle then sped off south-bound on Hancock Street.

Officer Klier informed dispatch that the suspect vehicle just caused an accident and was fleeing the scene. The officer then activated his blue lights and siren as he attempted to catch up to the suspect vehicle, which had turned onto West Squantum Street and then took a quick turn down Holmes Street.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer Klier observed the suspect vehicle rapidly accelerate to a speed of approximately 50 miles per hour as it sped through the stop sign at Billings Road. As Officer Klier neared the same intersection, he slowed down for safety purposes and watched as the suspect vehicle drifted to the left, then crashed through a chain-link fence, into a parked car and then into a tree.

Officer Klier instructed headquarters to send an ambulance, then approached the suspect vehicle cautiously, observing a male driver and a female front-seated passenger. Both front and side airbags had deployed and there was extensive damage to the vehicle. Officer Klier ordered the suspect, who was talking with the female passenger, to show his hands (for weapons), but he kept talking and ignored the instructions. The female passenger was yelling that her legs were trapped.

Officers Jim Parisi and Jay Grazioso arrived on scene and they told both parties in the car to unlock the door, but the doors remained locked. The occupants were told that a window would be broken to gain access to the car. The driver just laughed. To protect the occupants, the officers attempted to break the rear windows without spraying glass on the driver and his passenger, but the window stayed intact.

The suspect/driver then said, "Ha-ha, bullet-proof glass!" When told again to exist the vehicle, the suspect/driver reclined his seat, lit a cigarette and said, "After a couple more hauls."

During his interaction with the suspect, Officer Klier was making observations about his sobriety and determined the suspect had slow and slurred speech, nor was he concerned that he just crashed his car and injured a friend. At this time, Sgt. Richard Gilmore, the Quincy Fire Department and Fallon Ambulance arrived on scene. After additional attempts to get the suspect to exit the vehicle and get help to his passenger, the Quincy Fire Department applied their tools to the rear window.

Officers removed the suspect without incident, but once he was informed he was under arrest, he resisted by stiffening his arms, which resulted in additional officers handcuffing him. The passenger's legs were trapped under the dashboard and after a few minutes, the Fire Department extricated her and Fallon Ambulance transported her to the hospital. The suspect/driver was first transported to Quincy Medical Center, so Officers Paul Holland and Ron McKim were dispatched to guard him.

As the attending physician, who is eight months pregnant, treated the suspect, he spit blood in her face, then stood up and urinated all over the floor. Once medically cleared, the suspect was transported to the station for booking.

The suspect then complained of pain and was checked out by Fallon Ambulance E.M.T.s, who provided him with a head bandage. Once back in his cell, the suspect took off his bandage and defecated in it, then smeared his own feces all over the glass door to his cell.

The suspect, a 29-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with "Operating Under the Influence of Alcoholic Beverage, Leaving the Scene of an Accident with Property Damage, Failure to Stop for the Police, Reckless Operation of a Motor Vehicle" and numerous traffic violations. Officer Klier also charged the suspect with "Assault and Battery on a Pregnant Person and two counts of Vandalism with Noxious Fluids" for urinating at the hospital and smearing feces in the cellblock.

Nice Work!
In this case, the officers protected themselves physically by demanding that the suspect show his hands and they had sufficient personnel to restrain him, but the suspect put the officers and medical personnel at risk when he exposed them to multiple bodily excretions.

Fortunately, due to training and experience, the officers were able to take his man off the street!

More Scams!

Readers have been forwarding incidents that they have been solicited by. One scam was from a company named "Lortz Francis and Associates," informing the "winner" that he won over $250,000 U.S. dollars from "OnlineGambling.com."

The scam is the usual ploy where a check (a copy appears at the right) is enclosed with instructions to cash the check, then send a portion back to pay for the "processing fee."

To unravel the scam is easy. By going online, so much information is available.

First, by checking the area code of the telephone

THREE THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED TWENTY AND 00/100 DOLLARS number, it can be determined that the number comes back to Ontario, Canada, where many of these scams originate. A Google check of the name, "Lortz Francis" showed no match.

Another method to determine that it is a scam is to scrutinize the structure of the letter: look at the wording, look at the misuse of certain words and look for misspelled words. No legitimate company would submit such a poorly written letter.

Another scam is from "A Corporate Financial Service Provider" (no name provided) from the Channel Islands, stating one of their customers died recently and had no next of kin, leaving 24.3 million pounds.

Since no one applied for the money, the group matched the customer name with your last name and wants to split the money with you. The only thing you need to do is provide your full name, private telephone number fax number and location where the money will be deposited.

That's too much information to be giving out. As ridiculous as this sounds, scammers keep doing this because it works!

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Fend Off The Flu This Season

(NU)—If you find yourself coming down with a bad case of the sniffles this winter, you are not the only one. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that each year 35 to 50 million Americans contract some strain of the flu, and children miss approximately 22 million days of school due to symptoms caused by colds and flu. Many of these diseases are spread from touching infected surfaces and then one's nose, mouth and eyes—not just through coughing and sneezing.

This year, protect your family and stay healthy with these simple tips that will keep you germ-free:

It is an obvious but often over-looked step—wash your hands frequently with warm water and soap. According to Dr. Charles "Dr. Germ" Gerba at the University of Arizona, the process of hand washing alone can reduce illness rates by 30 to 50 percent.

Know the limitations of sanitizers and disinfectants. Many of these products kill bacteria that lie on the surface but don't provide long-term protection. Many hard surfaces can become re-contaminated with bacteria or viruses within seconds of being cleaned. Pathogens that cause respiratory infections, particularly in children, typically survive for up to three days on surfaces, according to a study by Dr. Gerba.

Some great products to try this season include:

New products like Unelko's non-toxic, biodegradable 1-Step Clean & Shield (www.unelko.com), the only surface-care product that deep-cleans and forms an organic, protective shield on surfaces—preventing the growth of bacteria, mold and mildew. This product applies an invisible water, soil and stain repellent barrier that lasts for days, providing one-step cleaning and long-term surface protection.

Children's backpacks carry germs into your home and, when thrown on the floor, those germs spread. Try eco-friendly cleaners for your floors. Steam-cleaning products like Shark's Steam Mop (www.SharkSteamMop.com) turn ordinary tap water into deep-cleaning steam that lifts dirt out of hard surfaces, locking it away in a microfiber pad and outperforming chemical-pad mops—keeping your home clean and toxic free. More than 150 chemicals found in the average home have been linked to allergies, birth defects, cancer and psychological abnormalities, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

New Exercise Program? Check With Doctor First

Q. I get fitness magazines in the mail and read about all types of exercise programs on the Internet. At the end of many articles it says to see a physician before starting an exercise program. What would my doctor look for in order to determine if I can start an exercise program?

A. Exercise stresses the body's muscles, joints and internal organs. Making sure your body is ready and able to endure these stresses is the main reason to see your physician before beginning any exercise program.

In most cases, your physician would be excited to know that you are exercising and taking care of your body. Your physician would need to determine whether there are any risk factors — potential or current medical conditions — that might need to be taken into consideration before you begin your exercise program.

Risk factors can include age (men over 40 and women over 50), a current or past medical history of diabetes, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, heart disease, osteoporosis, arthritis or pulmonary conditions such as asthma. Other conditions involving the kidney, liver and thyroid in addition to your cardiovascular history also are considered. Past surgeries, joint replacements, broken bones, fusions and other conditions that seem to have lingered for a while all should be reviewed before starting an exercise program.

Not only should your medical history be reviewed by your physician before you begin to exercise, but also other life factors such as pregnancy (current and past), your current fitness status and even if you smoke. All of these factors play a role in the type of exercise program that will be best for you.

The main reason the articles you have read suggest you see a physician before exercising is to keep you safe. Due to the nature of how the exercise program was designed, it may or may not be what is right for YOU. The program displayed in the magazine or online may require you to be at a certain fitness level, strength level, or have a cardiovascular base for the program to be effective AND safe.

Routinely seeing your physician should be a part of your overall fitness plan. Keeping your physician in the loop about your activity, status can help not only in your medical care but also in your overall health and wellness plan. Discuss with your physician the workouts you are interested in completing, and follow his or her recommendations for safely and effectively reaching your fitness goals.

If you have a fitness or training question, write to Andrea Wyatt of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

High-Acid Drinks And Tooth Erosion, Cavities

(NU) — Wondering why your pearly whites have turned into pearly off-whites? Part of the answer could be in the mug on your desk.

High-acid drinks such as soda and coffee can have a lasting negative effect on the appearance and health of teeth. According to the American Dental Association, it is widely accepted that acid in food and beverages plays a major role in the development of enamel erosion. Some dentists also warn that high-acid soft drinks and coffees can expedite the development of cavities.

"Teeth become susceptible to cavities when the acid level of saliva falls below a certain point," said Dr. T. Richard Ziehlmer, a dentist in Tucson, Ariz. "If the acid level of the saliva stays below this point for an extended period of time, the outer layers of tooth structure begin to lose minerals, and a cavity can form. Beverages that are high in sugar and acid content can cause the pH level of the saliva to reach this critical point."

Bearing this in mind, some coffee manufacturers have begun to offer low-acid brews that still maintain a full-bodied flavor.

In regards to tooth erosion and the development of cavities, Ziehlmer says that drinks such as Tyler's Coffee are good alternatives to more acidic beverages. He advises his patients not to consume beverages that are high in acid or sugar but notes that if someone chooses to drink such a beverage, it is best to drink it quickly to minimize the impact on the teeth.

"The worst thing anyone can do is to sip these types of beverages," Ziehlmer said. "However, it is not very practical for someone to drink a hot cup of coffee quickly, so a coffee beverage that is free of acid, sugar or non-dairy creamer could decrease a person's risk for developing cavities."

Do Your Shoes Measure Up?

(NU)—When was the last time you had your feet measured? If you can't quite remember, your so-called tried-and-true shoes may have your feet crying out for a different size.

That's right, according to a recent survey conducted by the American Podiatric Medical Association (APMA), 40 percent of male and female respondents couldn't remember the last time their feet were measured. Additionally, 65 percent of American women between the ages of 18 and 49 have not had their feet measured within the last five years—meaning they are probably trekking around in shoes that don't fit.

And since the survey also reports that 84 percent of both male and female respondents chose comfort over style when buying non-athletic shoes, it is surprising that foot measurements have gone by the wayside.

Many people don't realize that shoe size can change with age, from manufacturer to manufacturer and, for many women, during pregnancy. Not to mention, an ill-fitting shoe can wreak havoc on your feet. With the possibility of painful blisters and unsightly corns to unnerving neuromas and irritating bunions, there's nothing like finding a shoe with the perfect fit.

Here are a few tips from the APMA that will help you put your best foot forward:

It is important to remember that when you are getting fitted for a new shoe, you should wait until later in the day because your feet swell throughout the afternoon. And be sure to stand when your feet are being measured or fitted.

Don't be surprised if your feet are not the same size. If you have this problem, try on both shoes, and walk around the store, preferably on a hard surface.

Stay away from shoes that require a "break-in" period. Properly fitting shoes should be comfortable immediately.

Conduct a "dress rehearsal." Try on shoes while you are wearing the same type of socks or stockings you expect to wear with the shoes.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

WOULD YOU BATHE YOUR TEETH IN ACID?

There is more to worry about than sugar content and weight gain when you drink soft drinks. Consider the fact that many carbonated sodas are nearly as corrosive to dental enamel as battery acid. While non-cola drinks are less acidic than cola drinks in general, the erosive potential of cola is ten times that of fruit juices during the first three minutes of consuming them. When researchers weighed slices of enamel from freshly extracted teeth 48 hours after they were immersed in 20 different commercial soft drinks, they found that the samples lost more than 5% of their weight. If you must drink colors, use a straw and brush your teeth afterward.

This informative column has been brought to you in the interest of better dental health. Good experience with dentistry is based on making the right choice in a family dentist and in taking the right steps to keep dental costs at a minimum through self care at home between visits. We strive to teach good oral hygiene. In the long run you will have better dental health and, of course, spend far fewer dollars. Please call 617-494-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street where we are currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. While battery acid has a pH of 1.0 and pure water has a pH (at room temperature) of 7.0, many sodas are in the 2.5 range.

Guest Room Chills Mother-In-Law

Q. Last year when my mother-in-law came to visit for the holidays, she complained daily that her room — our spare guest room — was too cold. This is despite me going in there twice a day with a room thermometer that showed the temperature was the same as the rest of the house. She didn't complain about any other area of the house being cold. This year she's visiting again. How can I convince her the room is warm enough without running up a huge heating bill just to bring the guest room temp up 10 degrees? — Frustrated Son-in-Law in Little Rock

A. That could be a tough order. Does she say the room gets cold at a specific time, like during the night? Or does she say it is cold all of the time? Because she's sleeping there, and reduced activity can lower our body temperature, she may feel colder after going to bed. Also, if the house has a thermostat that automatically lowers the temperature at designated times (like overnight), she may be noticing that change. Or the room could have a draft that other parts of the house don't have.

The best way to get an idea of whether the room is actually colder or not is to spend a night or two in it. If you feel the chill as well, you'll be better able to track down the source. A partially closed register poor weather stripping on the windows, a cross-draft from some other part of the house — these can be quickly remedied.

If the room doesn't feel cold at all and there are no odd drafts or anything, your mother-in-law may be feeling cold because her body temperature drops at night, or maybe she's feeling homesick and uncomfortable in the guest room. In this case, find out how her own bedroom is equipped — with an electric blanket, perhaps, or a humidifier, a television or some other comfort — and provide at least some of those same items in the guest room so that she feels more at home.

Home Heating Hints Cool Ways To Stay Warm Without Breaking The Bank

(NAPS) — Here are tips to help keep your home comfortable without sending your heating bills through the roof.

Take advantage of federal tax credits. Homeowners can receive a tax credit of up to $500 per home for qualifying improvements made in 2006, 2007 and 2008. Tax credits are available for many home improvements including high-efficiency heating and cooling equipment, such as propane water heaters and furnaces. For more information, visit www.energytaxincentive.org.

• Keep out the cold. Experts say the average American home loses between 10 and 50 percent of its energy through inadequate insulation and inefficient lights and appliances. Insulate, especially in attics and basements, replace old, drafty windows and weather-strip doors.

• A time-set thermostat can cut annual heating bills by as much as 10 percent per year by turning your thermostat back 10 to 15 degrees for eight hours a day.

• Upgrade to an ENERGY STAR-rated furnace or boiler to reduce heating bills by almost 30 percent.

• Always be prepared. Discuss fuel payment plan options with your propane retailer. Many retailers have budget payment plans that let you spread your projected annual cost of propane over many months, lowering the costs of seasonally higher bills. Arrange a regular propane delivery schedule with your propane supplier so you're never without fuel.

• Inspect and tune up your heating system regularly to keep it efficient.

• Switch to a propane water heater. Over time, propane water heaters can save up to a third compared to electricity and they heat more than twice as much water in an hour as a comparable electric model, reports the Propane Education & Research Council.

• Turn down your water heater from the standard 120 degrees to 115 degrees. You could save more than 10 percent on your water-heating bill.

• Change your furnace filter monthly. Clean filters will increase efficiency. If you're on a monthly payment plan, use receipt of your monthly propane bill as a reminder.

• Wrap your water heater in an insulating blanket.

• Increase your water heater's efficiency by draining it every six months to remove mineral deposits and sediment.

• Install flow-restricting showerheads. You can cut hot water usage by up to 50 percent without affecting shower pressure.

• Run washing machines, clothes dryers and dishwashers only with a full load.

For more information or to learn more about propane, visit www.usepropane.com or call (202) 452-8975.

Choosing The Right Kind Of Mortgage

(NU) — Homebuying can be a stressful or uncertain business at times. In today's market, there's much debate about what type of mortgage to get—an adjustable-rate or a fixed mortgage—and how do you know when it's time to consider refinancing an adjustable-rate mortgage?

Market Street Mortgage, one of the nation's leading retail originators of residential mortgage loans, offers these tips:

If you are buying a home now, consider whether you'll be able to handle the possibility of rate increases before choosing an adjustable-rate mortgage. Don't let the decision be simply "What is the cheaper payment to get me into the house" because it may not be the best choice for the future. Depending on your situation, you could also consider a five-year ARM if you know you'll move before it starts adjusting, or if your projected income will also increase. On the other hand, for stability, select a fixed-rate mortgage to provide a steady principal and interest part of your mortgage payment.

Take the time to compare the two options side by side. Ask yourself how much you are really saving each month by choosing the adjustable-rate mortgage over the fixed. Is it worth the risk of how the rate will adjust in the near future? Or is it worth the cost of refinancing later?

And what if you already have an adjustable-rate mortgage? Review your documents and determine what the initial fixed period is. For example, a 5/1 ARM is fixed for the first five years and then adjusts every year after that. So, if you plan on remaining in your home once the loan starts to adjust, you should determine whether you'll be able to afford the new monthly payment that will go into effect. Get in touch with your mortgage consultant before you reach the adjustment time, so you can start tracking rates and reviewing your options.

Talk with a mortgage consultant so they can provide you with an analysis and the right tools to assist you in making your decision.

JENNIFER KERN (right) receives the Jack Conway Co. Turkey award from company President Dick Cahill during the annual Thanksgiving Awards Breakfast at Plimoth Plantation. The awards are presented each year to agents who demonstrate company and team spirit and do good works in their communities.

Jennifer Kern Wins Conway Award

Jennifer Kern, an agent in the Jack Conway Co. Quincy office, recently received the company's special Turkey award during the annual Thanksgiving Awards Breakfast held at Plimoth Plantation.

Kern received a check for $25 for her good work and professional performance. Jack Conway Co.

President Dick Cahill presented the award. Jennifer is a full-time, full-service agent whose success results from her positive attitude, company loyalty and service to the community.

Kern was also recognized for her work as part of the Planning with the Real Estate team which raised money for Habitat For Humanity. She earned a spot in the finals of the event.

The Turkey awards are presented each year to Jack Conway Co. agents who are selected by their coworkers for hard work and team participation and who demonstrate good character and high community and professional standards.

Non-employees who have made a difference in the community and demonstrated high ethical standards are also eligible for the award. Jennifer Kern, a full-time, full-service agent, was selected as the winner of the Turkey award.

Hints For The Home

Make A Clean Break From Toxic Products

(NAPS) — Here's news that may help you breathe easier: You don't have to use a household cleanser that leaves unhealthy compounds in the air.

That is because you can join the recent green movement in helping to eliminate these volatile villains by reverting to all-natural solutions, saving the environment outdoors as well as indoors. Here are some tips:

All-Over Odors

Opening the windows is a good first step to freshen a home, but on cold days that may not be possible and it's often not enough. A better idea would be to use an all-natural device that traps and eliminates stale air and unpleasant smells through vortex cleaning action technology. The device, called HoMedics breathe air revitalizer, uses the power of water and natural botanicals. Products such as these are as close as you can get to "washing" your air without exposing pets or children to harmful chemicals.

Kitchen

Though many are not aware, kitchens surpass every room in terms of germs. But before you turn to chemical cleansers, remember natural products are just as effective. A solution of equal parts vinegar and water cleans germs and grease that collect on counters, stoves and other appliances and is safe to use inside refrigerators.

Baking soda eliminates pesky odors in spaces we often forget. Storing an open box in the fridge and replacing every three months keeps foods fresh and minimizes the scent of spoilage. Running the dishwasher in the rinse cycle with one cup of baking soda eliminates the stains and odors that hide inside.

Bathroom

Clean your shower as well as it cleans you, without resorting to harsh chemicals. Cut a lemon in half, sprinkle it with baking soda and use it like a sponge to clean and shine showerheads, faucets and other brass or copper bathroom fixtures. For toilet bowls, use pure vinegar to scrub away stains and germs.

Bedroom

The bedroom should be a safe haven from toxins and pollutants. A mix of equal parts water and lemon juice cleans mirrors with a streak-free shine. For green-friendly furniture polish, combine two cups of olive oil with one cup pulp-free lemon juice.

It is easy to maintain a fresh environment with an all-natural arsenal, so don't be afraid to revamp your cleaning repository.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

Fifth-grade students in Quincy's public and parochial schools were invited again this year to submit articles for this special issue of The Quincy Sun.

The theme is: "If I Could Have One Wish Come True This Holiday Season It Would Be..."

We enjoy sharing their young thoughts with you. Publishing these articles each year has become a holiday tradition that we look forward to and we are sure you do, too.

It would be to be older and to have a Lamborghini.

Davon Point Webster

It would be to have cheerful Christmas for the less fortunate. I want them to have shelter and get presents and be happy.

Naya Duka Point Webster

It would be to have special Christmas Eve Snow on December 24th.

We want to thank Colleen Roberts, Director of Curriculum, for coordinating the public schools' participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We also thank Ms. Catherine Cameron, principal of St. Mary's School; and Sister Catherine Lee, principal of St. Ann's School.

To all who took part, we extend warmest holiday greetings.

Thank you all, most sincerely snowball fights

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

(Cont'd From Page 24)

It would be to have the entire Ology series. It mentions so much about what I like from how to be a wizard, to Egyptian Pharos, to dragons, myths and pirates. I love magic and fantasy so much.

Nora DeBonis
Bernazzani School

It would be for the soldiers to come home. I want the soldiers to be home because their families have not seen them in a long time.

Mark Gillespie
Bernazzani School

It would be for my entire family to eat dinner together. Sometimes not all my family members can come home to Christmas dinner.

Monica Hayah
Bernazzani School

It would be to have every human being on earth get a free vacation to Walt Disney World. I really wish this could happen every once and awhile.

Andy Johnson
Bernazzani School

It would be to get a puppy. If I had a puppy I would name it Peter, Sylar, or Jimmy Billy Bob.

Eric Casnelli
Bernazzani School

It would be for every family to go to Walt Disney World. It would make people forget about their worries, and they could be together.

Zachary Kaplan
Bernazzani School

It would be for a million more wishes. Probably my favorite thing to wish for when I am an adult would be money, and I would also wish to lose a few pounds.

Scottie McGlone
Bernazzani School

It would be for the recipe for Aussie fries. They are my favorite food, and if I knew the recipe, I would have them for breakfast, lunch and dinner 24/7.

Greg Miller
Bernazzani School

It would be to go to California again to see my Aunt Sue and Uncle Rick.

Amy Murphy
Bernazzani School

It would be to have a great Christmas. I would like a Play Station, a baseball video game and a remote control car that can jump.

Thomas Murphy
Bernazzani School

It would be to have a puppy named Terri. I would play with it all the time and every night I would feed it.

Kaitlin MacDonald
Atherton Hough

It would be to get a puppy. There is a dog named Sable at the animal shelter and he is so sweet. He is a black Cocker Spaniel.

Samantha Feeney
Atherton Hough

It would be for a dirt bike so I could go off big jumps and go fast.

Michael Kostka
Atherton Hough

It would be to get the whole series of Inuyasha books. I would read them non-stop all the time.

Tanya Connor
Atherton Hough

It would be for a Calvin & Hobbes comic book. The book is very funny and I would try and read some of the book every night.

Terrol Stark
Atherton Hough

It would be to see my grandfather Ducky because he was very nice. I would want him to be alive so my nana, dad and his brothers could see him.

Casey Perry
Atherton Hough

It would be to have a monkey named Chives. I would feed him fruits and vegetables and he would play ball with me.

Matt Riley
Atherton Hough

It would be to have a laptop so it could help me with my homework.

Brandon Paulo
Atherton Hough

It would be to have a puppy so it can teach me responsibility. I would name my puppy, Buddy.

Seanna Villarreal
Atherton Hough

It would be to have a movie theater in my room and the seats would fold back into a bed.

Bobbie Mills
Atherton Hough

It would be that animals would not be abused any more.

Maria Kerchner

Mary Cronin
St. Ann's School

It would be to have my mom be blessed because she takes good care of me and health for my family.

Vanessa Trifone
St. Ann's School

It would be to get a dog. One reason I want a dog is they're so cute and they're great animals. They are also lots of fun and if you train them they can do tricks.

Francesca Petrucci
Bernazzani School

It would be to end world hunger. The children in Mali are all hungry because there is not enough food to feed them all. I also hope no one goes hungry over the holidays.

Cindy Wu
Bernazzani School

It would be for every person to have a place to be for Christmas. The holidays are when you spend time with family and friends, and some people can not do that.

Isabella Falco

North Quincy Has High Expectations

By SEAN BRENNAN

North Quincy, the defending co-champions of the Atlantic Coast League's North Division, have reloaded this winter, and should once again be a major player for another run at a league title.

The Raiders finished 2006-2007 with a 16-5 record and entered the South Sectional tournament as the #4 seed. The team's post-season run was ended prematurely with a 62-50 first-round loss to Durfee High School, but this year's team returns a handful of players whose game experience and senior leadership should propel North to even greater heights in 2008.

"We have the potential to be a strong team," said first-year head coach Michael Jorgenson, "but we will have our hands full with all ACL opponents. Whitman-Hanson will be strong again this season and it wouldn't surprise me to see them there at the end with us again.

"But the team has high expectations and with a number of experienced players returning from last year's North Division champions we should be in good shape when the tournament comes around."

Returning this season from last year's team are Rebecca Goreham, Paige Bonanni, Mary Kate Stille, Kasey O'Connell, Siobhan Carnell, Jess Howlett, Kathleen Lynch and Rushri Wijesundera.

"I have high expectations for a number of our returning players," added Jorgenson. "With Goreham we return the school's all-time rebounder, Bonanni gives us senior leadership and youngsters Kathleen Lynch and Rushri Wijesundera give us some added energy."

Jorgenson, who takes over the head coaching duties this season from Doug MacFarlane, has been a part of the Red Raider basketball program for the last seven years, five years as the freshman coach and the last two as the jayvee coach. He has been an English teacher at NQHS for eleven years.

"I preach fundamentals everyday in practice," he said. "We started out the preseason with a number of scrimmages and practices (and coaching staff) have tried to instill in the team a defensive mindset."

"This year we will change what needs to be changed everyday, every practice and every game. If we can stick with the good fundamentals, rebounding, playing defense and limiting our mistakes on the court, we have the potential to continue the good things that this team accomplished last year."

The Raiders opened their season on Dec. 10 with a tough non-league loss to Brockton High School, 56-50.

North led 49-48 midway through the fourth quarter, but Brockton pulled away in the end to earn the victory.

"We played well and came out firing in the opening half," said Jorgenson, "but playing against Brockton is always a test and they are always a tough opponent."

Goreham finished with team high 14 points and Lynch ended the game with a double-double (12 points, 10 rebounds).

The Raiders played Whitman-Hanson HS on Tuesday in a rematch of last year's co-champions of the Atlantic Coast's North Division. The team is scheduled to play Falmouth HS at home on Friday (6:30 p.m.), and will be playing after Christmas in the Notre Dame Academy Tournament on Dec. 28 and 29.

Raiders Defeats B-R For First Win

The North Quincy Red Raiders picked up their first win of the young season last Friday night at home against Bridgewater-Raynham High School, 66-62.

The win marked the first victory for North (1-1) over B-R in 11 tries, dating back to the 2002 season.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Senior forward Marcellus Lee scored a career-high 30 points and finished with 14 rebounds, and senior captain Dennis Martin chipped in with multiple assists and 17 points from his guard position.

The Raiders played Tuesday night versus Atlantic Coast League foe, Whitman-Hanson High School, and are scheduled to tip-off on the road against Falmouth HS this Friday at 6:30 p.m.

North Quincy will play in the Val Moscato Tournament on Dec. 28 and 29.

Presidents Run Record To 4-0

The Quincy Presidents varsity wrestling team is off to a fast start this winter.

Winners of their first four matches, including a dominating 41-24 match win over Atlantic Coast League opponent Whitman-Hanson HS last Wednesday night, the Presidents look like they will be a force to reckon with this season.

Against W-H, Quincy won five consecutive matches in the middle weights to give them a commanding 29-6 lead, and the Presidents sealed the deal with wins at 112 pounds and 119 pounds.

Junior captain Paul Reggiannini won by technical fall at 145 pounds, and pins followed that win by Scott Griffin (152), James Nguyen (160), Zack Manning (171) and Steve Kamb (189) to give Quincy the 29-6 lead.

Luke McClellan's pin-win at 112 pounds sealed the match for Quincy, and Josh Gerry added the final points with a fall win at 119 pounds.

Quincy has a dual-meet against Plymouth South today (Wed.) at home (7 p.m.) and will be hosting a tri-quid this Saturday in the QHS East Gym beginning at 9 a.m.

Raiders Pin Rams for First Win Of Season

The wrestling season at North Quincy High School got off to a rousing start last week in a dual-meet with Marshfield High School in the NQHS gymnasium.

The Raiders (1-0) trailed the Rams, last year's Atlantic Coast League runner-up, 24-0 before rallying for a 36-33 come-from-behind victory.

Senior David Duong, wrestling at 130 pounds, pinned his opponent in the final match to earn his team six points and finish off the victory.

Other winners for the Raiders included Barry Mac (103 lbs.), Hung Lee (112 lbs.), and sophomore Colin Chen (125 lbs.) who earned his first varsity win.

The Raiders travel to Woburn High School today (Wed.) for a dual-meet before heading home on Saturday when the team will host a tri-match in the NQHS gym beginning at 9 a.m.

Recreation School Vacation Week Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department will be utilizing ten school gymnasiums during the upcoming school vacation week to conduct an expanded schedule of Recreation programs.

The QRD will open gyms from 9 a.m. to 12 Noon for a variety of activities from basketball, floor hockey and other gym games.

The program is for boys and girls ages eight through high school and is free. Registration is done at the gym locations and participants are requested to wear only sneakers.

Participants must be Quincy residents.

Over 120 hours of additional gym programs will be conducted vacation week in all neighborhoods in Quincy and participants may attend the programs of their choice. The core program is 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. for ages eight through Grade 5 and from 10:30 a.m. to 12 Noon for middle school and high school age.

(There is a chance for slight changes at some locations to accommodate the numbers and size of the facility.)

The QRD will continue to supervise the ongoing popular night programs for middle and high school participants during the vacation week, with some modifications to accommodate the holiday season.

The following gyms will be open expanded vacation hours on Wed., Dec. 26, Thurs., Dec. 27, Fri., Dec. 28, and Monday, Dec. 31: Atherton Hough, Snug Harbor, Merrymount, Beechwood Knoll, Atlantic, Squantum, Montclair, Wollaston, Bernazzani and Point Webster.

The following gyms will be open on the regular night schedule during school vacation:

Wed., Dec. 26: Montclair, 5 to 7 p.m. and Bernazzani, 5 to 7 p.m.

Thurs., Dec. 27: Bernazzani, 5 to 7 p.m., Squantum, 5 to 7 p.m., and Merrymount, 5 to 7 p.m.

All regularly scheduled Saturday Gym Programs will be conducted on Sat., Dec. 22 and Sat., Dec. 29.

Call the Quincy Recreation Department at (617) 376-1394 for additional information regarding their school vacation week schedule.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Make a start on that new workplace challenge. But get more information before you find yourself too deeply involved without knowing in which direction you should go.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You might find things becoming tedious as your schedule slows down for the holidays. Use this time to get information about a possible post-New Year job change.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The creative Twin finds outlets for her or his ideas in the early part of the week. The practical Twin takes it a step further and rallies support to turn the ideas into reality.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's time to stop being intimidated by someone's negative behavior. Start taking positive steps on your own to help strengthen your position down the line.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Look closely at that so-called golden opportunity. Best to be a cautious Cat who approaches things slowly, than one who pounces without knowing where you'll land.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your apology can resolve that personal situation before it overshadows the holidays. You'll feel better, even if you're only partly to blame for what happened.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Avoid overtaxing yourself, even if your energy levels are high and you feel that you can do it all. Best to pace yourself so you won't run yourself down before the holidays.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your sense of humor helps get you through a stressful period. Some of your quick quips can take the edge off any remaining negativity being aimed at you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your artistic talents not only help you express yourself these days, but they also set up a line of communication between you and someone very special.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's fine to appreciate the importance of "proper form" for doing things. But relax a bit in order to allow newcomers on the project to feel less intimidated by you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Use your boundless reserve of optimism to persuade others to work with you to resolve a difficult workplace problem before it can ruin your holiday fun.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You brim over with self-confidence as you begin to tackle a new challenge. And, before you know it, you're not alone: Others have taken the plunge with you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a highly defined sense of commitment to others. You would make a fine social worker.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

OBITUARIES

Joseph B. Grossman, 94 Vice President Of Grossman Lumber

Funeral services for Joseph B. "John" Grossman, 94, of Quincy, vice president of Grossman Lumber, director of the Quincy and New England Regional Councils of the Boy Scouts of America, and a director of Home Owners Federal Savings Bank, were held Dec. 13 at Temple Beth Elohim, Wellesley. Rabbi Sharon Clevenger officiated.

He died Dec. 11. Mr. Grossman, the son of the late Jacob and Rose Grossman, graduated from Thayer Academy in 1931 and earned a bachelor of science at Brown University in 1935. Family and business were all one; he was ready to go on the road as a salesman immediately upon graduation and handled the large contractors stationed in metropolitan Boston.

In 1941, Mr. Grossman moved to the Quincy home office where he became supervisor of operations, equipment, personnel, and public relations.

He was a longtime member of the Massachusetts Retail Lumber Dealers Association, serving as president from 1947 to 1982.

After the sale of Grossman Lumber, he devoted his energies to the field of banking and mortgages. At age 90 he was still going into the office five days a week.

Mr. Grossman held leadership positions in many community organizations including Knollwood Memorial Park, the Quincy United Fund, Quincy Hospital, and the Quincy Jewish Community Center.

He was long associated with the Boy Scouts of America. He was a president of the Quincy Council (Silver Beaver award recipient) and a director of the New England region (Silver Antelope award recipient.)

Mr. Grossman was a well-known speaker for both the Boy Scouts and building materials groups.

He was perhaps most proud of his service as a director of the Home Owners Federal Savings and Loan Association, where he served from 1938 to 1983.

Husband of the late Jean (Alexander) Grossman, he is survived by a daughter, Judith Molinsky; and four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

He was also the father of the late Jeffrey David Grossman.

Burial was in Sharon Memorial Park, Sharon.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Levin Chapel, Brookline.

Memorial donations may be made to the Jeff Grossman E911 Award Foundation.

Morton J. Hanley, 75 Owned Fire Sprinkler Company

A funeral Mass for Morton J. Hanley, 75, of Quincy, formerly of South Boston, owner of a fire sprinkler company, was celebrated Dec. 13 in Saint Francis Xavier Church, Weymouth.

Mr. Hanley died Dec. 9 at the Marian Manor Nursing Home in South Boston after a brief illness.

Born in East Boston, he was raised and educated in South Boston schools and was a 1949 graduate of South Boston High School. He was also a graduate of Northeastern University.

He had lived in South Boston for most of his life before moving to Quincy more than 20 years ago.

Mr. Hanley was the owner and operator of the M.J. Hanley Company, a fire sprinkler firm in Quincy for more than 20 years. He was a union contractor and worked with the Sprinkler Fitters Union Local 550. He retired in 1989.

Mr. Hanley was a U.S. Air Force veteran of the Korean War.

He was a member of the Braintree Lodge of Elks, the South Boston Irish American Club, the South Boston Yacht Club and was a former football player for the South Boston Shamrocks.

Husband for 41 years of the late Rosemarie

MORTON J. HANLEY

(McLaughlin) Hanley, he is survived by four sons, Gregory M. Hanley of Pembroke, Matthew V. Hanley of Plymouth, Brad A. Hanley of South Boston and Marcus J. Hanley of Mansfield; two brothers, John R. Hanley of Mashpee and Frederick C. Hanley of Weymouth; 13 grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

He was also the brother of the late Francis H. Hanley and the late Joan C. Collins.

Interment was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Marian Manor Nursing Home, 130 Dorchester St., South Boston, MA 02127.

Donald E. Stevenson, 70 MWRA Employee, NQHS Basketball Hall of Famer

A funeral service for Donald Edward Stevenson, 70, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, an employee of the MWRA and high school basketball standout, was held Dec. 14 in the Pilgrim Congregational Church, North Weymouth.

Mr. Stevenson died Dec. 10.

He was a 1956 graduate of North Quincy High School and was inducted into the North Quincy High School Basketball hall of Fame in 2004.

An avid sports fan, he referred football for high school and Pop Warner for 26 years. He was the recipient of the Murry Louis Award for "Football Official of the Year" in 1981.

A graduate of the Bethlehem Steel Apprentice School, he worked in the shipbuilding industry for many years before transitioning to the MWRA in Quincy.

Mr. Stevenson was treasurer and trustee of the Fore River Long Service Club.

After retiring in 2002, he spent most of his time in pursuit of his favorite hobby: woodworking, building doll houses, toy boxes and assorted toys for his grandchildren.

He was a devoted and loving father, grandfather and friend.

Devoted husband of 48 years to Jean (Colwell) Stevenson, he is survived by his children, Tracy (Stevenson) Hernandez of Hyde Park, Donald Stevenson of Weymouth, Tara (Stevenson) McGrath of Pembroke; five sisters, Pearl Azar of Quincy, Martha Brown of Weymouth, Mary Landry of Spring Hill, Florida, Diane Moore of Pembroke and Judy French of Rockland; a brother, Teddy Stevenson of North Quincy; and 11 grandchildren.

He was also the father of the late Jeffrey Stevenson and the brother of the late Bobby Stevenson.

Interment was in Old North Cemetery, North Weymouth.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

MERRY CHRISTMAS! Pleasant unforgettable, treasured memories, the unforgetting sentiment Christmas recreates every year is one of life's greatest joys. Christmas is the one time of the year that we take time to remember . . . and all of us have memories.

Henry Van Dyke, the late American clergyman, writer and poet whose famous "Story of the Other Wise Man" has brought joy and inspiration to thousands of people over the years. Among his writings is a piece named, "The Spirit of Christmas." We hope you all will enjoy this lovely writing. . .

"We are thinking of you today because it is Christmas. . . and tomorrow because it will be the day after, and so on through the year. We may not be able to tell you about it every day, but that makes no difference, the thought and wish will be here just the same. . ."

And so, in this time of year when good-fellowship becomes contagious . . . when friendly, kind thoughts and actions are directed toward our fellow man . . . when voices are heard in song and prayer . . . We at the Deware Funeral Home wish you a very Merry Christmas. May the quality of the "Merry Christmas" of Christmas Day be extended to you and yours the rest of the year. . .

Service Of The Longest Night Friday At Quincy Community United Methodist

It's called the most wonderful time of the year, a time for parties, and laughter and fun.

But what do you do when your heart is breaking, and the very idea of a party is painful?

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, is providing a resource for people in these difficult situations.

On Friday, Dec. 21 at 7:30 p.m., the church will hold its annual Service of the Longest Night. The service will be held in the chapel.

"For some people, the holiday season can be very stressful and, sometimes, very unhappy," said the Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

"Facing the first Christmas without a loved one's physical presence, dealing with an imminent death, living with an illness that places a question mark over the future, coping with the loss of a job, facing life after a divorce or separation, and sometimes just like in general can make holiday celebration very difficult, if not impossible," Jarek-Glidden said.

The service gets its name from the Winter Solstice, the Longest Night of the year. It is very simple and gentle, consisting of music, Scripture lessons, readings, prayer, and quiet reflection. Its purpose is to provide a safe place for people who are dealing with grief and loss of any kind, whether that grief and loss are recent or decades old.

Everyone is invited to attend.

FRIENDLY FOES - Mayor-elect Tom Koch (left) and Mayor William Phelan, who fought each other on the hustings for most of the year, joined forces amid the falling snow around the collection pot to ring Christmas bells for the Salvation Army. They were among 49 community leaders who rang the bell for the Sallies to help those in need this holiday season.

Child-Friendly Emergency Room Planned At QMC

A visit to a hospital emergency room can be a very scary experience for a child — and for the youngster's parents, too.

With this in mind, Quincy Medical Center is in the process of creating a pediatric section within its emergency room to provide special pediatric care in a more child-friendly manner.

The room will be decorated with children in mind and the waiting area separate from the main emergency waiting area to benefit the families.

The Pediatric Emergency Room initiative has been issued a challenge grant by the trustees of the John W. Arnold Trust designed to inspire others to give in the spirit of philanthropy.

QMC is seeking support from local businesses, foundations and trusts that support children's health initiatives.

"Members of the QMC Board of Trustees and Foundation Board of Directors have generously answered my call to support this effort," said Anthony Agnitti, the chair of the Foundation Board.

"Hospital administrators and department head have also made gifts to create this special unit for the children or our community. Now I'm hoping that the residents of Quincy and surrounding towns will help us meet this challenge grant."

Monday, Dec. 31 is the deadline to meet the challenge and QMC is asking community residents to consider making a tax-deductible gift to support the project.

Checks made payable to Quincy Medical Center may be mailed to the Development Office, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy 02169, or call Amy Klotz, development officer, at 617-376-5493 with questions or donations by credit card.

Gifts of $50 or more that are received by the end of the year will be included in the annual Quincy Medical Center Honor Roll of Donors booklet that will be published early in 2008 and mounted on a display at the hospital.

Presidential Primary Feb. 5

This year's presidential primaries will be held Tuesday, Feb. 5, a month earlier than is customary in this state.

The Feb. 5 date is known as Super Tuesday, because voters in 22 states will go to the polls that Tuesday to cast ballots in either the Democrat or Republican primaries.

Polls will open at 7 a.m.

and close at 8 p.m. The polling places in all six of the city's wards will be the same as for past elections.

The last day for voter registration for this election is Wednesday, Jan. 16 from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. This is also the last date on which voters may change party affiliation. Unenrolled voters may choose either ballot.

Gov. Deval Patrick scheduled primary election a month earlier this year in an effort to maintain and enhance the Bay State's impact on presidential choices.

In prior years, Massachusetts' primaries were held in March as were the primaries in many other

Downtown Revitalization Also In Spotlight Koch Victory, New QHS Project Among Top Stories

By TOM HENSHAW

It was not a good year to be in charge in Quincy.

Mayor William Phelan felt it the most, particularly on the first Tuesday in November when he lost his bid for a fourth two-year term to former Park Commissioner Tom Koch.

It seemed like city employees were ripping at the mayor's flanks all year.

Phelan himself touched it off with his mid-term address in which he warned that the large and growing benefits packages city workers receive is threatening the financial stability of the city.

But when he attempted to cut the city's share of health benefits to teachers, some 900 of them struck for four days before agreeing reluctantly to up their contribution from 10 to 20 per cent.

As late as October, some 400 members of city employee unions were braving wind and rain to picket City Hall in support of 12 unions whose contracts had expired in July, 2006.

Phelan's police chief, Robert Crowley, was having his own problems.

It seemed like Bruce Tait, the president of the Patrol Officers' Union, was constantly before the City Council complaining about staffing, overtime and vacation schedules.

Elsewhere in Quincy, the big stories of 2007 included the mysterious death of Army Cpl. Ciara Durkin of Hough Neck, whose body was found on a secure base in Afghanistan, shot once in the head.

Ground was broken for the long awaited new $126 million Quincy High School, an advance that was unfortunately overshadowed by the teachers' strike.

And Phelan's $30 million plan to revitalize downtown Quincy, which was in the planning stage for four years, was finally approved by the State Department of Planning and Community Development.

Here is a summary of the events, good and bad, that happened in Quincy in the year 2008.

Sun 'Citizen Of Year' Nominations Close Monday

Nominations will close for The Quincy Sun's 23rd annual "Citizen of the Year" award Monday, Dec. 31. Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, for the first time since the award's inception, co-recipients were chosen: Patrick J. "P.J." Foley and Vincent "Vin" Moscardelli.

Both were selected for outstanding community service.

Moscardelli, a former principal of Central Junior High School, for his generous support of high school and youth sports and other worthy causes.

Foley for his environmental and conservation efforts and accomplishments.

They were among 36 nominated for the award by Quincy Sun readers.

A panel of judges representing a cross-section of the community made the final decision to honor both of them.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page 2 of this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

After nominations close Monday, Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2007 award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for their nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received.

Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Ward 6 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 9

Registered Democrats in Ward 6 will hold a caucus Saturday, Feb. 9 at the 10 a.m. at the Adams Inn Best Western to elect 10 delegates and two alternates to the 2008 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Delegates will be divided equally between men and women.

The convention will be held on Saturday, June 7, at the Tsongas Arena in Lowell. At that time, Democrats from across the state will gather to endorse candidates for the office of U.S. Senator. The names of those candidates who receive 15 percent of the state convention vote will be placed on the Sept. 16 Democratic Primary ballot.

Free Senior

Medical Trips

Medical transportation with curb to curb service Mondays through Fridays is provided at no cost to Quincy seniors.

The service requires two weeks notice for trips, including those to Braintree Hospital, Carney Hospital, Milton Hospital and eight major hospitals in Boston.

To request a trip, call the Transportation Office at 617-376-1242

The caucus is open to all registered Democrats in Ward 6. Candidates for delegate and alternate must consent to nomination in writing and must be present at the caucus. All ballots will be written and secret. Those not elected as delegate and/or alternate, who meet the qualifications, may apply to be add-on delegates in the following categories: youth, minority, and disabled.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, sexual orientation or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited. Challenges to the delegation selection process can be filed with the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 56 Roland Street, Suite 203, Boston, MA 02129 no later than ten days after the caucus date.

For caucus information contact Ward 6 chairman Paul Kennedy at 617-328-1059.

'Marine Family' Welcomes Marines Home From Iraq

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The Marine slogan may be "The Few. The Proud." but there are more than a few Marines in Bob Godfrey's family. Godfrey of Wollaston is a former Marine lance corporal.

There are six Marines or former Marines in Godfrey's family. This includes Godfrey's brother, two of his three sons and two grandsons, Cpl. Richard Godfrey and Cpl. Ryan Croak, both 20 years old.

All the Marines and some 100 family and friends recently gathered at the American Legion Nickerson Post in Squantum to welcome the young Marines home from Iraq. Rev. Michael Goddard of all Saints Episcopal Church, Wollaston, offered a blessing.

"This is an all-Marine family," said Godfrey who trained for 13 weeks at Parris Island, SC a few decades ago and served as a lance corporal. Actually, he said that other services are also well represented in his family.

I saw both of my grandsons graduate from Parris Island," said Godfrey. "Parris Island is a life-changing experience for everyone."

Godfrey's son, Steven Godfrey of Middleboro, also served as a Marine sergeant in the Middle East in the 1980's when Marine barracks were bombed by terrorists. Steven Godfrey is now a State Trooper.

On October 23, 1983, terrorists stormed the Marine barracks in Beirut with a truck full of explosives and killed 241 Marines.

"I found out they were going to come out with a survivors' list," recalled Godfrey who was working at The Boston Globe at the time.

Then, the list of 1550 survivors came out, "His name was not on it," said Godfrey who believed, for many long hours, that his son was killed with the other Marines.

"He wasn't accounted for," said Godfrey who described the horror for him and his family at that time.

Now, his grandsons face dangers, also, in the Middle East. Even though they have seen death and destruction and their friends killed, Godfrey said that they're both ready to return to duty. "These kids are amazing."

Both Cpl. Godfrey and Cpl. Croak are on temporary leave and will return to active duty after the first of the year. Cpl. Godfrey is the son of Robert Godfrey, Jr. who served in the Army. Cpl. Croak is the son of James Recently, Godfrey traded recollections of Marine service with another former Marine after greeting him with "Semper Paratus."

"The Marine Corps is a brotherhood," Godfrey said. "It's always with you. You never forget."

Godfrey's son Robert, Jr., served as a Marine lance corporal and his brother Richard served 16 years on active duty the Marines retiring as a lieutenant colonel. Godfrey's son, Douglas Godfrey, served with the United States Army.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Dec. 24, 1851, a devastating fire at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., destroys about two-thirds of its 55,000 volumes. The first library catalog, dated April 1802, listed 964 volumes and nine maps.
- On Dec. 28, 1869, the Knights of Labor, a labor union of tailors in Philadelphia, hold the first Labor Day ceremonies in American history. In 1894, Congress designated the first Monday in September a legal holiday.
- On Dec. 27, 1900, prohibitionist Carry Nation smashes up the bar at the Carey Hotel in Wichita, Kan. Nation became famous for carrying a hatchet and wrecking saloons as part of her anti-alcohol crusade. After the incident at the Carey Hotel, her fame increased as she continued her saloon-smashing campaign and spoke out in favor of temperance.
- On Dec. 30, 1903, a fire in the Iroquois Theater in Chicago kills 591 people. There were no fire escapes or ladders, and an asbestos stage curtain that could have contained the fire to backstage turned out to be made of paper. All 30 fire exits were locked.

• On Dec. 25, 1938, producer David O. Selznick asks Vivien Leigh to play Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind." Author Margaret Mitchell received an unprecedented $50,000 for the rights to her novel.

• On Dec. 29, 1940, London suffers its most devastating air raid when Germans firebomb the city. The next day, a newspaper photo of St. Paul's Cathedral standing undamaged amid the smoke and flames seemed to symbolize the capital's unconquerable spirit during the Battle of Britain.

• On Dec. 26, 1974, beloved comedian Jack Benny dies of cancer. Benny was born Benjamin Kubelsky in 1894. Despite the stingy skinflint image he cultivated on the air, Benny was known for his generosity and modesty in real life.

It Was A Nice Sight

They looked more like friends than political rivals as they stood there together in the snow ringing the bell for the Salvation Army.

Mayor William Phelan and Mayor-elect Tom Koch chatted, smiled, and laughed while manning the kettle in front of City Hall.

They had waged a bit of a political slugfest for months but that was all forgotten as they teamed for the Salvation Army.

Someone asked Phelan if he, as outgoing mayor, had any advice for Koch, the incoming mayor.

"I already gave it," Phelan said. "But that's between Tommy and me."

Despite the falling snow, people-adults and children-stopped to make a donation.

And those who knew they were the mayor and mayor-elect were pleased to see them publicly standing together for a worthy cause.

It was a nice sight.

It was like a message of peace for the city.

Phelan, incidentally, has no definite plans for the immediate future. He says he's going to "take it easy for awhile." And he can always go back to his law practice.

"I'm grateful for the opportunity to serve the people of Quincy," he says. "It's been a great experience and an honor to be mayor."

If he had been re-elected to a fourth term, it would have been his last.

"I don't think a mayor should stay longer than eight years," he says. "That's long enough and then turn it over to someone else."

Would he return to the political arena? He hints he might. He's only 48.

INCUMBENT MAYORS usually have the advantage in elections. But not always. And not recently.

Four of Quincy's last six mayors, for example, were defeated in re-election bids.

Two of them as challengers defeated incumbents and then were defeated themselves.

Joseph LaRaia upset incumbent Walter Hannon in that famous 1975 recount.

And then was defeated himself, by Arthur Tobin two years later.

Six-term mayor James Sheets lost to William Phelan by 17 votes in 2001, the city's closet mayoral election ever.

And then Phelan was defeated by Tom Koch this year.

The two mayors of the six who left office undefeated were Arthur Tobin and Frank McCauley.

MEMA Warns Of Snow On Flat Roofs And Drains

Even when the snow stops falling, the white stuff that didn't reach the ground can still be a hazard to life and limb.

"The wet snow and heavy rain present a threat for roof collapse, as well as localized street and basement flooding," warns MEMA Director Don Boyce. "If not cleared off of roofs the snow acts as a sponge, absorbing any additional sleet and rain, adding stress to structures."

"Additionally, MEMA encourages citizens to clear storm drains in their neighborhoods to minimize local flooding problems from the runoff."

Relatively flat roofs are particularly vulnerable. In many cases, roof ice dams have formed causing water build-up, leading to interior damage.

Here are some tips from MEMA on minimizing the stress of heavy snow and water on roofs:

- Be on the alert for large accumulating snow build-up or snowdrifts on your roof.
- If roof snow can be removed by a snow rake, do so, but use caution, as metal snow rakes conduct electricity if they contact a power line.

- Try to avoid working from ladders, as ladder rungs tend to ice up. Also snow and ice collect on boot soles and metal ladders.
- Flat roofs can be shoveled clear but only if it is determined that the roof is safe to stand on. Exercise care when on the roof to avoid potential falls.
- Flat roof drainage systems should be kept clear to minimize the risk of excess roof ponding in the event of subsequent heavy rainfall or melting.

- Large icicles can form on roof overhangs but do not necessarily mean ice damming it is occurring. Icicles doorways or walkways can be dangerous and should be carefully removed.
- All of the mentioned actions should only be performed by able-bodied adults as the snow is heavy and roofs and other surfaces may be slippery. Protective headgear and eye protection is recommended.

JAY DAVIS had next year's city council presidency wrapped up a couple days after the November city election.

So, the vote Jan. 7 at the council's organizational meeting will be pretty much a formality.

Quite unlike the one in 1962.

That was the year when Charles Shea and John Quinn were nominated for the presidency.

And when eight councillors had voted, Shea and Quinn were tied with four votes each.

DAVIS

The last to vote alphabetically would be Quinn. All he had to do was to vote for himself and he would be the council president.

The temptation might have been there, but Quinn voted for Shea, handing him the presidency.

SHEA

Why?

Quinn had already committed his vote to Shea and loyally kept his word by voting against himself.

Quinn did become president in 1978 and served 24 years in the council-longest in the city's history.

The city council presidency has been considered the springboard to the mayor's office. But in recent years it hasn't had much spring.

There have been some 20 council presidents in the last half-century and only four went on to the mayor's office: James McIntyre, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, and James Sheets.

Frank McCauley became council president after serving as mayor.

THERE'S A NEW contender for the school committee seat James Timmins will be leaving to become city solicitor.

He's Karl Roos, 40, of Park Street, Wollaston who is seeking support of city councillors and school committee members who will meet in a Joint Convention in January to fill the vacancy.

Roos, who is in pharmaceutical sales to hospitals, has three children in the Wollaston School and is treasurer of the PTO. He is also founder and head of the Wollaston T-Ball League and a Cub Scout den leader at St. Ann's Church.

Roos will be challenging Nick Puleo, the runner-up in November's school committee election who has been campaigning several weeks for the upcoming vacant seat.

There will be 15 votes at the Joint Convention. The winner will need eight of them.

AND, a Happy, Healthy New Year to you all.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1948 POSTCARD is entitled "Your local Woolworth Store on Hancock Street, Quincy, Mass." On the left can also be seen the old Touraines store and part of the Capitol Theater building. The postcard was published just after this new Woolworth store opened on the corner of Cliveden Street. They moved here from the Adams Building at the other end of the Square where they had been located for almost 50 years. Woolworth's also had a smaller store in Wollaston Center for many years. The store shown here with its popular lunch counter was open for almost 50 years when Woolworth's went bankrupt in the mid 1990s. Today, the building is home to Landmark Education, a company that provides all sorts of training for business and personal achievement. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

READERS FORUM

Tax Increases And Energy Saving Initiatives

I read in the Dec. 6 edition of the Quincy Sun that our tax increase this year is under $118.

I was actually expecting taxes to go down this year, because the real estate values have gone down so dramatically the past two years. Last year I asked Ms. Fantucchio, Chair, Board of Assessors, when will the lower real estate values reflect on our tax rate? Ms. Fantucchio responded by stating: "Your lower tax rate will not reflect before '08 as the state goes by last year's valuations, so the lower value will reflect in '08 assessments." This was a logical explanation.

I missed the public hearing opportunity to bring Ms. Fantucchio's comments and other tax saving ideas to the Council's hearing during the public comment period. I am thankful, however, that Mrs. Fisher was there to represent many taxpayers that share with her exactly the same sentiments. The oil, the gas, electricity, has risen for everyone, including for the city to keep their facilities warm and lighted.

Homeowners, however, do not have the cash cow, meaning the taxpayer that bails out the city each time they need additional revenue to cover the cost of over-spending.

Homeowners have to stick to their budget, otherwise they loose their homes, and many have already. We are left on mercy of the city tax collectors. When we try to file an abatement or other tax relief, the income levels are set so low, that one wonders when the policies and procedures were established, perhaps in the 50s income level.

I read also the city of Quincy now has a new energy saving policy in place; the light bulbs for example, have been replaced with new energy saving ones. An outside contractor installed the bulbs. Was it paid by the city or by Honeywell, I do not know, but I am glad that they have been replaced. Right away, many homeowners have done that many years ago, but just recently it made news in Quincy.

Beverly Brand
South Street

Perhaps additional energy saving initiatives are on the city's docket, not only the light bulbs. Case in point, Lincoln Hancock School pool girls' side shower/locker room temperature still hovers around 90 degree Fahrenheit. I learned that there is no thermostat to turn down the heat. What's more, at times when I have gone for a swim; I have found that all the eight showers are running at once. If no one is there to turn them off manually, the showers keep on wasting natural resources.

It is good to see that energy saving initiatives have started in Quincy and I hope that Honeywell is going to help Quincy to correct additional projects as well. If the city were running its affairs similar to what Mrs. Fisher suggested at the hearing, we would be getting lower taxes and part of our investments returned.

I hope the homeowners take notice and contact their city councillors and give them ideas on how to control the continuing tax increases.

Opposes Preserving Souther Tide Mill

After reading an article, in November, I would like to voice my opinion and opposition to saving, supporting, and preserving the Souther Tide Mill.

We already have as many, or more than the other places referred to, "that are doing it," who don't have half of what we have, historically.

The Souther Tide Mill has been a neglected blight on the commercial conscious Southern Artery location for too many years. Sandwiched in between the CVS Pharmacy building, and Quirk's Car business, and landfills, it sits on possibly less than a marshy acre, if you consider the seawater wending it's way through, cutting a good slice out of the property.

I love all history in general, especially Quincy's rich history, with one exception, and that is keeping the Old Souther Tide Mill. I feel that the money to support it could be put to better use. The standpoint from your many readers' opinions may determine their pro's and con's, and some may even suggest what the land could be better used for.

Baked Scallops - Pudding Pie

It was at our annual cousin's Christmas Party at Mary Gosselin's home when I found amidst a huge buffet of entrees today's delicious scallop recipe and an incredible pudding pie.

Mary said her son Gary gave the scallop recipe to her and it was so delicious that I went back for seconds. Plus it has very few ingredients.

It's made with a pound of scallops, but you can expand it if you want.

The recipe for the pie follows

GARY'S BAKED SCALLOPS

1 pound scallops (I use the sea scallops which are large)

1 pint of cream (heavy or light)

1/4 cup each of grated parmesan and romano cheese

(Mary said you can also use a Mexican blend cheese) bread crumbs for topping

Mix the scallops with a the cream and the cheeses. Place in a slightly greased casserole dish and sprinkle the top with bread crumbs.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for 20 minutes.

If made ahead of time, it can be zapped in the micro for a couple of minutes which we did before serving it at the party.

The other recipe was Mary's delicious pudding pie. Called "Fa La La Luscious"

CANDY CRUNCH PUDDING PIE

2 cups cold milk

2 packages of Jell-O chocolate instant pudding and pie filling

1- 8 ounce tub of whipped topping

2 milk chocolate English toffee candy bars chopped

1 OREO pie crust

1 square Baker's semi-sweet baking chocolate, melted

Beat the milk and dry pudding mixes and whisk two minutes until well blended. Gently stir in half of the whipped topping and all but three tablespoons of the candy.

Spoon into crust.

Top with remaining whipped topping and candy. Drizzle with the chocolate. It can either be served immediately or refrigerated until ready to serve. It makes eight servings. I won't mention the calories! Enjoy!

Reaching Out to Our Neighbors

By J. Keith Motley, PhD, UMass Boston Chancellor

The urban mission of the University of Massachusetts Boston engages faculty, students, and staff in some of the most pressing social issues facing Boston and the region. This mission is pursued both on our campus and in our neighborhoods, many of which are rich in history and ethnic diversity but also have a disproportionate number of people struggling below the poverty level. As winter approaches, the UMass Boston family has again reached out to help those in need from Quincy and other local communities.

Aided by the sponsorship and support of the City of Boston, the Fannie Mae Foundation, the Ipswich Co., and other organizations, UMass Boston stepped up its offensive against poverty with a concert at Dorchester's Strand Theatre on November 16. Part of the McCormack Graduate School's Give US Your Poor initiative, the concert featured singer/songwriter Natalie Merchant, Mighty Sam McClain, Greek tenor Mario Frangoulis, and Boston's own Buffalo Tom band. Proceeds from the concert support the city's indigent and homeless population, and those from a Give US Your Poor CD released earlier this year help address homelessness nationally.

The university has likewise teamed with local civic and business leaders on a project that explores ways to improve existing diversity programs; to assist immigrants and others who are learning English; and to tell the story of Boston's new "minority majority." It was conceived by McCormack School dean Steve Crosby in collaboration with former Suffolk County District Attorney Ralph Martin and Boston Globe publisher Steve Ainsley. The project's senior director is Bob Turner, a onetime Globe editor and the current Boston Globe Fellow at the McCormack School.

UMass Boston is committed to making our neighborhoods better places to grow and learn. In that spirit, on November 29 I hosted the Community Safety Summit. The event brought together state and local officials from a coalition called the Charles Shannon Community Safety Initiative, which annually provides $11 million for youth-violence prevention and focused law enforcement.

Education itself—public higher education in particular—also plays a crucial role in making our neighborhoods safe. To become productive members of society, young people need opportunities to express their talents and pursue their dreams, and UMass Boston seeks to provide such opportunities. For instance, a group of gifted Boston Public Schools seniors visited our campus in November to learn about programs and facilities in the College of Science and Mathematics. And soon the university will offer Chancellor's Scholarships, which will finance UMass Boston educations for homeless students from Massachusetts.

A reminder: Registration for spring 2008 courses in the Division of Corporate, Continuing, and Distance Education is now taking place. Please visit www.umb.edu for more information.

On behalf of the entire UMass Boston community, I wish you and your family a joyous and memorable holiday season.

Council Commends 17 Young Volunteers

Santa Claus had extra elves on board this season as 17 youngsters from all over the city collected funds and gifts for less fortunate youngsters at the Italian Home for Children in Jamaica Plain and for needy Quincy youngsters through social agencies.

"You are indeed special ambassadors from the City of Quincy, the City of Presidents," Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said recently as he announced commendations for each member of the informal group at the City Council meeting.

The certificates recognize the youngsters' generous efforts and spirit and state, "We are all most grateful for the holiday cheer and goodwill you have brought to children in need."

Gail Bellotti of Squantum actually began the project 14 years ago when she collected money and gifts for the children at the Italian home. Stella Mahoney, Marybeth Porter, and Kathy Bell have also worked on the projects.

Bellotti's 12-year-old daughter, Colleen Marie, has been involved in the project in one way or another all her life. Early on, Bellotti said that Colleen raised funds at lemonade stands.

Two years ago, Colleen began inviting her friends to help and held fund-raisers and a dance. Now, there are 17 youngsters, age 10 to 14 years old, who collect money and gifts for children's gifts.

Six of the youngsters hosted last week's Christmas party for 60 children at the Italian Home where Chicago Cubs pitcher Rich Hill acted and Chris Baker was master of ceremonies.

"A lot of these kids are asking for the smallest things, like a box of Fruit Loops, or just a picture of themselves for their mother whom they may not even know," said Bellotti.

Thanks to her daughter and the other young helpers, Bellotti said that, this year, 120 youngsters got special wrapped dream gifts with such presents as electric guitars, Nintendo DS systems, electronic dance mats, Baby Alive dolls and MP3 players.

McNamee said that it is important to recognize such generous efforts by young people who may not be athletic stars or cheerleaders. "Everybody talks about kids getting into mischief but these are good kids."

The young elves live in all parts of the city, with many from Squantum and Houghs Neck, St. Ann's School and Atlantic Middle School.

McNamee announced commendations for Megan Mahoney, Molly Mahoney, Julia Himmel, Julianne Downey, Jamie Figureido, Lily Keener, Kelsey Laforest, Taylor Shepherd, Teresa Bohmbach, Alex Moscato, Kennedy Harding, Emily McDonough.

Also honored were Colleen Bellotti, Meghan White, Kathryn White, Dylan Porter, Kathleen Calnan and Ryan Mock, the six youngsters who hosted last week's party at the Italian Home.

The Italian Home proves a residence, therapy, education and all needed resources for 100 children, ages 3 to 14 years old, who need homes or who are in danger of abuse or neglect.

Gail Bellotti is the wife of Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

Council Approves $3.3M Purchase Of Quincy Point Land

At their last meeting of the 2006-2007 session, the City Council finalized their approval of a $3.3 million bond for the purchase of 13.75 acres off Circuit and Bower Roads, Quincy Point.

This is the last of the three major open space acquisitions recommended this year by the Community Preservation Committee (CPC). Payments will be funded through local Community Preservation tax receipts.

Prior to the vote, City Solicitor Monica Conyngham described the city's negotiations, noting that the property owners had originally sought $4.75 million for the land.

After negotiation, Conyngham said the agreement was reached for a $3.3 million price, which is more than 125% of the assessed value of $2,314,400.

However, Conyngham said, "We're actually paying less than the appraised value."

City Council President Douglas Gutro called the property unique, and described the cost of protecting the existing natural habitats, "a modest investment annually to protect open space."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond described the decision as a "wonderful occasion" because the purchase completes the open space component of Faxon Park.

This year's preservation receipts totaled $2.2 million which includes local taxes and the state's matching funds.

The committee recommended and the council approved the purchase of the three and a half acres known as Cobblestone at 271 Sea St. for $3.5 million and the purchase of 63,400 square feet West Quincy known as Turning Mill Estates.

This year's projects also included $300,000 for historic preservation, including Quarry Museum displays, the Foe River Club House, Quincy Homestead and the Souther Tide Mill.

Funds were also set aside for affordable housing and recreation projects.

QUINCY CREDIT UNION, located at 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy, recently held a care package supply drive to help make the holidays a little brighter for active service men and women fighting overseas and for local disabled veterans. Nancy Doucette, QCU consumer loan supervisor, volunteered at the supply drive in memory of her dad who served in the Marines. With her is QCU employee James Medige, a disabled Army veteran who helped initiate the program. Through the generous support of QCU members and employees, QCU collected more than $1,800 worth of basic everyday supplies during the month-long drive. Supplies including snacks, personal care products, batteries, toiletries and stationery kits were packed and shipped with the assistance of Quincy Veterans Services in time for Christmas and the New Year's holiday.

Reaching Out to Our Neighbors

By J. Keith Motley, PhD, UMass Boston Chancellor

The urban mission of the University of Massachusetts Boston engages faculty, students, and staff in some of the most pressing social issues facing Boston and the region. This mission is pursued both on our campus and in our neighborhoods, many of which are rich in history and ethnic diversity but also have a disproportionate number of people struggling below the poverty level. As winter approaches, the UMass Boston family has again reached out to help those in need from Quincy and other local communities.

Aided by the sponsorship and support of the City of Boston, the Fannie Mae Foundation, the Ipswich Co., and other organizations, UMass Boston stepped up its offensive against poverty with a concert at Dorchester's Strand Theatre on November 16. Part of the McCormack Graduate School's Give US Your Poor initiative, the concert featured singer/songwriter Natalie Merchant, Mighty Sam McClain, Greek tenor Mario Frangoulis, and Boston's own Buffalo Tom band. Proceeds from the concert support the city's indigent and homeless population, and those from a Give US Your Poor CD released earlier this year help address homelessness nationally.

The university has likewise teamed with local civic and business leaders on a project that explores ways to improve existing diversity programs; to assist immigrants and others who are learning English; and to tell the story of Boston's new "minority majority." It was conceived by McCormack School dean Steve Crosby in collaboration with former Suffolk County District Attorney Ralph Martin and Boston Globe publisher Steve Ainsley. The project's senior director is Bob Turner, a onetime Globe editor and the current Boston Globe Fellow at the McCormack School.

UMass Boston is committed to making our neighborhoods better places to grow and learn. In that spirit, on November 29 I hosted the Community Safety Summit. The event brought together state and local officials from a coalition called the Charles Shannon Community Safety Initiative, which annually provides $11 million for youth-violence prevention and focused law enforcement.

Education itself—public higher education in particular—also plays a crucial role in making our neighborhoods safe. To become productive members of society, young people need opportunities to express their talents and pursue their dreams, and UMass Boston seeks to provide such opportunities. For instance, a group of gifted Boston Public Schools seniors visited our campus in November to learn about programs and facilities in the College of Science and Mathematics. And soon the university will offer Chancellor's Scholarships, which will finance UMass Boston educations for homeless students from Massachusetts.

A reminder: Registration for spring 2008 courses in the Division of Corporate, Continuing, and Distance Education is now taking place. Please visit www.umb.edu for more information.

On behalf of the entire UMass Boston community, I wish you and your family a joyous and memorable holiday season.

Council Commends 17 Young Volunteers

Santa Claus had extra elves on board this season as 17 youngsters from all over the city collected funds and gifts for less fortunate youngsters at the Italian Home for Children in Jamaica Plain and for needy Quincy youngsters through social agencies.

"You are indeed special ambassadors from the City of Quincy, the City of Presidents," Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said recently as he announced commendations for each member of the informal group at the City Council meeting.

The certificates recognize the youngsters' generous efforts and spirit and state, "We are all most grateful for the holiday cheer and goodwill you have brought to children in need."

Gail Bellotti of Squantum actually began the project 14 years ago when she collected money and gifts for the children at the Italian home. Stella Mahoney, Marybeth Porter, and Kathy Bell have also worked on the projects.

Bellotti's 12-year-old daughter, Colleen Marie, has been involved in the project in one way or another all her life. Early on, Bellotti said that Colleen raised funds at lemonade stands.

Two years ago, Colleen began inviting her friends to help and held fund-raisers and a dance. Now, there are 17 youngsters, age 10 to 14 years old, who collect money and gifts for children's gifts.

Six of the youngsters hosted last week's Christmas party for 60 children at the Italian Home where Chicago Cubs pitcher Rich Hill acted and Chris Baker was master of ceremonies.

"A lot of these kids are asking for the smallest things, like a box of Fruit Loops, or just a picture of themselves for their mother whom they may not even know," said Bellotti.

Thanks to her daughter and the other young helpers, Bellotti said that, this year, 120 youngsters got special wrapped dream gifts with such presents as electric guitars, Nintendo DS systems, electronic dance mats, Baby Alive dolls and MP3 players.

McNamee said that it is important to recognize such generous efforts by young people who may not be athletic stars or cheerleaders. "Everybody talks about kids getting into mischief but these are good kids."

The young elves live in all parts of the city, with many from Squantum and Houghs Neck, St. Ann's School and Atlantic Middle School.

McNamee announced commendations for Megan Mahoney, Molly Mahoney, Julia Himmel, Julianne Downey, Jamie Figueroa, Lily Keener, Kelsey Laforest, Taylor Shepherd, Teresa Bohmbach, Alex Moscato, Kennedy Harding, Emily McDonough,

Also honored were Colleen Bellotti, Meghan White, Kathryn White, Dylan Porter, Kathleen Calnan and Ryan Mock, the six youngsters who hosted last week's party at the Italian Home.

The Italian Home proves a residence, therapy, education and all needed resources for 100 children, ages 3 to 14 years old, who need homes or who are in danger of abuse or neglect.

Gail Bellotti is the wife of Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

Mayor: City Strong But Financial Storm On Horizon

(Cont'd From Page 1)
January

Mayor William Phelan, beginning his sixth year as the chief executive of Quincy, reported in the mid-term address that "the state of our city is strong and growing stronger."

But, he added, "even in this rosy report of our city's condition there are troubling storm warnings on the horizon that cannot be ignored."

"The fast-growing cost of employee benefits and the abnormally large percentage of those costs being paid by the city of Quincy is placing a larger and larger undue burden on taxpayers."

He called it "a financial crisis that threatens our financial stability and all the progress we have made" and "a ticking time bomb that we must defuse as fairly and quickly as possible."

City Council President Doug Gutro was sworn in to a second term with the same enthusiasm as his first, promising to "advance the causes that make Quincy a desirable place to live and work."

Tom Koch handed Mayor Phelan his resignation after 12 years as executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments and informed him he would be running against him for mayor in the November elections.

tions.

"The time is now to create a positive new vision for our city's future," he said. "The stakes are just too high and our potential too great to face our challenges standing still. We can do better."

Koch named Jack Nigro, a Houghs Neck resident, to be his campaign chairman and Jim Fatseas, a native of North Quincy, to be campaign treasurer.

Some 600 teachers, who had been working without a contract for the past five months, demonstrated their displeasure at a School Committee meeting to protest what they saw as a coming assault on their health care benefits.

Ward 3 City Councillor Doug Gutro called it a "horrible situation" that an estimated 24 businesses and organizations would lose their sites to landtaking to make way for the planned Quincy Center Concourse.

Deval Patrick, the first black governor of Massachusetts, was sworn in on the famed Mendi Bible, the gift from the Mendi people of West Africa to John Quincy Adams for securing the freedom of the kidnapped Africans aboard the slave ship Amistad.

Fire, touched off by a homeless man who had been

The William B. Rice Eventide Home agreed to withdraw "without prejudice" its bid for a zoning change to clear the way for a new and larger assisted living and nursing home on Adams Street.

Ward 6 City Councillor Brian McNamee and the Quincy legislative delegation filed a bill that would make it illegal for persons under 17 to purchase or possess spray paint with the intent to create graffiti.

Bennett Chin and Jimmy Chen, each proficient in both Cantonese and Mandarin, were sworn in as Quincy police officers.

Catherine "Kitty" Crowley, who was born while Teddy Roosevelt was president and never missed a chance to vote since his cousin Franklin D. Roosevelt was in the Oval Office, turned 100 in her Wollaston home.

Deaths in January included:

Marion L. Andrews, 85, of Quincy, former director of the Council on Aging.

Donald M. Murray, 82, of Durham, N.H., formerly of Quincy, Pulitzer Prize-winning editorial writer for the Boston Herald.

Union President, Police Chief At Odds Over Patrol Staffing

February

Bruce Tait, president of the Patrolmen's Union, told the City Council that Police Chief Robert Crowley had cut cruiser patrols from the 13 sectors of the city and accused him of lying to the Council during an appearance in December.

"In theory," he said, "each of the 13 patrol sectors is staffed by a uniformed patrol officer in a marker police cruiser."

At the December meeting, said Tait, Crowley told the Council staffing never falls below 11 sector cars on a shift. "That was a blatant lie," he added. Sometimes there were instances where there were only 9 or 8 cars on a shift.

The City Council, by a 7-2 vote, passed a year-long moratorium on construction of multi-family dwelling units or conversion of existing one-family homes in Residence B zones, a zoning amendment aimed at developers who convert single-family homes to condos.

The Illegal Rooming House Task Force, formed by Mayor William Phelan as part of his "Neighborhoods First" initiative, inspected 98 properties and cited 40 of them for violations of building codes.

DPW Commissioner Stephen J. O'Donnell told the City Council he has earmarked $7 million from the state's Chapter 90 funds to sprucing up sidewalks and roads and improving antiquated water mains.

The Richardson Building, the original Thomas Crane

Public Library, placed 43rd among 150 structures considered to be the best works of architecture in a poll conducted for the American Institute of Architecture.

More than 600 people attended a celebration of the life and work of the Rev. William McCarthy, for whom Father Bill's Place is named, on the occasion of his 80th birthday and 55th anniversary of his ordination. The affair raised $100,000 for the homeless shelter.

The City Council approved Mayor William Phelan's request for a $4.5 million transfer from the free cash reserve into the Stabilization Fund, increasing the rainy day fund to $12.5 million.

Patrick J. "P. J." Foley, the Houghs Neck environmentalist, and Vincent "Vin Moscardelli, former principal of Central Junior High School, were chosen the first co-recipients of the Citizen of the Year Award from The MEMBERS OF THE Quincy Education Association, the teachers union, protested outside City Hall in early February. Teachers had been without a contract since August. At the time they said a proposal for them to pay a larger share of health insurance premiums amounted to a three-year pay cut.

Mayor Phelan named Foley to a five-year term on the Planning Board, calling him "a well-rounded individual (whose) commitment to our community is relentless."

Alfred J. Grazioso Jr. of Quincy was appointed chief of staff of the Massachusetts State Lottery by State Treasurer Tim Cahill.

Mayor Phelan announced receipt of more than $1.8 million in federal grant funds for the homeless as the feds heaped praise on Quincy's 10-year program for ending homelessness.

Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident and youth sports organizer and coach, was sworn in as director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, succeeding Tom Koch, who resigned to run for mayor.

The 19th annual Lunar New Year Festival was held in North Quincy High School and John Brothers, executive director of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI) pronounced it the best one of all. About 4,000 attended.

Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin filed three resolutions calling on Quincy to join hundreds of other communities around the world in the fight to reduce global warming.

Coughlin also introduced an ordinance that would require all residents living in single-family and multi-family dwellings and who have municipal trash collections to participate in mandatory recycling.

Peter Racicot, vice president of Business Development at Fallon Ambulance, was elected president and chair of the Board of Directors of Quincy 2000 Collaborative.

Lt. Gov. Tim Murray and Mayor Phelan visited the successful full-day kindergarten at the Clifford Marshall School and Murray pronounced it to be a model for those communities planning similar programs around the state.

Raymond K. Tung of Wellesley, senior vice president for New England Markets for United Commercial Bank was appointed to the Board of Trustees of Quincy Medical Center.

Bonnie Hirtle of Quincy, a junior at Curry College, was named to the ESPN The Magazine College Division District 1 All America Basketball Team for the second year in a row.

Deaths in February included:

Faith M. McLarnon, 87, of Wells, Maine, formerly of Quincy, operator of the Faith McLarnon School of Dance in Quincy for 29 years.

Paul Clemente Sr., 97, of Quincy, a touring musician on bass, guitar and banjo for nearly 80 years.

Marilyn M. Sullivan, 83, of Quincy and Harwich, the first woman to be elevated to chief justice of the State Land Court.

Warren A. Birch, 74, of Quincy, former pro at the Wollaston Golf Club.

William C. Sullivan, 80, of Quincy, a Navy veteran of World War II, the Korean and the Vietnam wars.

March

The City Council unanimously approved a resolution recommending that the Police Department provide full cruiser coverage for all 13 sectors of the city 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Bruce Tait, president of the Patrolmen's Union, provided the Council with documents he said proved that the 13 sectors were not covered repeatedly and that sometimes as few as eight or nine cruisers were assigned on a shift.

"Specific shifts call for a different number of cars," Police Chief Robert Crowley told The Sun. "Some call for less than 13, some call for more. Our issue is public safety. We never do anything to compromise public safety."

Tait and Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymond noted that the Police Department returned $1.8 million in budgeted but unspent funding to the city treasury in the past year.

Tait called upon Mayor William Phelan to fire Crowley but the mayor said, "I support the chief," and he cited FBI statistics that have crowned Quincy as the second safest city in the state behind only Newton.

Members of the City Council urged both sides in the dispute "to tone down the rhetoric," then voted 8-1 Crowley's request to transfer $46,500 from the department's personnel budget to current expenses. Raymond cast the dissenting vote.

The mayoral campaign heated up when challenger Tom Koch called Phelan's four-color brochure that was sent out with the city census "a clear misuse of public money for political purposes," and he asked the state if the flyer violates election law.

More than 1,000 city workers, members of 16 unions, including teachers, firefighters, police, custodians and secretaries rallied in City Hall Plaza to demand action on their contracts and protection of their current health insurance benefits.

"Most of us are stalled," said Paul Phillips, president of the Quincy Education Association. "Some of the units haven't even started to talk. The issue is the same, benefits. We have to bargain. We are waiting for the city to do some negotiating."

"It is difficult to negotiate with the work force because, at all times, the taxpayer must be our primary consideration," said Mayor Phelan.

The License Board voted 3-1 to approve a controversial wine and beer license for the West Elm Variety Store at 139 West Elm Ave., Wollaston. Health Commissioner Drew Scheele voted against it.

The mayor's office announced that the city had settled a contract with the 49-member Superior Officer's Union giving them a 13 percent raise over four years and calling for them to pay 85 percent of their benefit package in Fiscal 2008 and 80 percent in Fiscal 2009.

Six new governors were sworn in to the board of governors of Quincy College, including Edward Browne, Jo Brogna, Jo Ann Bragg, Francis Byrne, Pedro Viejo-Rodriguez and Thomas Feenan.

Milk and gasoline don't mix, said Ward 1 City Councilor Leo Kelly as the Council debate a request by the owners of Exxon Mobil at Furnace Brook Parkway to sell food at their gas station.

Several firefighters were injured in falls on the ice and by smoke inhalation as they fought high winds and bitter cold to douse a fire that destroyed a house on Faxon Road. Damage was estimated at a half million dollars.

Front line soldiers in Iraq were enjoying the 1,500 items including T-shirts, shaving cream, sunglasses and phone cards, collected by students at Sterling Middle School in the George DePaulo U.S. Troop Drive.

Six city councillors voted to scrap a proposal to make recycling mandatory for city residents. Councillors who changed their minds focused on the mandatory nature of the plan with one of them warning that no one should embrace the word in an election year.

Richard Gormley, vice president of the Sovereign Bank, was reelected to a second term as president of the Quincy Business Association.

Phil Kelly, who weighs in at 285 pounds, was said to be the best ever wrestler ever at North Quincy High School after he won the South Sectional, State and New England Schoolboy titles with a 48-4 overall record.

Deaths in March included:

Edward F. Barry, 86, of Quincy, retired chief of the Quincy Fire Department.

The Rev. William H. Mullin, 67, of Quincy, a priest active in METCO, Habitat for Humanity and the Pine Street Inn.

Citing his "proud record" and accomplishments over the past five years, Mayor William Phelan announced his candidacy for a fourth term as the city's chief executive.

"I look forward to knocking doors, visiting the supermarkets, senior buildings and coffee shops to talk about what we have accomplished together over the past five years," he said.

"We have turned the city's finances around completely and we are now reaping the benefits of our hard work and reinvesting in our city and its neighborhood.

"I am proud of my record and hope to continue our success over the next two years."

Meanwhile, Phelan's challenger in the November election, Tom Koch, drew a crowd of nearly 1,500 to his campaign kickoff gathering in the ballroom at Granite Links Golf Club.

Koch's complaint that Phelan violated election laws when he mailed a newsletter "Quincy View" in the same envelope with census forms to every Quincy resident was rejected by the State Office of Campaign and Political Finance.

"This newsletter did not urge recipients to vote for or against any candidate or solicit campaign contributions," said Director Michael Sullivan. "Therefore it is our opinion that the distribution of the newsletter did not violate the campaign finance law."

Major Charles L. Bifulchi and Capt. E. Alan Brudno, both Quincy boys who were casualties of the Vietnam War, shared the spotlight as their old comrades observed Vietnam Veterans Day in their hometown.

The intersection of Willard, Robertson and Quarry Streets in West Quincy was dedicated to the memory of Major Bifulchi, who was listed as missing in action for 38 years until his remains were finally identified in 2006.

Capt. Brudno, who was a prisoner of war in North Vietnam for seven and a half years and took his own life after his release, was recognized at the Memorial Clock Tower in Marina Bay and $20,000 added to his scholarship fund.

Jennifer McCauley Logue, daughter of former Mayor Frank McCauley, announced her candidacy for an at-large seat on the City Council.

A live auction of first 12 Fenway Park License Plates raised $130,000 for construction of Mini Fenway Park, the kid-sized replica of the Boston Red Sox' fabled 95-year-old ball park.

State legislators forecast a $1.1 million increase in state aid to Quincy for the next fiscal year but warned that the state's finances look grim for the future.

Vincent R. Moscardelli, former principal of Central Junior High School, and environmentalist P. J. Foley were chosen as The Quincy Sun's co-Citizens of the Year for their outstanding community service.

Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin urged his colleagues to support "Parking Permit Districts," where parking would be limited to residents and their visitors in an effort to prevent commuters and non-resident employees from clogging the streets.

Avalon Corporation withdrew its plan to build 146 apartment units off Falls Boulevard and Mayor William Phelan said he will encourage the Community Preservation Committee to enter into open space acquisition discussions with Avalon.

Once again, Quincy dodged the bullet in a major northeast storm that wracked the New England coast, thanks mainly to a last minute shift in the wind and sound preparation by city workers.

The Adams National Historical Park opened its 60th season as part of the National Park Service with a record four-day count of 1,500 visitors.

Lena Lowry, who was born in Bologna, Italy, when Teddy Roosevelt was president, women were fighting for the right to vote and a postage stamp was two cents, celebrated her 100th birthday at her home in the Town Brook House.

A new five-bedroom, two and a half bath prefabricated home was put together in eight and a half hours on Craig Avenue for the Donnelly family, whose original house was destroyed by an explosion in the city's sewer system in June.

Jan Schlichtmann of the Massachusetts Public Shade Tree Trust, warned that trees are dying in Quincy because hundreds of gas leaks are seeping into the soil and draining off the oxygen needed for their survival.

Deaths in April included:

Joyce I. Baker, 80, of Quincy, co-founder of DOVE and past president of the Quincy Historical Society.

The Rev. James Hihimaki, 61, of Rosamond, Calif., former rector of Christ Church, Quincy.

Anthony F. Constantino, 91, of Quincy, founder and president for 40 years of St. John's Baseball Little League.

Education Spending, Employee Benefits Rise In FY08 Budget

May

Mayor William Phelan presented to the City Council a $250,844,657 budget for Fiscal 2008, an increase of 4.9 per cent over the previous year, due in large part, said the mayor, to a 12 per cent hike in employee benefits.

"Our budget line for 'Employee Benefits' has grown from $18 million in Fiscal 2002 to $42 million in Fiscal 2008," said Phelan.

The budget also called for a $5.1 million or 7 per cent increase in the education budget and one and two per cent hikes in fire and police respectively.

The City Council approved unanimously the Quincy Center Urban Revitalization District Plan (URDP), which envisions a makeover of 55 acres of the 113-acre Quincy Center.

The Quincy Education Association, whose teacher-members have been working without a contract since August, 2006, filed an unfair labor practice charge against both the city of Quincy and the School Committee.

Phelan kicked off his campaign for reelection to a fourth term at the Elks Lodge, reminding everyone that he had turned around the city's finances from a $5 million deficit to an $11 million surplus and a A+ bond rating in five and a half years.

The City Council approved a new anti-blight ordinance aimed at forcing negligent owners to clean up eyesores and health hazards on their properties.

Quincy became a major pioneer in senior citizen safety when Mayor Phelan designated the city's first senior traffic zone at 125 Granite St., a senior citizen residence, limiting traffic to 20 miles an hour.

Linda Stice, a member of the School Committee for 16 years, announced that she will not seek a fifth four-year term in the November elections. She plans to enter a doctoral program at Lesley College in Cambridge.

Bruce Tait, president of the Police Patrol Officers Association, challenged the FBI's ranking of Quincy as the second safest city in the Commonwealth, claiming the statistics were skewed by computer glitches in 2004 and 2005.

City Councillors asked Tait to stop using derogatory nicknames for members of the Council on his website, particularly a scatological term for Councillor Jay Davis.

"Leave the name-calling out of it," Councillor John Keenan advised Tait. "Let's bring dignity to the table; engage in civil debate."

Quincy and the Police Patrol Officer Union reached agreement on a four-year contract, giving the police a 13 per cent raise over its life and also allowing for reduction of the city's share in employee benefits to 85 per cent on July 1, 2007, to 80 percent on July 1, 2008, with all copays doubling on July 1, 2009.

The Park and Recreation Board voted 5-3 to proceed with construction of a new track at Pageant Field after the two-year absence of such a facility and the City Council approved the $1 million funding.

The U.S. Mint issued a $1 coin bearing the likeness of John Adams, the second president of the United States, in ceremonies at City Hall Plaza. The mint planned to strike four such coins a year, each honoring a president in order of his succession.

The Rev. John Swanson, pastor of the Union Congregational Church of Wollaston, used his appointment as guest speaker at Quincy's Memorial Day ceremonies to denounce those celebrities, columnists and ex-Presidents who make reckless and uninformed comments on the war in Iraq.

More than a dozen volunteers filled a 20 cubic yard dumpster, donated by Boston Scientific, with discarded tired, propane tanks and garbage bags full of plastic bottles, Styrofoam cups and snack wrappers in an Earth Day attack on the banks of the Neponset River.

Mayor Phelan used the Earth Day celebration to announce his new initiative, "Act Locally," a five-point plan to help improve the local and global environment over the next 12 months.

More than 1,450 volunteers fanned out across Quincy's park, beaches, marshes, school yards and open spaces, picking up an estimated 45 tons of trash in what was described as one of the most successful "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" cleanups in its 18-year history.

Forty of the city's municipal buildings were selected to undergo major energy improvements through Mayor Phelan's $32.8 million energy initiative that would

Attorney General Martha Coakley, the first woman to hold that statewide post, delivered the main address at Law Day ceremonies at Quincy District Court.

Three Quincy police officers, Lt. Charles Santoro and Officers Michael Sullivan and John Leuchte, were received the coveted Robert P. Dana Award for their actions in saving the life of an 81-year-old man who suffered a heart attack while driving his car.

Julia Ruth Stevens, 89, daughter of Babe Ruth, along with former Red Sox pitcher Bill Monbouquette, were the main speakers at the Quincy High School Hall of Fame banquet at the Sons of Italy Hall.

Deaths in May included: Ralph A. McLeod, 90, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, who played six games in the outfield for the Boston Brave in 1938.

Roy T. Cavicchi, 85, of Rockland, formerly of Quincy, a retired captain who served on the Quincy Police Department for 29 years.

June

Groundbreaking for the long-awaited new Quincy High School, scheduled for June 18, was postponed when 900 members of the Quincy Education Association, who had been working without a contract for 18 months, walked out in support of their bid for a new contract.

The teachers were assessed $150,000 in fines by the Norfolk Superior Court for an illegal strike.

The strike was in its fourth day when Paul Phillips, the union president, announced that an agreement had been reached on a five-year contract providing for a 17 per cent wage hike and an increase from 10 to 20 per cent the teachers' contribution to their health insurance.

The contract was ratified by the teachers on a 620-43 vote and supporters and unions across the state pitched in with unsolicited check to help the teachers pay the $150,000 fine.

Meanwhile, city officials were preparing for the new $126 million Quincy High School by closing a section of Woodward Avenue and awarding bid for the demolition of the administration building on Coddington Street.

Groundbreaking for the second phase of the Quincy

Concourse began with demolition of the former Tanline building on the Parkway to make way for the road that will link the Parkway to Quincy Center and the Southern Artery.

Bruce Tait, president of the Police Patrolmen's Association, said his union would seek expedited arbitration unless Chief Robert Crowley reversed a decision narrowing the window for vacation days.

Their request was turned down in Norfolk Superior Court.

The City Council voted unanimously to approve a four-year extension of a special permit allowing construction of the final 500 units of the 1,000-unit High Point development on Quarry Street.

Energy conservation improvements got underway in the number of municipal buildings as Quincy became the first city in Massachusetts to take advantage of funding available through the state's new Energy Savings Law.

The city was planning to spend some $700,000 in community preservation funds on historic landmarks, neighborhood housing and recreation projects, starting with 271 Sea St., the Avalon at Faxon Park West and the Turning Mill Estate off Forest Avenue.

The City Council appropriated $100,000 to pave the way for many neighborhood projects developed by the "Neighborhoods First" initiative from a survey that drew more than 9,000 responses from the public.

A total of 313 seniors graduated from Quincy High School and 359 from North Quincy High School in commencement ceremonies held at Adams Field in Merry Mount Park.

The City Council gave final approval to a $1 million bond needed to construct a new track at Pageant Field. The Council also recommended that special attention be paid to the uprooting and replacement of trees.

Brian Buckley of Quincy, the Norfolk County director of RSVP, was elected president of the Massachusetts Association of RSVP Directors.

Deaths in June included:

Jeanne L. Cope, 83, of Hingham, formerly of Quincy, who sang with a USO troupe in World War II.

Nancy Long, 72, of Quincy, a founder of the Squantum Community Association.

Theresa M. Chella, 89, of Quincy, an original doughnut maker for Dunkin' Donuts.

James G. Triglia, 74, of Quincy, former deputy sheriff and owner of Johnson's Motor Parts.

ciently complete.

A week after the first building permit was issued to begin clearing the way for the new $126 million Quincy High School, the first petition was filed asking the Board of Appeals to revoke the permit.

Environmentalism Bill Ayward, a longtime critic of the school's placement on Faxon Field, was seeking the annulment on grounds that an earlier order by the Conservation Commission was still in litigation.

Deadline for nomination papers passed and for the first time in 67 years there would be no preliminary election prior to the general balloting in November since no race had more than two candidates for each open seat.

The way was cleared for Tom Koch to oppose Bill Phelan for the mayor's office when Charles Denchey and Robert Boussy failed to return their nomination papers with the required 50 signatures.

Rep. Bruce Ayers filed a bill that would establish a special commission made up of residents and officials of Boston and Quincy for long term management of Moon and Long Islands in Boston Harbor.

The islands are owned by Boston but accessible by land only on a causeway to Moon Island and a bridge to Long Island through the Squantum section of North Quincy.

A faulty electrical fixture was blamed for a massive fire that ripped through the third floor of a vacant two-family house on Spear Street with damage estimated at $350,000.

A last minute contract agreement with Quincy's trash collection contractor Allied Waste narrowly averted a strike by members of Local 379 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters that would have interrupted the collection of trash and yard-waste in the city.

Lt. Gov. Tim Murray visited Quincy to help Mayor Phelan convince the city unions to join the Group Insurance Commission with municipal employees from across the state, saving taxpayers millions in health insurance payments.

Anthony Siciliano, 65, former deputy emergency director of Quincy, was convicted in Norfolk Superior Court of raping a teen-aged boy and sentenced to four-to-five years in prison.

Mayor Phelan requested the License Board to switch its meeting time from mid-morning to late afternoon to make it equally convenient for both residents and businessmen to attend.

Rep. Ron Mariano negotiated an emergency rescue fire truck, valued at $250,000 to $500,000, free of charge from the MWRA, after he discovered the truck was no longer needed by the state agency for its tunnel construction project at Fore River.

Former School Committee woman Jo-Ann Bragg announced that she was a candidate for a return to the Committee post she left two years before to make an unsuccessful bid for an at-large seat on the City Council.

Jimmy Liang, the restaurateur, announced his candidacy for the Ward 6 seat on the City Council currently held by Brian McNamee.

Ward 4 City Councillor Jay Davis proposed that the city create a discount "Quincy Card" for tourists that would give them discounts in the city's participating hotels, restaurants and other businesses.

Mayor Phelan asked the MBTA to set up a permanent barrier to prevent graffiti

The presidential wreath was placed on the totem of John Quincy Adams in United First Parish Church to mark the 240th birthday of the sixth president of the United States.

Dr. Carmen Mariano, 60, resigned as assistant superintendent of Quincy Public Schools to become the first president of Archbishop Williams High School, his alma mater in Braintree.

Summer work crews began painting the city's 2,400 hydrants in an effort to spruce up the city and alert firefighters to the different size water pipelines beneath the surface.

Quincy launched a pedestrian safety campaign that included 22 new "Pedestrian Safety" signs at crosswalks, police enforcement of pedestrian yield laws at intersections, and adding turning arrows at the intersection of East Squantum and Hancock Streets to improve traffic flow.

Jasmin Johansen, acclaimed as the best student-athlete ever to take the field for the Woodward School of Girls' soccer team, was selected as a member of the Bermuda national women's soccer team.

Deaths in July included: Emma M. Campbell, 101, of Quincy, a retired cook in the Weymouth Public Schools cafeteria.

Vincent R. Moscardelli, 69, of Braintree, former principal of Central Junior High School.

Marie A. Maloney, 103, a retired switchboard operator.

The Rev. Alfred Keane, 75, former pastor of St. Ann's Church of Wollaston.

Agnes M. Barilaro, 90, of Quincy, widow of the late Ward 4 City Councillor Albert Barilaro.

John Patterson, 95, of Quincy, a State Department liaison officer at the San Francisco conference that established the United Nations.

Marjorie F. Nash, 95, of Weymouth, retired office manager at The Quincy Sun.

August

Mayor William Phelan and his opponent in the November election, Tom Koch, traded charges regarding the new Quincy High School in their first debate in St. Thomas Aquinas Hall in Houghs Neck.

Koch accused Phelan of missing a state reimbursement deadline that cost the taxpayers $46 million and Phelan said that Koch, a senior official in the Sheets administration, wanted to build the school on a toxic waste dump.

In a different setting, Koch proposed a major re-vamping of the City License Board which would replace the police chief, the fire chief, the health commissioner and the building inspector with private citizens. The lineup had had no changes in 60 years.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi proposed a zoning ordinance amendment that would give the Planning Board strict supervision over the siting of the giant fans that draw energy from the wind.

After years of cramped quarters in the Snug Harbor Community School, the Germantown Neighborhood Center moved into a new and improved facility in the former St. Boniface Catholic Church on Palmer Street.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony highlighted a unique collaboration among the city, the YMCA, the Germantown Neighborhood Council, City Councillor Leo Kelly and the South Shore Building Trades Council, paid for with $1.3 million in CDBG funds.

Mary Ann Fitzpatrick, known as "Mrs. Fitz," retired 50 years to the day from when she was hired as the first clerk on the front desk of the Presidents City Inn when it first open in 1957.

The Tuesday meeting times of the Quincy License Board were changed from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. twice a month at the request of Mayor Phelan to give working residents more opportunity to attend and make their concerns known.

A half dozen police officers and firefighters were among the 30-odd persons who had their heads shaved at Marina Bay's Water Club on the Boardwalk, raising $14,000 for childhood cancer research through the St. Baldrick's Foundation.

Police Chief Robert Crowley proposed a smoking ban in the area on the right of City Hall Plaza known as McIntyre Mall in an effort to reduce loitering in the area.

Boston joined Quincy in an effort to pressure Coastal Zone Management and the EPA into banning waste dumping from boats into the waters of Boston Harbor and provide pump-out facilities at marinas and yacht clubs.

Ann Yeomans, the past treasurer, was elected chair of the Human Rights Commission succeeding Ed Grogan, who left after three terms.

Eight of 37 hand-made quilts hung for an exhibition scheduled to open at the Thomas Crane Public Library were stolen. The quilts, valued at $1,200, were created by students of the Quilters' Compass, which offered a reward for their return.

A secret male admirer sent a bouquet of 100 roses to the birthday party for Nesbit "Nebbie" McLellan as she celebrated her 100th birthday at Fenno House in Wollaston.

The 20th annual August Moon Festival drew upwards of 10,000 people to downtown Quincy, where the age-old Chinese festival, sponsored by Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., was held for the first time.

center in Merrymount Park, an intergenerational complex added to the current home of the Park and Recreation Department within the park.

"Quincy's senior population has long been underrepresented in our park system and in the services that we provide that particular population," said the mayor.

The Moorings at Squantum Gardens, offering 223 units of affordable housing for adults, ages 55 and over, built on 14 acres of the old Squantum Naval Air Station, was officially opened, ending a decade-long struggle.

In view of the drought conditions prevailing, residents were urged to water the more than 300 new trees planted by the city in the past year as part of the "Neighborhood First" program.

Three new Typhoon Emergency One engines were delivered to the Quincy Fire Department under the city's five-year Capital Improvement Plan, replacing three that were approximately 75 years old in combined age.

Members of the Quincy Education Association instructed their president, Paul Phillips, that they did not want to participate in the Group Insurance Commission, the state's employee health insurance program, this year.

Other union presidents said they also needed time to evaluate the program and alternative plans which it is claimed would save the city millions in employee health benefit premiums.

Faced with the unions' reluctance to sign on, the City Council sent the state's insurance plan back to the Ordinance Committee for further study and education of the council and the public and asked the state for an extension on the city's deadline to join.

The Homeless Women's Shelter in the basement of the old St. John's School, one of the three original shelters that joined hands to become Father Bill's Place, closed its doors for good after going without a client for two years.

The Post Island Road neighborhood of Houghs Neck was choosing up sides in a dispute that centered around a year-old Rottweiler named Boris, owned by Police Officer Joseph McGunigle and his wife, Dianne, who neighbors claimed terrorized the area.

Paul Adamson of Squantum was hailed as a hero when he saved the life of 10-year-old neighbor boy, Danny Marks, after the youngster had touched a 13,800-volt power line while climbing a tree.

Joanne Swingle Hennigan, granddaughter of J. S. Swingle, Quincy's last granite proprietor, and her partner, Joe Greene, were preparing a TV documentary on the granite industry in the city.

Bruce Tait, president of the Police Patrol Officers Association, issued a criminal complaint charging Chief Robert Crowley deliberately ordered Officer Michael O'Brien to drive a cruiser after his license expired so that he could cite him for it.

The City Council, acting on the recommendation of the Community Preservation Committee, authorized the purchase for open space of the nearly 3.4 acre property on Sea Street known as "Cobblestone" for $1.2 million.

Former Boston Mayor and Vatican Ambassador Ray Flynn told the John D. Noonan 12th annual Senior Conference that senior citizens still have an important role to play in life. "They inspire the world," he said.

The Red Cross announced that, as of Oct. 31, its Hancock Street office will no longer be open on a daily basis with two staffers but volunteers will still answer fires and emergencies in Quincy and offer training in its downtown office.

More than 1,500 runners took part in the 15th and final Degan Memorial Road Race, raising close to $56,000 for local charities. The race honors U.S. Deputy Marshal William Degan, who lost his life in the line of duty.

Deaths in September included:

Joseph P. Quinn, 85, of Quincy, retired commander of Quincy Naval Reserve Center.

Peter N. Cakridas, 77, of Quincy, retired president and CEO of the Leukemia Society of America.

Bruce D. Randall, 76, of Quincy, a cellist for the Quincy Symphony Orchestra for 25 years.

Vytautas Bruzgys, 80, of Quincy, a retired senior scientist at Polaroid.

October

Funeral mass was celebrated for Cpl. Ciara M. Durkin, 30, of Houghs Neck, an Army National Guardswoman who died under mysterious circumstances in Afghanistan, touching off an investigation into what the Army called a "non-combat related incident."

Her body was found, shot once in the head, on the Bagram Air Base, where she was assigned as a payroll specialist. On her last visit home, she had implied that she had found out some information that placed her life in jeopardy.

Thomas Clasby resigned as director of Elder Services, the $67,613-a-year post he held for eight years, citing instances where Mayor William Phelan had cut him out of planning for the new senior center in Merrymount Park.

The Quincy Retirement Board revoked the $39,860 pension of convicted youth rapist Anthony Siciliano, 65, the retired general foreman in the Traffic Department and deputy director of Emergency Management.

Siciliano planned an appeal. GIOIOSO Corporation of Hyde Park was the successful low bidder on the $4-million plan to reconstruct and streetscape McGrath Highway, connecting Southern Artery with Downtown Quincy, a key part of the plan to revitalize the business dis-

TWENTY-SEVEN of Quincy's 42 living former and present city councillors attended a reunion in October at the Quincy Historical Society. Mayor Phelan announced that outside auditors have completed their review of last year's budget and found that the surplus for Fiscal 2007 will be approximately $4 million.

Father Bill's Place, the homeless shelter in Quincy, merged with Mainspring Coalition for the Homeless of Brockton into the newly formed Father Bill's & Mainspring to bring aid and comfort to the homeless all over southeastern Massachusetts.

The city launched a new anonymous drug activity tip line under which residents can log onto the Police Department page on the city web-site and report any suspicious activity without identifying themselves.

Stop & Shop announced plans to keep its headquarters in Quincy, preserving 1,000 jobs in the downtown area, and Mayor Phelan said the supermarket giant is working with an urban design firm on a major investment in Quincy Center.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi charged that sidewalk projects in his ward have been neglected and suggested that public works projects are being prioritized. He said 15 Ward 2 sidewalks included in a $2 million bond were "summarily removed."

Former City Councillor Larry Chretien, now executive director of Mass Energy, told the City Council that wind power is here to stay and Quincy should be prepared for it by established a by-law on wind facilities.

"You must have a process so that it is regulated and controlled," he said.

Cardinal Sean O'Malley visited Bad Abbots Pub in Quincy to lead the discussion in "Theology of Tap," a seminar on beer.

Some 400 union members braved gusts of wind and the threat of rain to rally at City Hall Plaza in support of the city's 12 labor unions that have been operating without contracts since July, 2006.

Joseph Shea was unanimously approved by the City Council for a new three year term as city clerk.

Jennifer Logue, daughter of former Mayor Frank McCauley and a candidate for an at-large seat on the City Council, presented Mayor Phelan with a petition containing 800 names seeking a halt to the Quincy Center Concourse project.

Gov. Deval Patrick visited the Merrymount School for a public meeting on his Readiness Project, a 10-year strategic plan for public education from kindergarten through college.

More than 1,200 walkers raised at least a record-breaking $185,000 for the Mary Curry Fund at the 10th Quincy Medical Center Cancer Walk. The fund provides free cancer screenings and education for the community.

Pastor James L. Kimmel, PJ to his parishioners, announced his retirement after 38 years of service to the Faith Lutheran Church. During that time, he also served on the Quincy Housing Authority and a chaplain for the Quincy Fire Department.

Interfaith Social Services celebrated its 60th anniversary with a dinner at the Neighborhood Club.

Felice J. Giovannangeli, 70, of Quincy, bridge operator supervisor at the Fore River Bridge.

Dr. Stanley J. Mikal, 87, of Mashpee, formerly of Quincy, former chief of vascular surgery at Carney Hospital.

William E. "Bill" Shea, 79, of Quincy, founder and owner of Bill Shea's Formica.

Alice M. Foley, 95, of Chelmsford, formerly of Quincy, former secretary to the Quincy chief of police.

November

Former Park Commissioner Tom Koch won the mayor's office with a stunning upset victory over William Phelan, the three-term incumbent, taking 54.1 per cent of the vote.

Koch, 44, defeated Phelan by a surprising 2,051 votes in what many foresaw as one of the closest elections in recent years. The vote was Koch 12,672, Phelan 10,621. The voter turnout was 44.05 per cent.

In other races:

Councillors at-large Joseph Finn, John Keenan and Michael McFarland topped the field for reelection. Finn leading with 13,082 votes followed by Keenan with 12,417 and McFarland with 11,073.

Their challengers, Jennifer McCauley Logue, daughter of former Mayor Frank McCauley, got 8,769 votes and Victor Ng 5,751.

In the only other City Council race, Brian McNamee won a second term in Ward 6, holding off the challenge of Jimmy Liang, 2,722 to 1,618.

Jo-Ann Bragg returned after a two-year absence to take the seat on the School Committee being vacated by Linda Stice. She got 12,430 votes followed by incumbents David McCarthy 11,915 and Elaine Dwyer 10,897.

Newcomers Nicholas Puleo and Eileen Mullen pulled in behind with 7,296 and 7,136 votes respectively.

Five ward councillors were reelected unopposed: Ward 1 Leo Kelly 3,288, Ward 2 Daniel Raymond 2,740, Ward 3 Kevin Coughlin 3,028, Ward 4 Jay Davis 2,063, and Ward 5 Doug Gutro 3,242.

Koch, the incoming mayor, told The Sun in a post-election interview that he was planning to make drastic changes in former Mayor Phelan's routing of the Quincy Center Concourse, the cross-town connector through Hancock Street.

"We need the roadway," he said. "But there is no need to take the Cinema building with all its expense. The road can be accommodated through the vacant lot."

Koch named his incoming Chief of Staff James Fatsias to head the transition team that will smooth his way into office in January.

Preliminary 2008 real estate revaluations, required every three years by state law, were available on the city's website and City Hall and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Marybeth O'Sullivan, a commander in the Navy Nurse Corps, paraphrased the words of the old union activist Mother Jones when she told Quincy's Veterans Day observance to "pray for the dead but fight like 'heck' for the living," referring to support for the troops in Iraq.

Boston Red Sox ace pitcher Curt Schilling and his family were guests and rode in the 55th annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade which drew an estimated 200,000 people to its three mile route down Hancock Street.

Katherine (Finnegan) Aalto, who remembered her brothers stoking a coke-fired furnace in their childhood home and riding in a Model T Ford, turned 102 years old at the Salvation Army's Adult Day Care Center.

Richard Welch, president and CEO of the Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group. Received the annual Maria Droste Award.

Diego Arredondo scored twice in the fourth period to lead underdog Quincy to 28-7 victory over North Quincy in the 75th revival of their series on Thanksgiving Day. It was the Presidents ninth straight win over their rival Raiders.

Deaths in November included:

Rosalie P. Palmer, 81, of Quincy, who sang with Benny Goodman and Artie Shaw under the name Patty Gale.

John J. Jack "Madden of Quincy, who was voted "Mr. Merrymount" in 1977.

James F. Donahue, 76, of Quincy, an engineer who was chairman of the Quincy Conservation Commission for 15 years.

Francis M. Barrett, 79, of Scituate, formerly of Quincy, founder of the Barrett Restaurant Group.

Ned V. Mannai, 75, of Hingham, formerly of Quincy, owner and CEO of XS Brokers Insurance Co.

December

Quincy's residential tax rate for Fiscal 2008 was expected to increase by 1.69 per cent or $65 for the average homeowner under the tax plan prepared by outgoing Mayor William Phelan.

The tax proposal and the city's new property revaluations were presented to the City Council by Chief Assessor Marion Fantucchio, who emphasized that all date, including the propose tax rate, was subject to certification by the state Department of Revenue.

Mayor-elect Tom Koch was planning to take the oath of office as Quincy's 33rd mayor on Jan. 7 in the ballroom of the Quincy Marriott Hotel, the first time in modern memory the ceremony has been held outside a municipal building.

Koch named School Committeeman James Timmins as the new city solicitor when he takes office in January. The appointment of Timmins to succeed Monica Conyngham leaves an opening on the School Committee.

Koch also named Helen Murphy, executive director of Elder Housing Corp. to be operations officer and Chris Walker, former Patriot Ledger reporter, to be policy director.

The State School Building Authority released a list of 83 schools still in competition for a share in $500 million available for school building in 2008 and Quincy century-old Central Middle School was one of them.

Stephen O'Donnell resigned as commissioner of Public Works, the first member of the Phelan Administration to leave to give the new mayor an opportunity to name his own man to the post.

The Community Preservation Committee was seeking City Council approval of a $3.3 million bond issue for the purchase of 13.75 acres off Circuit and Bower Roads, known as the Hazeltine: property, for open space.

Mayor Phelan placed a hold on construction plans for a track facility on Faxon Field, the location of which was opposed by incoming Mayor Koch.

The last two of eight quilts stolen from an exhibit in the Thomas Crane Public Library in August were recovered after they were turned in at the Pine Street Inn, a homeless shelter in Boston.

The Quincy Point Panther, a 12-member cheerleading squad, finished second in New England competition in their division and qualified to compete in the United Cheerleading Association finals in Orlando, Fla., in February.

Bob Noble resigned as head football coach at Quincy High School after nine years on the job with a 39-48-2 overall record and a record of never having lost to North Quincy in nine Thanksgiving Day games.

Deaths in December included:

John E. "Jack" Koegele, 76, of Quincy, former city councillor from Ward 3.

Joseph B. "John" Grossman II, 94, of Quincy, vice president of Grossman Lumber.

Quincy/Weymouth Group Awarded $2M For Homeless

The Quincy/Weymouth Continuum of Care has been awarded $2,158,847 in federal homeless assistance funding under the 2007 McKinney-Vento Program, a 10 per cent increase over the previous year.

The award from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development brings to $14,672,216 in McKinney-Vento funding the continuum has received since 1996 for the homeless in Quincy and Weymouth.

The 2007 funding will be used for:

- $1,133,532 allocated to the "Shelter Plus Care" program, which will provide housing for 110 individuals.
- $777,541 allocated among five projects, which will be used to provide housing for 32 individuals and 22 families over the next year. One of the five projects will run for two years with an option to file for a renewal.
- $86,509 earmarked for one project to assist homeless individuals with housing and employment assistance.

- $69,548 used to enable the city to participate in a program called the Homeless Management Information System, which provide homeless assistance data to HUD.

The remaining $91,717 will be allocated to the city's Emergency Shelter Grant program, which will be earmarked to provide essential services and related assistance to Father Bill's Place.

states.

However, earlier this year, states began moving up their primary election dates, with many choosing early January. And other states began competing for earlier and earlier dates.

In the Feb. 5 primaries, voters will choose either Democratic or Republic party ballots and vote their choice for president, state committee man, state committee woman and ward committee.

The presidential election will be held Tuesday, November 4.

City Clerk Joseph Shea presented the election information to the City Council, noting that there would be no referendum on the ballots.

City councillors approved the details as presented and voted the 2008 political calendar for the presidential primary election.

Due to the change in the primary date, Shea said that no referendums will be on the February ballot. To date, there are nine petitions in circulation throughout the state. These will now be on fall ballots.

One petition seeks changes in the law regarding marijuana, another the repeal of the income tax and two petitions seek laws for the protection of greyhounds.

Also circulating are petitions for Constitutional amendments. One proposed amendment would lower the voting age to 16 years old; another would end the income tax, a third would revise the voter initiative process.

Give A Pint Of Blood, Get A Pound Of Coffee

January being National Blood Donor Month, a pint of blood will be worth a pound of Dunkin' Donuts coffee at American Red Cross donor venues.

One stop on the blood drive will be Saturday, Jan. 12, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, 2 Dariow St., Houghs Neck sponsored by the Dr. Joseph "Bampa" Sullivan Memorial.

The second will be Monday, Jan. 28, from 1 to 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St., sponsored by the Quincy Community.

For each pint given, the donor will receive a coupon entitling him or her to a pound of coffee from Dunkin' Donuts.

Donors should be in good health, at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds, have not been tattooed or pierced in the past year and have not donated whole blood in the past 56 days.

And it would help if they liked Dunkin' Donuts coffee, too.

For more information, contact 800-448-3543.

Firefighters Shaping Up

West Quincy Station Wins $6,500 Multi-Gym Contest

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Firefighters at Engine 5 in West Quincy are molding their muscles, and shaping up like Schwarzenegger, thanks to the top-of-the-line exercise equipment that the crew won recently.

The new unit "exercises every muscle group you can think of," according to Engine 5 Captain Peter Williams.

The equipment, a Paramount FIT 5000 multi-gym valued at $6,500, was top prize in a contest developed by Dave Aykanian, owner of PFE (Precision Fitness Exercise) of Newton. PFE sponsored the contest with The Boston Herald.

Crews at other stations are jealous, according to Captain Williams who heard other firefighters say of the contest, "I wish we did it."

Since winning the contest, the Engine 5 firefighters have painted a new workout area in the basement of their Copeland Street station. For extra protection, they've also raised a section of the flood-pore cement floor.

"It was a team effort," Williams said of the station's victory over dozens of fire departments across the state.

"The whole station is a good bunch of guys, motivated people. Everybody works here. If you're not prone to get up and go, you'll migrate to another station."

Quincy's application included an essay and photos depicting the sorry state of the stationhouse gym equipment and the even sadder exaggerated physical deterioration of one longtime firefighter.

When PFI judges saw Engine 5's hand-me-down apparatus, they told Williams, "Oh, my God. You can't even find weights like this."

Contestants were supposed to be creative and have fun, according to Williams who laughed as he explained Engine 5's entry which included an essay by Firefighter Bill Arienti, a picture of the station's deflated weight bag, and of the before and after physical condition of Firefighter Ed Nardone.

The first photo portrayed a young Nardone. When recruited as a rookie in 1985, the young Nardone supposedly had the rippling muscles of a Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson.

An updated photo caught Nardone, 22 years later, leaning on an engine with a double chin, soft upper arms and forearms, and a jelly belly supported by blue suspenders.

Both photos were distorted in fun. The first one, actually, was digitally enhanced with Nardone's head super-imposed on a body-builder image.

When the contest sponsors "came in to verify the pictures," Williams was told, "All the judges laughed when they saw our application."

One of the judges, David Ramsey, PFE's Commercial Sales Manager, called Engine 5's entry "very unquiere, very well put together. They did a good job."

Arienti's essay describes Nardone's fictional rescue of a woman from a burning third floor tenement. The short narrative states,

"I grab her lifeless body with my two hands as each muscle in my body strains. It is now more than ever before (that) I wish I had a proper gym to work out on."

The entry ends, "By the way, if we win the contest, the woman lives."

Within the essay, Arienti describes the Engine 5 workout area. "For a fire station as important as ours, our gym is pathetic. A couple of free weights, an old broken bench, a broken stair-stepper and a deflated speed punching bag is our complete workout area. Please help us!"

Captain Williams said Engine 5 with 13 firefighters on four shifts, covers West Quincy, the Expressway and the Blue Hills with roughly six calls a day. "We're the second busiest engine company in the city."

In fact, Williams was interrupted because Engine 5 responded to a fire call midway through his interview.

While the contest encouraged a light approach, physical fitness is of major importance for firefighters who must meet stringent physical conditions when hired but are never tested again.

Fitness has become a major topic in recent months, according to Williams who noted that Boston's Mayor Thomas Menino is addressing the issue.

"Fitness has got to be a big part of their job," said Williams of all firefighters who are generally self-motivated. "This job is all about being strong, lifting people, moving hoses, carrying ladders."

Smaller communities often design gyms in their firehouses and provide workout equipment for firefighters, according to Williams who said that cities generally don't finance such expenses. As a result, firefighters bring in old equipment from home.

That's why the contest was especially important, said Williams. "We want to publicly thank them for what they've done."

PFI owner Aykanian said they've sponsored the same contest for high school students and police departments across the state. "Out of all the contests, we've had, we had the most response from (firefighters), a lot of communities. They're in need of the equipment."

Roger's Story

Here is an e-mail I received from a contractor that I frequently work with on fire prevention issues.

He told me this story, which he conveyed in writing to friends and loved ones; and I asked if he would send me a copy. The e-mail speaks for itself.

"Good morning! I want to share a quick personal story with you, having to do with my carbon monoxide detector in my home.

Last February I got home from work around 6 p.m. My wife was already home and as she began dinner as she normally does, she turned up the heat, just another average day.

While doing so she mentioned one small detail to me, she told me of a funny sound coming from our bedroom area. I went to check it out and noticed the carbon monoxide detector that I had installed approximately 10 years ago was finally making a sound.

My first reaction was then that there must be something wrong with detector, after all, it has been plugged in for 10 years without making a sound. I then cleaned it up, plugged it back in and continued a normal evening at home.

Approximately one hour later, the detector started to alarm again. It then occurred to me that we might have a carbon monoxide leak within the home. Realizing that carbon monoxide is odorless and virtually undetectable, I decided to call the gas company.

They responded quickly, equipped with carbon monoxide detection, and determined that the gas-fired furnace was emitting fumes into our home. After further investigation they found the chimney was clogged with pine needles, leaves, etc. 60 years of buildup. I am embarrassed to say that in the 24 years I have lived in this house, I never once thought to clean out the chimney.

In closing, the lessons learned here are: Install carbon monoxide detectors in your home, periodically clean your chimneys, test your carbon monoxide detectors, evacuate your home when the detector sounds and call your local fire department.

This little story is important to me where I now realize if we did not have carbon monoxide detectors in our home, we would have gone to bed that evening in a home filled with carbon monoxide. I shutter to think what the outcome would then have been!"

I applaud this gentleman for having brought this story to others' attention, while I thank him now for allowing me to do so as well.

If you suspect that there is a carbon monoxide exposure within your home, get out of the house and get fresh air immediately. Call the fire department from a neighbor's house and if you have symptoms of exposure, seek medical help immediately. You might pass this story onto others as well.

Thank You.

What Goes Up, Must Come Down

While we celebrate the Christmas holiday this week, most of us DIY'ers are already thinking about the chore of removing and storing outdoor and indoor decorations. Here are some safe and effective tips for taking down all those holiday decorations you so painstakingly put up.

—Use a sturdy ladder whether working indoors or outdoors, with a helper to hold it steady.

—Always use caution when working around electricity.

—Change any burnt-out bulbs before taking down light strings, and secure remaining replacement bulbs in their small plastic bags near the end of each string.

—Putting a light string back onto the same plastic card from which it came from the store can be maddening. Instead, wrap the string around a spare piece of cardboard. To keep them from sliding off, cut small notches along each side of the cardboard and slip the wires into the notches as you wind on the string.

—Store outdoor and indoor lights in separate, weather-resistant boxes, and mark each box clearly.

—To keep from having to hunt down extension cords next year, pack extension cords with their corresponding light sets. Purchase any additional cords that you will need now, during the after-Christmas sales.

—Lawn decorations should also be packed in clearly marked, weather-resistant boxes (see-through plastic storage boxes are ideal). Place newspaper or biodegradable packing peanuts between items to prevent scratches and dings.

—Fully deflate inflatable lawn decorations; coil tethering ropes and tie off to prevent tangles, and collect and tape together anchoring stakes so they can be found easily next year.

—Designate a spot in the garage, attic or basement to store all holiday decorations together, and place them so that the biggest items come out first (such as the tree, lights and lawn decorations) and the smaller trimming items come out last.

Taking down holiday decorations is never going to be an absolute breeze, but storing them properly will minimize headaches next year and beyond.

Jack Conway & Co. Helps Meals On Wheels

Helping the elderly was on the minds of the agents and employees of Jack Conway and Co. who recently took part in Strolling the Mall at the South Shore Plaza Braintree.

South Shore Elder Services, Inc. presented the walkathon as a fundraiser for Meals on Wheels. SSES is a non-profit organization whose mission is to promote and maintain an optimal level of elder independence through coordination of resources, advocacy and caregiver support. Meals on Wheels Program provides nutritionally balanced and satisfying meals to more than 1,300 homebound elders daily.

Jen Kern and Joyce Delgado from Conway-Quincy were in full swing as they hiked around the shiny floor, as Donna Anderson and Robbie Lindo from Conway-Abington kept pace. The entire Lindo family joined in the festivities - Cecilia, Ellie and Max with mom, Renee. Ellie and Cecilia made cards to be given with the homebound elders meals over the holidays.

The group wore Conway Country t-shirts in support of the company for this worthy cause. Conway-Quincy is also an active participant in the program, as agents deliver meals to homebound elders on a regular basis during the year.

Led by Kate Norton, the group raised $300 for the program and the company donated $250. South Shore Elder Services delivers Meals on Wheels to the following towns: Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

Tips To Keep Your Home Properly Humidified

(NAPS) - According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, proper humidification is vital to both comfort and health. During cold weather, the ideal level of humidity in the home should be between 25 and 40 percent, compared to less than 60 percent in hot weather. That is because humid air holds more moisture, making your feel warmer. If the humidity levels in the home are less than that, your skin and nasal tissues can become damaged and heating efficiency is reduced.

Adding additional moisture to your home can protect your house and its contents while creating a healthy, more comfortable and energy-efficient environment. Fortunately, the heating, ventilating and air-conditioning industry offers a variety of products to increase home humidity and return the moisture it desperately needs.

A whole-house humidifier is a simple solution that can be installed in your home's ductwork. Air heated by your furnace or heat pump picks up moisture as it passes over the humidifier's evaporator pad, which is saturated in water.

The York bypass whole-house humidifier and the powered flow-through humidifier from Johnson Controls use this technology to deliver air throughout the home. Both are easy to maintain and come with a control device that mounts to a wall or ductwork, allowing you to control your indoor humidity levels.

When a humidifier is paired with a York Affinity modulating gas furnace, homeowners will complement their humidity control with a "total comfort system." By modulating the gas input and the circulating airflow to closely match the amount of heat needed, this furnace delivers maximum performance, comfort and savings.

To learn more about heating systems and how to humidify your home, visit www.yorkupg.com or call (800) 910-YORK.

Personal Finance: Refinancing Your Adjustable-Rate Mortgage Into A Fixed-Rate Mortgage

(NAPS) If you are among the millions of homeowners with an adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM), you may be facing increasing interest rates as your loan adjusts. Refinancing might be the solution to your problem.

Homeowners' refinancing for a variety of reasons, including taking cash out of their home's equity to make improvements, consolidating debt and to obtain a more favorable interest rate. However, many Americans are now refinancing primarily to move from an adjustable-rate to a predictable, fixed-rate mortgage to avoid future interest rate adjustments.

"There are many factors to consider when refinancing your mortgage depending on your particular situation," says Jim Ferrier, executive vice president for GMAC Mortgage. "If you have been living in your home for several years or if you're facing a rate reset on an adjustable-rate mortgage, you may find that refinancing pays for itself from the resulting lower monthly payment of not feeling the comfort of having a fixed monthly payment."

Here are tips to help you consider whether refinancing is an option for you:

Know The Terms Of Your Current Mortgage:

How often will your mortgage adjust? How much will it adjust? These are both important factors to consider when determining if refinancing is a viable option. Contact your lender now so that you are fully aware of the terms of your ARM loan to avoid any surprises when your mortgage adjusts.

Think About How Long You Will Live In Your Home:

A big factor in deciding to refinance is calculating how long you will continue to live in your house. The longer you live in your home, the more money you can potentially save in interest costs from refinancing. GMAC Mortgage has several helpful tools on its Web site, www.gmacmortgage.com, including a break-even calculator that will tell you how many years you will need to live in your home to recoup the cost of refinancing.

Maintain A

Good Credit Score:

A good credit score is one factor that could enable you to obtain more favorable financing terms. Paying bills on time and keeping credit card debt low are easy ways to maintain good credit. Check your credit report every year; ensure there are no negative marks on your credit history, such as missed payments or late charges.

Determine

Refinancing Costs:

Refinancing costs can be a significant factor in figure out what fees are involved with refinancing. You may have to pay an application fee as well as closing costs. You may also choose to pay discount points to buy down the interest rate. By knowing the up-front costs for refinancing, you can determine exactly how much time it will take to recover the expense.

Roll-in Refinancing:

You can avoid paying fees up front and immediately enjoy lower monthly payments by rolling in your closing costs into the new loan. Rolling in your costs is particularly appropriate if you will sell your home or refinance again in a few years because having a higher loan balance will likely matter less than being able to enjoy the immediate benefit of lower monthly payments.

Every homeowner has a different scenario for determining if refinancing is a good option. Here's the bottom line: It might make sense to refinance if you have the opportunity to save money by lowering the cost of your monthly payment or the opportunity to seek the comfort of knowing your mortgage is paid through the end of the term.

For more information on refinancing, visit www.gmacmortgage.com.

Best Mortgage Moves In A Slowing Housing Market

(NAPS)—Given the recent changes in the mortgage and housing markets, many current and potential homeowners are asking themselves the question of what to do next in regard to their home financing situation. Whether you are looking to purchase your first home or are already a homeowner and want to maximize your investment, there are a number of home financing options to consider. GMAC Mortgage (www.gmacmortgage.com) offers the following tips to help make your next mortgage move:

First-Time Homebuyers

The biggest concerns for first-time homebuyers right now are fluctuating interest rates as well as home values. However, buying a home with a fixed-rate loan now will ensure that future rises in interest rates will not impact your monthly payment. In addition, because of current market conditions, many first-time homebuyers have a large inventory of homes from which to choose. Prices in many markets have stabilized or moved off their highs over the past year as demand has softened, so your dollars could go much farther than they have in the past.

If you decide to move forward with the search for your first home, consider getting preapproved for a mortgage. Becoming preapproved will give you a much better idea of your buying powers as well as reassure home sellers that you are a serious buyer.

Existing Homeowners

If you are a homeowner with an adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM), hybrid ARM or interest-only mortgage, now is a good time to consider refinancing into a fixed-rate loan. Even if the overall interest rate rises, there is a good chance that a fixed-rate mortgage payment will be lower than what you may pay if your adjustable-rate loan adjusts soon.

Homeowners currently repaying variable-rate home equity lines of credit should also review their options. Refinancing to a fixed-rate home equity loan could be advantageous, but you should first check with your lender.

Buy-downs

Another option, whether you are considering refinancing your current mortgage or exploring your first mortgage, is to elect to buy down the interest rate. With a "buy-down," a borrower or seller pays part of the interest up front, lowering the borrower's monthly rate for a set period of time.

With the proper research and the assistance of a qualified mortgage professional, securing the right mortgage product can put you in a more advantageous situation to help you meet your home ownership goals.

For more information on mortgage strategies, consumers can call (800) 888-GMAC.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, Dec. 12, at approximately 5 p.m., Officer Steven Kelly was dispatched to Wal-Mart to meet with store security, which were holding a female suspect for stealing a wallet. They were also detaining a male, who was the boyfriend of the suspect and owner of the car they arrived in.

Store security stated they were watching the female suspect, who was roaming the store asking shoppers for money, even asking one of the plain clothes security officers. They observed her as she left the store briefly and walked to a car parked far away from the entrance, then walk back into the store.

LT. DAN MINTON

Security told Officer Kelly that a female customer then approached them and stated that her "Coach" brand wallet had been stolen from her carriage, so they approached the female suspect and brought her to the security office.

Officer Kelly interviewed the victim and learned that she was shopping in the store with her two-year-old daughter sitting in the basket section of the car and her wallet in the seat section, when she was approached by a female asking for money to help pay for her subscription. The victim said she knew the suspect was "on something" but decided to help her.

They walked over to the Wal-Mart in-store pharmacy and the suspect then spoke to the pharmacist, who told the suspect he could not fill the prescription. The victim said she was cleaning her daughter's hands and when she looked up, the suspect was walking briskly toward the exit door. The victim looked to where he wallet was and it was gone!

The victim believed the suspect had taken the wallet because no one else was in the immediate vicinity. The victim then contacted security and as she was telling them the story, the suspect returned to the store, where she was apprehended by security.

Officer Kelly questioned the suspect about her behavior. She said she was returning a bracelet and shopping with a friend and couldn't find him, so she left the store to see if he was in his car, but he was not, so she returned to the store. Officer Kelly then went to the car and looked inside, but did not observe anything suspicious.

When Officer Kelly returned, a Wal-Mart employee told Officer Kelly that the suspect asked to use the bathroom so she went in with her and observed the suspect throw a pair of glasses, with a Wal-Mart price tag attached, in a trash barrel. The employee reached into the barrel and retrieved the glasses as evidence.

Officer Kelly placed the suspect under arrest for shoplifting and transported to the station. The officer then reviewed the security videotapes, which showed the suspect walking out the door of Wal-Mart with a wallet in her hand, then meets up with a man, give him the wallet and then go to the car parked across the parking lot. Although the wallet, with $100 inside, along with credit cards, etc., was not found.

Officer Kelly added the charge of larceny over $250 (wallet and contents) against the 50-year-old Pembroke resident.

In this case, prevention was the key to becoming a victim. The victim recognized the suspect was under the influence of drugs, yet she exposed herself, her daughter and her property to the suspect by trying to help her. Being a Good Samaritan is always commendable, however, if you know that something is wrong or something doesn't feel right, do not put yourself at risk: walk away and report the suspicious activity to the police.

A second concern is leaving your wallet sitting in the carriage for anyone to take. When shopping, to be able to keep focused on your child or children and shop at the same time is not easy. By taking only what you need — a credit card, cash and identification in a pocket — will reduce your stress and as well as your chance of becoming a victim.

Presidents Poised To Make Some Noise

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy Presidents varsity girls' basketball team is lined up this winter to do some serious damage in Atlantic Coast League play.

The Presidents return four starters from last year's 11-11 team, including senior captains Megan Tobin (guard) and Marybeth Torpey (guard), senior Elizabeth Bock (center) and sophomore Leslie Campbell (forward).

Quincy used a late-season run last season to gain a spot in the Division II South Sectionals as the #20 seed. The Presidents defeated Silver Lake HS, 46-41, in a preliminary round game before losing to #4 Hingham HS, 55-41 in the first round.

"This year's team is a senior-laden squad," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "We have seven seniors on the team, including Tobin, Torpey and Bock who were all starters for us last season."

"Our biggest strength this season will be the experience and veteran leadership that these players and some of our younger players who were with us last year will bring to the court."

Besides Tobin, Torpey and Bock, the Presidents have seniors Julie Kisielius (guard), Kathryn Carella (forward), Kyrstin Newsom (forward) and Kerri Ryan (center) on the roster. Juniors Elisa Lam (guard), Katie Chernicki (forward) and Deanna Hutchins (forward) join sophomores Campbell and Colleen Tobin (forward) and freshman Kori Sorensen (guard) as underclassmen whom should be counted on for major minutes and contributions as the season progresses.

"It should be advantageous for us that we have so many players with game experience," added Bretsch. "Of our five starters, all have at least two years of experience, and that should help form some type of team success."

In Tobin and Torpey, Bretsch has two players who have only gotten better over their four years at Quincy High School, but he also predicts big things for his other seniors and underclassmen.

"Marybeth had a breakout year for us last season and I expect her to be even better this season," he said. "And Tobin is our best shooter. But Carella is as good a six man coming off the bench, as you will find."

"Colleen Tobin, our best jayvee player from last season, should also give us some big contributions this year and freshman Kori Sorensen is an exciting player."

With the veteran leadership that the seven seniors supply, and the talent of the underclassmen, Quincy is looking forward to getting back into post-season play.

"Our team goal this year is to make a deep run into the state tournament," said Bretsch. "We have high hopes for a good year, and with four of our starters back and the experience that players like Lam, Chernicki, Tobin and Sorensen will gain as the season moves along, we should be in a good position at the end of the year."

Quincy, which opened the season with two straight non-league road games against Hanover and Norwell High Schools, will not play at home game until after the New Year (Jan. 8 vs. Whitman-Hanson HS), but Bretsch sees that schedule as a chance to gauge what his team is made of in the early goings.

"Not playing a home game until three weeks into the season should give us a better idea of what kind of team we will have once we get into league play, and that is not a bad thing."

The Presidents (1-1) earned their first victory of the season on Dec. 19 with a grind-it-out 42-36 decision over Norwell HS.

Torpey finished the game with a team-high 19 points and eight steals, and Meagan Tobin and Campbell added eight points apiece for the visiting Presidents.

The victory over the Clippers washed away the bad taste of the team's opening season loss to Hanover HS. Quincy lost to Hanover 56-45 on Dec. 14.

"We came out jittery in the first-half against Hanover," said Bretsch. "But even after committing 13 turnovers in the opening half, we were still in it at the end."

"After giving up too many free points on fouls at the start by being too enthusiastic on defense, we settled into a rhythm and made it a very close game."

Torpey led all President scorers with 19 points (5-5 from the charity stripe) and M. Tobin chipped in with 18 points (including four three-pointers).

Quincy, who played against Nauset HS on Dec. 21 in their first ACL game, will be participating in the Dedham Basketball Holiday Tournament Dec. 27-28, before getting back into league play on Jan. 2 on the road versus Plymouth North HS.

Senior captain Rebecca Goreham also contributed 18 points and collected 11 rebounds, but despite the solid overall team effort, the Raiders lost the well-fought league contest 62-53.

Against Wellesley HS, the top performers for North were Kathleen Lynch (12 points) and Siobhan Carnell (10 points).

The Raiders squared off against Falmouth HS last Friday night (Dec. 21), and are scheduled to play in the Notre Dame Academy Holiday Tournament on Dec. 28-29.

The team will get back into ACL play after the New Year with games against Marshfield HS on Jan. 2 at home (tip-off 6:30 p.m.), and the team will host Nauset HS on Jan. 4 beginning at 6:30 p.m.

and cans will be collected at the Lincoln Hancock School from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. and, on Jan. 6 (Sun.), bottles and cans

THE QUINCY LIONS Club recently sponsored its annual speech contest. Students from Quincy High School and North Quincy High School participated in the annual event. Students were chosen by English Department chairpeople Michael Ellis of Quincy High and Robert Shaw, North Quincy High. Finalists presented their speeches in front of a panel of judges at the United First Parish "Church of the Presidents" in Quincy Center. The topic of their speech was "How can my generation affect the future?" Zenab Tavakoli, second from left, a senior at North Quincy High School, was the speech contest winner. Other finalists were (from left) NQHS seniors Caroline Thorpe and Charles Fawell; and Quincy High School students Trang Vo (junior) and Allan Barrett and Amanda Varraso (both seniors.) Tavakoli was recognized at Lions club luncheon and will participate in the next level of the competition.

Raiders Edge W-H For First Win

HOCKEY

The North Quincy Red Raider varsity boys' hockey team, coming off an 11-8-3 record last season, opened their 2007-2008 schedule with a thrilling comeback against defending Division II state champion Hanover High School to earn a 3-3 tie on Dec. 17 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Raiders (1-0-1), later in the week, defeated Atlantic Coast League rival Whitman-Hanson HS, 4-3 on Dec. 19 at the QYA for their first win of the year.

With just over five minutes remaining in the third period against W-H, North Quincy's Scott Richardson took a cross-ice pass from team captain Derek Scott and buried the game-winner for the Raiders.

Junior Brandon Gilmore (three goals in two games) got North Quincy on the board first with two scores in the first period. After W-H tied the game at 2-2 heading into the second intermission, junior Matt Rodriguez (two goals in two games) scored early in the third period to give his team a 3-2 lead.

Trailing 3-0 in the second period, Glynn scored on a pass from Gilmore to cut the deficit to 3-1, and then with eight minutes remaining in the third period, Gilmore made it 3-2 on a feed from Glynn.

The tying goal by Rodriguez was assisted on by Gilmore and Brandon Whitehouse and senior goaltender Steve Barresi shutout Hanover over the final period and a half to maintain the tie.

"We fell behind but we never quit, and I was proud of the guys for that," said first-year head coach Mike Charletta.

The Raiders played two games over the weekend against Franklin HS (the team they lost to 4-2 in the second round of last year's South Sectionals) and Falmouth HS, and are scheduled to play in the Walpole High School Holiday Tournament on Dec. 27 & Dec. 29.

North will get back into ACL play beginning on Jan. 2 with a game versus Marshfield HS and again on Jan. 5 in a game against Nauset HS. Both games are on the road.

Rec. Dept. Ice Skating Registration Open

The Quincy Recreation Department announced this week that its popular Instructional Ice-Skating Program will once again conduct its nine-week lesson program at the Quincy Youth Arena beginning on Jan. 9.

This traditional Learn to Skate program has, for more than thirty years, offered boys and girls age 6-14 the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of skating in a low cost program with quality instruction.

According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, the skating program will have two separate classes beginning at 3:10 p.m. and 4:05 p.m. on Wednesdays starting Jan. 9, 2008. Both classes offer the same levels of instruction and run for nine weeks.

Instruction will again be under the supervision of Mrs. Anne Eagles, a United States Figure Skating Association Professional, and the instruction will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the U.S.F.S.A.

The cost of the program is $73 for the nine-week session, which includes instruction and ice time. Participants need to provide their own skates (either figure or hockey skates with a single blade).

Registration will be done on a first-come-first-served basis. Walk-in registration will take place at the QRD main office, One Merrymount Parkway, beginning immediately and will continue on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as long as openings exist.

Online registration may also be done at QuincyRec.com.

For more information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394.

North Quincy Girls Start 0-3

The Red Raiders are off to a 0-3 start this season as they look to repeat as Atlantic Coast League North Division champions.

North Quincy dropped a 61-44 non-league decision against Wellesley High School on Dec. 12, and was beaten by defending co-champs of the North Division, Whitman-Hanson HS, 62-53, on Dec. 18.

In their game against ACL North rival Whitman-Hanson HS, North Quincy's Catherine O'Connell came alive with her first career double-double. O'Connell finished the game with 18 points and 13 rebounds.

Quincy Youth Basketball will be holding a bottle and can drive at all league games on Jan. 5 & 6.

On Jan. 5 (Sat.), bottles will be collected at the Broad Meadows and Sterling Middle Schools from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

There will be a box in the entryway to each gymnasium where fans can donate clean, empty bottles or cans.

Group Classes vs. Machines

Q. When I first joined my gym, I was shown how to use the exercise machines and given a routine. I tried that routine about four times, but also began going to three group exercise classes: yoga, boot camp and cycling. I enjoy the classes much more than the exercise machines, and find myself not doing the machines at all. Is it all right to do just the group classes, or do I also need to exercise on the machines?

A. Most group exercise classes include many of the same formats as exercise programs completed on exercise machines. Cardiovascular, strength and flexibility training are the main staples of many group exercise classes. The instructor, group atmosphere and, when applicable, the music often make group exercise classes appealing and fun.

Classes such as boot camp can be exciting due to the intensity and variety of exercises. Yoga is a class that can be challenging while helping to improve balance, flexibility and body awareness. Group cycling classes test your cardiovascular and muscular endurance.

When deciding what type of classes or exercises will help you move closer to your fitness goals, it is important to first establish those goals, then try out different workouts and find something you will enjoy.

Setting fitness goals beyond the normal "lose weight" or "tone-up" can help guide you to the type of classes or exercises that need to be included in your exercise program. If you want to strengthen your total body and improve flexibility, classes that are strictly cardiovascular with no other type of strength or flexibility exercises would not help you reach those goals. In that instance, you would need to find another class that included strength training or complete your routine on the exercise machines. It might mean having a mix between group classes and exercise machines.

Try different workouts. Don't be afraid to get outside your box and try a dance, pilates or aquatics class. Each can add something different to your exercise routine. Also, don't totally abandon your exercise routine on the machines. That option can be there when there is no class available or when you need a change in pace.

Find a class you enjoy. If you enjoy what you're doing, you're more likely to stick with it week after week. Remember that although a class is enjoyable, you also want to see results for all your hard work. Keep your fitness goals foremost in your mind.

There is no one-size-fits-all approach to fitness, which is why there are so many options available to help you get reach and maintain your fitness goals.

10 Tips For A Healthy 2008

Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates offers the following tips for staying healthy in 2008.

Safeguard Your Skin

Just because summer is gone doesn't mean your sunscreen should go on vacation. One in five Americans will develop skin cancer in the course of a lifetime, and the risk is not limited to warmer months. Use sunscreen with at least 15 SPF whenever you are outside, especially for winter snow sports where the sun can create a glare, increasing the risk of sunburn.

Take Ten

Finding time for a workout is challenging but adding just 10 minutes of exercise to your routine every day can have major payoffs. Consider investing in a pedometer and taking an afternoon walk around the block, and shoot for 10,000 steps a day. Raising your heart rate relieves stress, increases bone density and strengthens your heart and lungs.

Check Your Health Report Card

As you reach certain age milestones, you should be receiving routine diagnostic and screening tests. For example, men should have yearly prostate exams after reaching age 50 or beginning at age 45 for high-risk groups such as African Americans and those with a family history. Women with an average risk of breast cancer are recommended to get annual mammograms at age 40. Appropriate preventive screening is an important way to stay healthy and avoid issues down the road.

Keep it Colorful

Challenge your family to eat five servings of fruits and vegetables per day, which contain essential vitamins, minerals, and fiber that may help protect them from chronic diseases. Try introducing a healthy snack alternative into your usual family cuisine each week, and encourage your kids to build a rainbow on their plate with different colored vegetables.

Know Your Numbers

Learn to calculate your BMI—body mass index, a number based on your weight and height that is a reliable indicator of body fatness for most people. BMI is used to screen for weight categories that may lead to health problems. If your BMI is over the recommended limits, map a plan with your doctor on how to get into a healthier zone.

HYPERLINK "http://www.cdc.gov/nccdphp/dnpa/bmi/" http://www.cdc.gov/nccdphp/dnpa/bmi/

Protect Your Head

Have everyone in your family (including adults!) wear helmets appropriate for the activity they are enjoying whether it's biking, skateboarding or rollerblading. Wearing a helmet can reduce the risk of head injury by 85 percent. Helmets are recommended for winter sports as well, so don't leave them behind when skiing, snowboarding, or ice skating.

Relax

Forty-three percent of all adults suffer adverse health effects from stress, which can increase your risk of depression and heart disease. Try to identify triggers that you can control or avoid, and realize your limitations when it comes to taking on new things. After leaving the office, take some time to decompress with a relaxing activity to avoid bringing unnecessary stress home.

Foster Healthy Relationships

Reconnect with your social network; studies show that your friends and loved ones impact your health more than you think. Laughter releases endorphins inside the body that strengthen the immune system, and your social ties help to reinforce healthy behavior among peers. For your next friendly gathering, try hosting a healthy pot luck dinner challenge.

Be Good to Your Gums

If you brush but don't floss, you are only cleaning 60 percent of your teeth's surfaces. Improving your periodontal health by flossing can help preserve your oral health for years to come—you only have to floss the ones you want to keep!

Seek Sweet Dreams

Aim for eight hours of rejuvenating sleep each night. Start by avoiding caffeinated beverages and heavy exercise late in the day. Take the TV out of your bedroom, which will help to condition your body and mind that the bed is for sleeping only. If sleep is cut short, the body doesn't have time to complete all of the phases needed for muscle repair, memory consolidation, and release of hormones regulating growth and appetite.

QUINCY RESIDENT Mary Lou England recently earned McLean Hospital's highest honor—the Vision of Excellence Award—for her consummate dedication to the care of the hospital's patients.

Mary Lou England Receives Award At McLean Hospital

Quincy resident Mary Lou England recently earned McLean Hospital's highest honor—the Vision of Excellence Award—for her consummate dedication to the care of the hospital's patients.

As a nurse in the hospital's Schizophrenia and Bipolar Disorder Program for nearly 20 years, supervisors and colleagues applaud England for her unwavering commitment to caring for others.

"Mary Lou is well deserving of this award," said Catherine Coakley, MS, RN, nurse director of the unit. "She's creative and incredibly enthusiastic and she's a positive role model and a great educator."

Recently, England had had the opportunity to delve into new areas of nursing—including research. "I had a goal for my 20-year mark, to be teaching and doing research and I'm doing both, in addition to my clinical role, so I'm fortunate," said England. "McLean really supports opportunities for nurses to expand their role."

After obtaining a nursing degree from the State University of New York at Brockport, and at the behest of a psychiatric nursing instructor, England joined the staff of McLean, a Harvard Medical School affiliate. She cannot imagine having a career anywhere else.

"Even after 20 years I'm still challenged and learning. It is exciting. I still feel refreshed," said England. "A few years ago while working with a patient that needed extra care, I got to know the family. When the patient got better, the mom approached me, took my hands—she had tears in her eyes—and said, 'This is what you should be doing.' That was a decisive factor for me. I knew I was in the right place."

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SENIOR TOOTH LOSS' LINK WITH DEMENTIA

Recent research links elderly tooth loss with more than a three-fold greater risk for memory problems and dementia. This may best be explained by the possibility that people with cognitive impairment take worse care of their teeth. On the other hand, it is also possible that dental disease causes prolonged inflammation and infection in the mouth, which may alter some factors in the blood that could cause problems in the brain. In addition, lost teeth may lead to altered diets, which could lead to vitamin deficiencies and other problems that could affect the brain. Until the exact cause and effect are determined, it certainly could not hurt to see that elderly individuals receive proper dental care.

Our experienced dental and support staff takes pride in providing the most comprehensive care possible for all members of your family in a relaxed, comfortable setting. When you come to visit us at 44 Greenleaf Street, you can expect us to integrate the newest dental techniques with an educational approach to oral health. We believe a more knowledgeable patient is more comfortable during dental procedures and a more active participant in their ongoing care. Call us at 617-479-6220 for an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Perhaps the best reason to address dental concerns as we age is to be sure that we can eat a well-balanced diet without the restrictions of poor oral health.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

The New Year is a time of challenge to our younger citizens who look upon the year ahead and all the years to follow as a time to build the foundation on which their future lives will be determined... For those in their middle-years the New Year presents still another opportunity to set those, whom they love so dearly, upon the course which will determine their future happiness and the fulfillment of their hopes and dreams... And to the elderly to whom the New Year can be a melancholy time when they recall those dear ones who are no longer with us and whose loss increases our sorrow with each passing year...

And so the New Year truly means different things to everyone - yet with all the varying emotions the one constant, shared and binding feeling... is the feeling of hope... that with God's help our lives and the lives of those whom we love... will be happier and more useful lives in 2008...

Ring out the old - ring in the new HAPPY NEW YEAR EVERYONE...

John Hancock Birthday Plunge To Support Interfaith Social Services

The Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission will host its second annual John Hancock Birthday Plunge Saturday, Jan. 19 at noon at Mound Street Beach in Quincy Point.

The event will support Interfaith Social Services which has been helping families in need on the South Shore for more than 60 years.

"Plungers" can help by soliciting sponsors. Forms are available by contacting Ward I Councillor Leo Kelly at 617-773-1534 or event coordinator Chickie Abdallah at 617-479-2142.

Prizes will be awarded for the highest amount of pledges, and for most unusual "get-ups!"

For more information about Interfaith Social Services, visit www.interfaithsocialservices.org.

Temple Shalom To Screen 'Rashevski's Tango' Jan. 5

"Rashevski's Tango," a film that asks the question, "What does it mean to be Jewish?" will be the featured film at Movie Night at Temple Shalom of Milton, 180 Blue Hill Ave., Saturday, Jan. 5 at 7 p.m.

The event, hosted by Temple members Ronit and Herb Voigt, is open to the public.

Temple members can purchase tickets to the screening for $3 per person, two for $5. Non-members price is $5 each, two for $8. Tickets can be purchased at the door or get free popcorn by reserving tickets in advance at 617-698-3394.
